Vital Community Service

This week is National Hospital Week, a time designated annually by the American Hospital Association to extend public understanding of hospitals. This year's national theme is "People—Heart of the Hospital."

In some ways today's hospitals resemble small cities. They centralize in one institution many of the essentials of every day life and many of the services we regularly use. They provide not only room and board, but also have a "drug store," a power plant, a library, and in many cases a "school" for budding professional personnel.

These facilities, of course, are all in addition to the technical and scientific services which contribute to patient recovery.

Last year the Winchester Hospital treated 6,400 admissions. There were 3,500 emergency room cases alone (an increase of 135% in five years!) and 1,800 new born child deliveries. The average patient length of stay was seven days, and having a 75% occupancy average during the year, the hospital gave 54,000 patient days of care.

"Even though science and technology contribute remarkably to patient care, people continue to be the most important element in the hospital," according to Reese James, administrator of the Winchester Hospital.

What do a nurse and purchasing agent have in common? For one thing you are likely to find both working in a hospital. These are just two of the occupations representative of the divergent skills required at the Winchester Hospital to maintain patient care. Hospital occupations run from A(ccountant) to X(ray technologist—with 150 classifications in between, and amounting to about 375 full time equivalent employees, or 450 persons employed at the local hospital. The hospital also maintains an active staff of 60 doctors and about 140 doctors associated or affiliated with it. In addition, there are many individuals who serve as members of the governing board or through one of the volunteer groups.

Today's hospital is really many different kinds of people dedicating their minds, hands and hearts to the task of making others well, Mr. James noted, for it is through their efforts that the community is able to benefit from the advances of medical science.

Great strides have been made in recent years in many fields of endeavor, but none more important to the welfare of the individual than the progress in health care and medical service. The hospital has been a primary force in bringing these benefits to our community. For this, we publicly recognize the vital community service provided by the hospital and all those affiliated with it.

Culture On The Rocks

The recent decision to "save" the Boston Arts Festival this year was heralded by knowledgeable people and the general public in the Greater Boston metropolitan area as the first step in the resuscitation of a popular but financially dying cultural event.

The Festival was literally "culture on the rocks"—in many ways. The cultural aspects of the Festival are a matter of controversial art history here; but the whole event was going on the rocks like a foundering ship due to poor management and a lack of sufficient financial ballast. It was culture on the rocks for both the dilettante and the connoisseur—for one being art for art's sake, for the latter art appreciated within a cultural framework—and both found the cultural experience worthwhile in a straight ("on the rocks") setting. The Festival, however, is probably most significant in its broader role of symbolizing the teetering, on the rocks, present condition of the state of health of culture here.

There are several other cultural events that fit into a similar situation category: the area has an opera group, a resident repertory theater, and others that eke by here, in this, the former cultural center of the nation. No more; sad to say. And here one of the most enthusiastically received public cultural events, one that started a trend in other cities rapidly on the move to provide "culture and leisure recreation" of this order for their citizens have copied and magnified, came close to being ditched in Boston in its 14th year because of a $187,000 deficit!

The "New Boston" with its on the move and go, go, Chamber of Commerce image couldn't have afforded to allow the Festival to merely die off in bankrupt ignominy. It had to be revived—if only to pay off its creditors, many of which were small businessmen who couldn't be asked to simply write off the debts. But there should be more reason to "revive" the Boston Arts Festival: it should be preserved for its cultural and leisure recreational values to the whole area.

The need for strong and heavy public support of the Boston Arts Festival is manifest. And that support must be forthcoming this year if the Festival is to survive, for next year may be too late—not only for the Festival itself, but also its cultural contribution to the metropolitan area and the thousands who enjoy it.

The Start Of Something New?

Last week the League of Women Voters undertook the task of sponsoring an evening reception for some 150 town officials and town board and committee members as a sort of public thank you for a job well done. To our knowledge this was the first such occasion of its kind in Winchester, and the League is to be congratulated for a job well done in properly recognizing the public interest served by these persons involved in local public service.

There was a good turnout of local officials and committee members for this event, and time after time various ones commented "this is a good thing." They enjoyed a social gathering of this kind where they could meet other men and women in local government that they may have heard of by name, or seen, but not known before. Also, they just plain liked being at an event designed to express the town's appreciation for their hard work and many hours in making Winchester government known for its high standards and efficiency.

Now that a long overdue event of this order has been started by the League of Women Voters—which is probably the best organization to put such an affair on because of its studies about and interest in local government—we hope to see it continued; and the League is to be congratulated for successfully tendering the town's thank you to its officials and committee members for the fine job they do here.

Encroachment On Freedom:
Story About Attempts To Muffle Mass News Media

In Danger: Freedom Of The Press

"Congress shall make no law . . . abridging the freedom of speech or of the press"... Article I, U. S. Constitution

BY JAMES L. HOFFORD
COURTESY NEW ENGLAND PRESS ASSOCIATION

It seems to be perfectly clear. If anyone has any doubts on the subject of freedom of the press, he need only examine the nineteenth Article in the United Nation's Declaration of Human Rights: "Everyone has the right to freedom of opinion and expression; this right includes freedom to hold opinions without interference and to seek, receive and impart information through any media and regardless of frontiers."

Freedom Threatened

It seems to be clear and it is. Yet the freedom of press specifically guaranteed by courts and constitutions is under mounting attack . . . and constant threat of erosion.

Many of the threats are as close as our own local or state censorship boards. In Massachusetts, the dangers loom largest in the Commonwealth's State House, where the House of Representatives is currently witness to a record-breaking number of bills which are carefully designed to either censor newspapers and magazines and limit the right to know, or to regulate and limit almost all types of publications.

At this moment, there are nearly 20 such bills awaiting action.

Bad Climate

The situation is viewed so seriously in fact, that Mass. Attorney General Edward Brooke recently appeared in Boston before a special press conference on the subject called by the N. E. Press Association. He stated: "I cannot recall when the climate of freedom (for the press) has been so bad."

What are the particular bills causing so much concern? Interestingly, many are prompted by legislators rather than by the voters. Let us look at just four of them... four bills which attempt to directly censor our newspapers and/or limit the public's "right to know." Here is a summary of each:

H 2920 "To prohibit the publishing in part of the voting records of incumbent members of the General Court (legislature) without their written permission."

H 2661 "Provides for an investigation by a special commission, including members of the legislature, for "abuses to civil and individual rights of persons charged with crimes by various news media."

H 774 ..."Would prohibit the reporting of almost all criminal matters, and then set up a 'Board of Good Newspaper Practice' to oversee the state's publications."

H 3206 "To prohibit the making of certain public statements by lawyers and law enforcement officials concerning pending criminal proceedings."

See any dangers here? Any cause for special concern? Let's take these one by one. Suppose that each one of them passed...

Secrecy

With H 2920 forbidding publication of "part" of a legislator's voting record, can you imagine how difficult it would be for an average taxpayer and voter to find out how well (or poorly) he is being represented? One can only shudder at the samsonite effort that would be needed to get written permissions from legislators if their vote might prove politically embarrassing.

I can see the scene now: Reporter: "But how did you vote on the legislative pay raise bill, Senator? Senator: "Sorry, but that matter is classified."

Conflict

With H 2661, any newspaper, radio or television station would give more than second thought to the reporting of any public charge that a lawmaker or government official, for example, had committed a crime, or been involved in any wrongdoing. All the official would have to do would be to complain that the media had abused his civil rights in the reporting of the charge, and a commission of state investigators (perhaps including the accused) would be put into high gear.

How many investigations would it take to "persuade" a newspaper that it would be in the public interest to simply not print any public charges against high officials at all, because there might be an "abuse" of the accused's civil rights?

Right To Know

With H 774 prohibiting "the reporting of almost all criminal matters" and H 3206 forbidding lawyers and law enforcement officials from making full public statements on pending criminal proceedings, the public's right to be informed on matters that directly concern them is even further compromised. In fact, it mocks the public's right to know.

How indeed, is the public to effectively act upon the very criminal dangers which confront it, if the press as its prime source of information cannot report fully on the course of public justice? How can the public judge the fairness of a judge or jury if it does not have access to the facts of a case—and the opinion of all those concerned.

Naturally, no one would argue for the public media's right to obstruct justice in a criminal case by inflaming public opinion against an accused and thereby creating an emotional climate of prejudice.

As Associate Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas declares in his recent volume, "Fight of the People": "Unless immediate and substantial impairment of a fair and orderly trial is threatened, there is no 'clear and present danger' which authorizes government to take action abridging freedom of the press."

Justice Douglas goes further: "'Clear and present danger' has become merely a convenient excuse for supression," he says. "Yet in my view the only time suppression is constitutionally justified is where speech is so closely brigaded with action that it is in essence a part of an overt act."

Public Information

Clearly then, there is no just basis for muffling the mass media and not keeping the public informed whether in criminal cases or civil cases. Opinion and the reporting of same may excite people or even cause unrest, but free reporting is vital to a free society. The famed criminal lawyer Clarence Darrow phrased it wisely: "There is no such crime as a crime of thought," he said, "there are only crimes of action."

Perhaps Thomas Jefferson had the best solution for protecting the freedom of the press from the errors of public opinions. On January 16, 1787 he wrote:

"The way to prevent these irregular interpositions of the people, is to give them full information of their affairs through the channel of the public papers, and to contrive that those papers should penetrate the whole mass of the people. The basis of our governments being the opinion of the people, the very first object should be to keep that right; and were it left to me to decide whether we should have a government without newspapers, or newspapers without a government, I should not hesitate a moment to prefer the latter."

The Story Of Mother's Day

While thousands of Americans sent flowers by wire or personally brought gifts to honor Mom on her day, few may realize how far back into history the roots of Mother's Day extend.

The Greeks and Romans chose the Ides (15th) of March to honor a universal mother — Mother Earth. Instead of a corsage or a boutonniere, every member of the family wore a garland of leaves as they danced in the streets.

Many ancient nations worshipped mother-goddesses; in fact, some scholars think this was man's earliest form of religion. But the ancient Germans went a step further. They thought there was something divine—literally—about all women, and mothers were sometimes regarded as living goddesses!

Mom has been treated like a queen, if not quite like a goddess, on many occasions since. By old English custom, mid-Lent Sunday was "Mothering Sunday" when people went back to the "mother church" of their baptism and also visited their mothers with flowers and other gifts. Small rich pastries called "mothering cakes" were popular presents for mama.

But it wasn't till May 10, 1908, that mothers were formally honored anywhere in the United States. On that day, a Miss Anna Jarvis sponsored a church service in Grafton, West Virginia to honor her late mother and other mothers of the community. After an intensive letter-writing campaign, she saw Mother's Day recognized in every state in the union by 1911, and in 1914 President Wilson proclaimed it a national holiday.

Flowers have been connected with Mother's Day from the very beginning: because Miss Jarvis' mother had loved carnations, they became the official Mother's Day flower. But many people prefer their mother's favorite flower, whatever it may be. If they can't bring the flowers to mama in person, they send them by wire through their neighborhood flower shop.

Though floral tributes are probably the most popular Mother's Day gifts, modern mothers receive everything from dahlias to dishwashers. On May 9, American mothers collected an estimated one-and-a-quarter billion dollars worth of gifts!

Even ancient German mamas, "goddesses" though they may have been, never had it so good. But then, American mothers have earned every penny of this annual tribute. There are 63,616,058 individual mothers in this country—and they are raising, or have raised, 131,810,351 children!

These mothers include women of all ages: young marrieds pushing spoonfuls of pablum, PTA mothers worried about the new mathematics, working women beating the rush hour home, and grandmothers who, going full circle, are back pushing pablum to their grandchildren.

Most mamas of pre-school children find motherhood a full-time job. Those who work outside the home number only 11,182,455—as compared with 29,930,338 working marrieds who have either older children, or no children at all.

But whether or not she contributes to the family income, Mama was honored last Sunday in almost every American household for the good job she has done. Whatever presents she received, she was apt to feel like a famous mother of Roman legend, Cornelia.

One day a boastful lady called on her and displayed a flashy array of jewels—then asked to see Cornelia's jewels. Cornelia promptly sent for her two young sons and told the visitor, "These are my Jewels—in which alone I delight."

KOTCH

by Katherine Topkins

Poor Grandpa. He's a fifth wheel. Widowed, he has come to live with his son, but his daughter-in-law doesn't even trust him enough to let him do the baby-sitting. When the idea of mental tests and an old people's home come up, Kotch runs away, and the only person who needs him is the erstwhile sitter who has her own problems of modern society and has been shipped away from home until she is again socially acceptable.

This novel will not please everyone. From reviews it was clear that here was a book which should be read by at least one staff member before it went into circulation. One staff member read it, and the pathos and characterization appealed. Another felt it was bathos, over-written and exaggerated.

A public library's fiction collection should have books to please many palates, but how do you decide what to include and what to exclude? The chief book selection tool has to be published book reviews; but reviews, alas, are written by individuals, so are not without the crotchets of personalities. In the case of this book, the pre-publication review written for book shops and libraries said, "Worth a look," but it also said, ". . . Kotch not only forestalls adoption proceedings for both Erica and the unborn child, but delivers the baby," so this was a book to check. Were details too graphic? What was the author's intent in telling a story such as this—to shock or to sympathize? Then along came the Library Journal review, this written by a librarian to help other librarians in building their collections. Not even a hint of anything unquestionable.

"This fine book which makes the problems of the aging real, tells the story of a 74-year old man devoted to his infant grandson, and trying to maintain a place in his son's household, until he discovers he is about to be railroaded into a mental home. It is also the story of his attempt to live alone with strangers and it shows his gradual acceptance of the place allotted to him. The son, daughter-in-law, and wayward teenager—the other main characters of the book—are thoroughly natural and believable. Kotch, himself, is superbly detailed in his thoughts and reactions. The story is told with a light touch of humor and warmth which makes the subject bearable, indeed pleasant. This is a good book for adult reading lists on aging."

If we limited our fiction purchases to just the few books which will be considered classics in ten years, we would have almost nothing in the New Books alcove. So Kotch goes into circulation. Trusting too much in reviews means that we may miss a good book. Sometimes we read a book and ask the salesman to take it back. We encourage requests of patrons for titles, and are greatly aided if they give us their source of reviews. In the final analysis, book selection does combine educated guesswork with personal judgment and knowledge of the breadth of reading tastes of our public.

Appalachia Book Drive a Success; More Help Needed

Editor of the Star:

Winchester donations to the "Books for Appalachia" drive so far exceeded expectations that there is now the need to ask your help again.

Twenty-five hundred wonderful books, including sets of encyclopedias, dictionaries, atlases and children's favorites have been collected, and are awaiting boxes Winchester Boy Scouts have offered to make.

The generosity of school leaders and Winchester families has been wonderful indeed—and just a little bit overwhelming. Approximately seventy boxes of books can be sent to Appalachia from the people of this town.

Materials for each box amount to $1.75 (wood, hardboard, screws), and shipping each will cost $1.95.

Of an estimated $260 total needed, $50 has been given by Boy Scout Troop 503. Winchester Girl Scout troops are offering individual donations, which combined may amount to about $60-$70. To them and their leadership, deepest appreciation for their kindness and recognition of the need.

The Winchester Co-operative Bank has offered without charge an account in which checks can be deposited. If you care please help. Checks can be made to "Books for Appalachia."

No Pigeon Lover; Wouldn't Hurt 'em, Doesn't Want 'em

Editor of the Star:

The writer of the pro-pigeon letter of May sixth is, I know, an animal lover as am I. At present, however, pigeons are not number one in my affections.

I take no sides on the issue of the "health hazard" question. But, if pigeons do carry disease germs I do not see the fact that these organisms are present in other substances is an argument in defense of the birds.

What I object to is their nuisance value - their filth. For a long time now they have occupied the eaves of my house as a sort of rest home and I have done nothing to disturb them even though I have not particularly enjoyed being awakened at 5 a.m. due to their continuous and vociferous love-words. Nor was I happy at having to get rid of my bird feeders because they drove the other birds away and upset the feeders.

However, when my gutters became clogged and it was dangerous for anyone to walk along the sidewalk leading to my rear door I decided to take steps, and—well I would like to show the writer of the letter the bill I have just paid to repair the damage the little feathered cooers have done to my property.

Please know I have no wish to have the birds killed or harmed. I don't even hate them. I just wish they were not quite so addicted to civilization. I would never sanction poison or shooting but I'll gladly contribute to any campaign to provide them with birth control pills.

Sincerely,
Edith L. Underwood

Liter-ally A Barrel of A Problem

Editor of the Star:

The current emphasis on the littered condition of Winchester and the consequent necessity of cleaning up the town seems to be overlooking one basic requirement: trash cans.

I cannot speak for the entire town in regard to the lack of trash cans, but I am aware of several areas in great need of receptacles: the duck pond, and Leonard Field and beach area. The state of the latter two areas is a disgrace. The field and the beach are covered with broken glass, bits of sharp tin cans and other assorted junk.

If trash cans were placed conveniently around, people might deposit debris in them instead of on the ground. Furthermore, other public-spirited persons might pick up and discard what they see or step on.

The argument will probably be raised that the beach is still closed. However, this refers to the swimming and not to walking on the beach. If the beach itself is legally closed it should be fenced in. It doesn't seem to be too much to ask or too expensive a solution to place a few more trash cans around.

Sincerely,
Emily Scroggs

Legion Auxiliary Teenage Mixer Exemplary Success

Editor of the Star:

We are especially grateful for your recent coverage on the "Teenage Mixer," sponsored by our Unit on April 30th. Knowing you are interested in the youth of today, we the members of the American Legion Auxiliary would like you to know that our "Mixer" was considered by us to be very successful.

The teenagers are to be congratulated. They conducted themselves very well. Ninety-five per cent attending, complied with our request with regard to proper dress. There wasn't one thing misplaced or damaged, in or outside the hall. They thoroughly enjoyed the music supplied by the "Squires."

It was of interest to note that a couple of youngsters asked if we would continue these affairs through the summer months, because there is nothing for them to do here in Winchester at this time.

Since our year closes in June, and since this was our first attempt to work with teenagers in this respect, we do not know if this can be possible. But, one thing is assured, that we will run more dances for our teenagers. We as adult chaperones were more than pleased, and didn't mind giving up of our time and efforts to see that the youngsters at the dance were enjoying themselves.

We have found that we must know what other groups or organizations are planning functions for teenagers, so that our dates do not conflict, and no one suffers. Perhaps a committee could be formed, that would be informed of set dates. One person from each organization would be sufficient. This would help the grown-ups in planning their activities as well, such as rummage sales, card parties, dances, etc. A little organizing among the clubs in town could benefit all.

Sincerely,
Alice Healy, President

"Operation Y" Committee Gets Much Support

Editor of the Star:

Since last week's story on the organizing of the "Operation Y" Committee by ten McCall Jr. High School students, it is reported that a lot of serious-talking young people and adults have expressed interest and support for efforts along these lines to the committee and to the mother working with them.

Offers of help from former volunteer workers in "Y" programs in other states as well as Massachusetts have come in.

An offer of a fund-raising concert in the fall has come in from "The Two-By-Fours," one of our well-known quartet in Winchester.

In contacting men in business, education, town government, and adults active in youth work, there seems to be a general feeling that the time has come to face up to the needs with an eye to the future as the town grows.

Such was the tone of response I have noted in working with the committee, and many studies have been made in recent years by various groups including high school students themselves. With this wealth of information and the concern by youth and adult alike, the "Operation Y" Committee feels their efforts are in keeping with the desires of the town.

Chuck Knight and his committee are to meet next week with the Methodist Youth Fellowship in planning the open meeting on May 30th at the Crawford Memorial Methodist Church to acquaint the town with what a "Y" could do for Winchester. The speakers are already lined up and the young people may be shown a short film.

All interested adults are urged to attend the meeting on May 30th which will start at 7:30 p.m. There will be a question and answer period after the presentation.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Mary Haff

Thanks to Policewoman

Editor of the Star:

Many thanks to Mrs. Bairstow, one of our Town's School Traffic Policewomen when she noticed I had to stop in traffic because a large bee had flown into my car.

Mrs. Bairstow, even though she was off duty took the time and trouble to get out of her car and get rid of the bee (which refused to leave) in a very short time.

Public Officials Feted

About 150 local town officials and town board and committee members appeared at a League of Women Voters' reception at Lynch School Thursday night from 8 to 10 in recognition of their public service.

Mrs. John Null, LWV president, commented that this was the first such recognition ceremony in Winchester for those who serve the community public interest with capable and dedicated public service, although it is a common practice in many other communities.

The town's many officials, board and committee members were all saluted with compliments for their efficient management of the town by David Cameron McLean, editor of the Star, who spoke briefly at the occasion. Mr. McLean noted the "clean and good government" in Winchester as compared with the corruption and cumbersomeness frequently evidenced at state and national levels. He attributed Winchester's fortunate situation to the hard work, long hours, and dedication of local people.

Many town officials and committee members were heard to comment while leaving the reception that the evening was "well spent," "worth-while," and "really appreciated."

Bandits

forced her away from the door and into a corner of the room, warning her again.

Police say Mrs. DeLuca had a pair of manicuring scissors in her hand at the time, and she pushed them at the man's stomach, but apparently with no effect. The man shoved and struck her a few times, according to Mrs. DeLuca's account to the police. Mr. DeLuca called upstairs, telling the man not to hurt his wife.

At that time the second gunman ordered Mr. DeLuca upstairs as well. The two robbers then tried to lock Mr. and Mrs. DeLuca in a closet, but they were able to push their way out again.

The robbers found a black jewelry box containing platinum diamond rings, diamond and gold watches, earrings and beads, on the second floor. Then they ordered the DeLucas down to the first floor, where one robber yanked the kitchen telephone from the wall, and told Mr. DeLuca to rip the hall one out, which he did.

After finding about $275 in a front hall desk, the two robbers decided to leave. One kept the DeLucas at gun point while the other went out and started their getaway car.

The robbers drove down Overlook Way and turned on to High Street.

After a preliminary Saturday night investigation, and with a verbal description of the two holdup men, Sgt. Andrew Crawford took Mr. DeLuca into State Police headquarters in Boston the next day to try and name the robbers from criminal identification files, but without complete success.

Sgt. James Cogan, dusted for fingerprints at the home, but didn't turn up any evidence as the men wore gloves during the holdup. Sgt. Cogan said on Tuesday, that the Police Department had been working hard on the case and will continue its investigation.

Proposal

After both presentations on the work of the building committee, Mr. Broadhurst answered questions from the audience.

Mrs. Grenzeback cited three factors that have caused the present overcrowding in the schools; increased enrollments, an expanded educational program, and an inadequate school plant. The problem she noted was not peculiar to Winchester. Since 1954, school population has increased 63 per cent while the general town population had increased only 25 per cent. The causes for this substantial rise in numbers of students are well known, she stated. Larger numbers going to public school, older homes being sold to families with young, school-age children, and new housing all result in crowded schools. Six students occupy the space designed for five at the high school.

The school committee chairman went on to enumerate some of the curriculum changes that have taken place in the last ten years. Advanced placement courses, accelerated classes, new science and math programs, language lab, team teaching, group music instruction, and guidance are some of the additions to the school services. A big problem is the storage of new materials and aids that accompany these innovations. The present high school was added to and renovated just before this era of rapid change.

Space problems were noted by outside educators. The Marshall report mentioned the bewildering traffic patterns, the five floors in the building, and the congestion in corridors and stairways. When the high school was evaluated by the New England Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, the group noted the lack of space and said that the building was a limiting influence on the educational program, although they commended the school for the high quality of its teaching and educational results despite the handicaps.

In her final statement, Mrs. Grenzeback said that the school committee fully supports the recommendations of the Permanent Building Committee for a new high school.

Mr. Broadhurst discussed the school building needs in terms of size, site, program, and costs.

Dr. Marshall's population figures were checked with those of town boards and accepted. 1972 was the year to plan for. A 1500-capacity senior high school would be necessary to take care of the town's secondary school needs.

Trouble in implementing the Marshall proposal came in the attempt to provide a modern educational program in the existing facilities. The committee took the educational specifications and tried to apply them to the McCall-high school complex proposed by Dr. Marshall. It was found to be impossible to include everything needed in the curriculum because of the rigidity of the lay-out.

Slides were shown comparing modern floor plans of a modern secondary school with plans of McCall and the high school. The "egg-carton" construction of the 1904 and 1929 Winchester secondary schools showed up the inflexibility of the buildings. It was then that the committee began looking for other solutions. Renovations of existing buildings were considered; sites for a new school were sought.

A map showing all undeveloped land in Winchester revealed that lack of large enough parcels for the town to have a choice. The Turkey Ridge site was selected as having enough acreage for buildings, playing fields, access roads, and parking.

Architects were hired to apply the educational specifications drawn up by the school department to all the plans considered.

After a thorough study, the building committee came up with its recommendations to the town to build a new high school on the Turkey Ridge site.

Mr. Broadhurst explained, "We are now building for the rest of the twentieth century." He stated that the PBC feels it is now ready to say that if the town votes to take a giant step by building a new high school and making the present high school a junior high, the town will have as final a solution to its secondary school building problems as any town can achieve. The same cannot be said about the other plans presented in the building committee report.

In his remarks, he mentioned that the greatest resource we have is our young people and "for New England, its greatest resource is human skill." A modern educational program for all students with flexibility in grouping should be the goal.

The most important criteria in building schools are the educational criteria unless costs put them out of the question. He then presented a slide with three sets of figures: estimated gross costs, estimated net costs after state aid, and the effect on the tax rate the first year. Considered were all the plans presented in the 17-page report of the building committee.

The costs of all the plans were close. Before state aid, the Lynch plan was the least expensive; the new high school was second. After state aid is deducted, the new high school was lowest in cost.

The estimated effect on the tax rate for the first year proved interesting. New high school, $3.70; Addition, $4.30; Lynch, $3.90; Marshall, $3.80; Combination, $3.90.

Questions were asked at both meetings at the conclusion of the talks.

One question concerned state aid and whether it would be forthcoming for all plans. Mr. Broadhurst said the committee assumed it in the figures for all plans, not merely for the new high school plan, although he couldn't guarantee it.

Another question concerned transportation: why wasn't busing included under the new high school costs? The answer: because busing is an operating cost, not a capital cost. Mr. Broadhurst went on to explain that busing now costs Winchester $27,000. The maximum the town will have to pay is $35,000, or a rise of $8,000. Everything over $35,000 the state will pay. When asked if the state aid might be reduced or withdrawn, he stated that the only direction for state aid to go was up because of the recent interest in the work of the Harrington Commission.

Another comment from the audience concerned operating costs. The operating cost for the high school is nearly a million dollars. This operating cost must be paid whether in a new school under excellent conditions or in old schools on double session. Since teaching salaries are an expensive item, it would be economical to provide the best climate for teaching to take place.

The total cost of a new high school would equal five years' operating costs. A citizen at Mystic School made the comment that this would be considered reasonable in industry. Mr. Broadhurst answered with, "I think I like what you said."

One precinct 4 member asked why not select a site and clear it of houses? Mr. Broadhurst replied that as long as there is land available, the committee felt that houses now revenue-producing should not be "knocked down."

Mr. Broadhurst stressed the point that the building committee is making a specific recommendation because that is the job it is charged with. It would be shirking its responsibilities if it made none. School officials believe they have similar obligations. The school committee was elected to advise the town as to educational matters. They and the administrators would be remiss if they did not place the educational welfare of Winchester children first and if they did not state their convictions to the voters of Winchester.

The last of the series of meetings will be held tonight at Lincoln School at 8 p.m.

Swim Club

would add a lot of children and noise to the quiet area and put a heavy traffic load on Johnson Road, and would add nothing to the town that persons interested in swimming couldn't get at the Country Club, Boat Club and two public beaches.

The petitioners were represented by Austin Broadhurst, who answered Mr. Garvey's assertions by stating that the Swim Club Pool would not lower property values around it any more than property values around the Boat or Country Clubs are depreciated by their presence, that no swim area in Winchester would offer a pool of the Olympic size being planned for the Swim Club, that there are not now any homes within 500 feet of the pool site and that with the trees and shrubs there any noise would either be screened from neighbors or else they would be too far away to hear it, and finally, that Johnson Road is a country road with heavy commuter traffic in the early a.m. and late afternoon—not when the potential users of the Swim Club pool would be driving to or from it—so there would be no additional load on Johnson Road beyond its heaviest present load, he claimed.

The Board of Appeal has taken the petition and comments at the public hearing under advisement.

Browsing will be fun at the beautiful, sparkling, Rejuvinated Jewelry counter, at the Plant Tables, the thrifty "Bargain Box," the monstrous book sale and at the what-not corner in the Country Store Tent. Of course home-made candy will be sold to satisfy that sweet tooth.

Everyone is invited to attend the Fair, proceeds of which En Ka Society uses to benefit the Winchester Hospital, Library, Home for the Aged, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Little League, WHS Band and many other civic projects and youth groups. Join us for fun and for charity Friday night, and Saturday, May 21 and 22.

Couples Club Spring Prom

The Couples Club of the Crawford Memorial Methodist Church will hold their annual spring prom Saturday, May 15 in Gifford Hall.

The Mel-Tones will provide music for dancing from 9 p.m. to midnight. Light refreshments will be served during the evening. Don't miss this event. Members are urged to bring their friends.

Door prizes will be awarded at 9:30 p.m. so don't be late. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

Democratic Town Committee

There will be no meeting of the Democratic Town Committee this week.

As the situation shapes up now, we are tentatively planning on a night in the week of May 17th. By then we hope to be able to meet in our regular meeting place, the East Room. Right now there is much going on in the basement of the Town Hall building as the plans for remodeling are being carried forward.

We understand we will have representation at former Governor Peabody's dinner. Our Winchester group usually gives an account of itself.

We are looking forward to next week when we will have a well-known speaker at our meeting.

Summer Program

Mrs. Richard Alt, who for the past year has been working as a volunteer tutor in the Basic Reading Program, is Winchester co-ordinator for the summer project. She pointed out that adults as well as children will be welcome since there will be a need for car-drivers, excursion-shepherds, and class-room helpers as well as tutors.

College students, college-graduates, working people, and housewives all can qualify as tutors. Men, especially, are needed, as are people who can teach art, drama, piano or dance. The program will be flexible so that it is not necessary to sign up for the entire time.

Anyone interested may call Mrs. Alt (PA 9-3487), or Mrs. Franklin Patterson (PA 9-1424).

Town Employees

According to the Contributory Retirement Board 123 ballots were cast at the election: 62 votes going to J. Frank Holland, Park Department foreman and for the past three years the employees' representative; and 61 votes going to Janet Manzie, water registrar for the Water and Sewer Board, who was seeking election.

A winner has not officially been declared yet by the Retirement Board as there was one vote that has been questioned. The board will make a decision on the results at a meeting Monday night. If the ballot is disputed and upheld, the election could result in a 61-61 tie, and another election would then have to be held.

Did YOU have a dog when you were a boy?

If so, how would you have felt if it were lost or stolen and fell into the hands of merciless experimenters?

WHICH SHALL IT BE — } CHILD'S PLAYMATE OR AN EXPERIMENTER'S VICTIM?

THE VIVISECTORS' OWN REPORTS in the medical journals tell the grim story of how they mutilate, skin, burn, beat, freeze, gas, electrically shock, inoculate with disease and otherwise torture their pathetically helpless victims.

Here are some of the recent experiments reported by the vivisectors in the American Journal of Physiology:—

1. Confining dogs in a standing position in an intensely hot room (120° F.) for four (4) hours without water. (Mar. 1959)
2. Covering dogs with lamp black and burning over 30% of their bodies. It was stated that "light" anesthesia was administered during the actual searing of the flesh. Death finally ensued. (Mar. 1960)
3. Injecting glass beads in circulation of twenty (20) dogs and recording effect on breathing. (Feb. 1961)
4. Electrically shocking central nervous system of cats by electrodes permanently implanted in their brains, followed by injection of a drug causing severe diarrhea within two (2) hours. Cats then "immobilized" with curare. (Feb. 1961)
5. Causing acute hemorrhage in thirty-six (36) cats by carotid occlusion. ("Carotid"—at or near neck arteries. "Occlusion"—blocking.) (Feb. 1961)
6. Causing hemorrhage to anesthetized dogs to point of death and during death throes cutting out and slicing liver. (Feb. 1961)

These reports may be checked and read in full detail at the Boston Medical Library, 8 Fenway, and doubtless elsewhere.

First Communion At Saint Mary's

Overcast skies did not mar the happiness of the 174 members of Saint Mary's First Communion class who assembled in the school hall last Saturday morning, May 8th.

As in previous years, two Masses were scheduled to provide seating capacity for the parents, relatives and friends of the children.

The first half of the Communion class received at the 7:30 Mass. The 88 communicants were led by Ralph and Stephen DeConto and William Burnham, brothers of three of the children. The Holy Sacrifice of this Mass was celebrated by Monsignor Manion, pastor of Saint Mary's.

Altar boys at this Mass were Richard Beaton and Paul deMars, also brothers of two of the communicants. Seated in the sanctuary was the Reverend Walter Heath, O.P. of Providence College, uncle of Mary Costello. Father Heath assisted Monsignor Manion in distributing Holy Communion.

Later that morning, the remainder of the class filed from the hall led by Bruce McKenna and Stephen Yanulis. Monsignor Manion celebrated this Mass. Douglas Phipps and Gregory Sullivan served the Mass. Reverend John Murphy, S.J. of Boston College, uncle of John Murphy of the First Communion class, assisted in distributing Holy Communion.

After Mass, Monsignor Manion addressed the children and urged them to develop within their lives a respect for their parents, their country and their church. His hope was that these children would do much in the future for their country and for their church.

St. Mary's wishes to extend its congratulations to the communicants and to their parents, who most certainly should be proud of them.

PRESENTING 15-YEAR SERVICE AWARD to Mrs. Agnes Wiseman of the nursing staff is Clinton W. Bennett, president of the Winchester Hospital.

Hospital Cites Its Employees; Awards Presented

Winchester Hospital employees were cited last Thursday evening at a dinner held in their honor at the King's Grant in Danvers. This twelfth annual Employee Recognition Dinner, held as part of the hospital's observance of National Hospital Week, is the occasion when awards are presented to the employees who have served the hospital for periods of five years or longer, with retired employees as special guests of honor.

Seated at the head table with Mr. Clinton W. Bennett, president of the board of directors, and Mr. Reese E. James, administrator of the hospital, were Mrs. Annie Gallagher, 35 years of service; Miss Marion McInnis and Miss Ada Sleeth, 25 years service, and Mrs. Agnes Wiseman, 15 years service.

Mr. James acted as master of ceremonies and introduced the members of the board of directors who were present and seated among the employees.

On behalf of the medical staff, Justin L. Anderson, M.D., president, expressed their appreciation to the employees for their dedication in the care of the patients.

Following some special entertainment, the highlight of the evening was the presentation of awards by Mr. Bennett to the following:

Five Years Service

Mrs. Mary Clarke, Mrs. Olive Dascoli, Mrs. Mildred Denehy, John Dobbins, Mrs. Evelyn Gaudet, Reese E. James, Frank Nutting, Maurice Rogers, Mrs. Florence Thatcher, Mrs. Blanche Waddick, Mrs. Helen Wheaton

Ten Years Service

Miss Malinda Burdo, Miss Mary J. Foley, Mrs. Margaret Landry, Mrs. Mary Townley-Tilson.

Fifteen Years Service

Mrs. Agnes Wiseman

During the presentation, Mr. Bennett took special recognition of each employee and commented that the theme of National Hospital Week, "People—Heart of the Hospital," was most appropriate since a hospital is essentially made up of personal services and, therefore, the quality of our hospital is a reflection of the quality of our employees.

Sidewalk Art Show Coming Saturday, June 5

The Winchester Art Association will hold its annual Sidewalk Show on Saturday, June 5th. Artists from Winchester and surrounding communities are invited to show and sell their works along the fence at Manchester Field. In the event of rain, the show will be held the following Saturday, June 12th.

This colorful day-long show and sale provides Winchester residents with a fine, informal opportunity to see and buy the best in local painting and drawing. A small commission charged for each picture sold helps to support the Art Association's art scholarship program.

For the public the Sidewalk show is an ideal chance to view an extensive cross-section of current artwork, talk with leading artists of the region and purchase outstanding contemporary art.

Each artist is invited to hang as many pictures as he cares to display for a registration fee of one dollar. Pictures that are not for sale may also be shown; all should be ready to hang with loops or hooks but do not need to be framed.

Last year a children's art show was included for the first time. Because it was so well received, children of Winchester are once again invited to show their paintings and drawings. To avoid wind damage, children's pictures should be framed or mounted on a firm backing.

This year's Sidewalk Show is being organized by Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Visconti. Their committee includes Mr. and Mrs. J. Lambeck, Mr. and Mrs. B. Stites, Mr. and Mrs. R. Watts, Mrs. R. Detra, Mrs. C. Foote, Mrs. W. Howard and Mrs. A. Kimbel. The committee is still looking for a chairman for the crafts exhibit. Anyone wishing to volunteer may contact Mr. or Mrs. Visconti at 729-4658.

Summer School Class to Explore Ways of Learning

"We are hoping for a good cross section of achievement level in the students who sign up for our new experimental course to be known as Learning Lab I," said Walter Gleason, assistant superintendent for curriculum and instruction in the Winchester schools.

"We feel that the experience we are designing for the course will enrich and enlarge the learning capacities of all kinds of youngsters, those who may take it more for a review and those who may be looking to go ahead."

Mr. Gleason was speaking of the course just announced to be a part of the 1965 Summer Session program and of special interest to parents of fourth, fifth and sixth graders.

For several summers selected students from Winchester have been enjoying and profiting from their experience in the Harvard-Lexington Summer School experimental classes. This program is no longer available in Lexington.

Those students who might have applied for the Harvard-Lexington School should be informed of the new experimental class to be conducted in the Winchester Summer School this season. It will be held for all 4th, 5th, and 6th graders who are interested in pursuing their summer studies further.

Learning Lab I will include experiences with self-operated movie machines, film strip display mechanism, tape recorders, slide viewers, and programmed instruction. The purpose will be to maximize and intensify the learning experience. Emphasis will be on the development of self-reliance and thinking skills.

There are openings for 25 pupils, currently classes will be held for two hours per day, 8 a.m. to 10 a.m., for six weeks. Early registration is suggested. Questions, including cost, may be answered at the office of Mr. Gleason.

According to Mr. Gleason the course will be taught by Mrs. Ruth Graham of the Washington School sixth grade. A good deal of interest in it had already been shown, including a request from a teacher in Raimey, New Jersey, to volunteer her services as an assistant just for the learning experience available to her in this way.

Friends to Hold Annual Meeting

The Friends of the Winchester Hospital will hold its 15th annual meeting on Thursday, May 20, at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Bates, 336 Main Street. Coffee will be served at one-thirty followed by a brief business meeting and election of officers.

Mrs. Abraham Pinanski will be the guest speaker. Mrs. Pinanski is one of the original founders of the Auxiliaries for the American Hospital Association. She was granted an honorary fellowship by the American College of Hospital Administrators for her distinguished career in the health field. In 1960 she was awarded an honorary life membership in the American Hospital Association for her services to the hospitals of America.

Be sure to mark this date on your calendar and bring a prospective new Friend with you.

Morse Announces Exam Date For U. S. Academies

Congressman F. Bradford Morse recently announced that the competitive examination for appointment to the United States military academies will be given on July 12, 1965 in Lowell.

Congressman Morse indicated that he will follow the competitive, non-partisan procedure he has developed in previous years. "Those who pass the competitive examination will go before a non-partisan Academy Advisory Board, composed of community leaders, which will interview the candidates, review their academic and other activities and make recommendations for appointment."

Appointments will be made to the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, the U. S. Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs and the U. S. Merchant Marine Academy at King's Point, New York.

Congressman Morse said, "I hope that parents, guidance counselors and community leaders will encourage every boy of intelligence and ambition to apply for admission to one of the academies. The candidates selected will receive a first-rate education and have an unparalleled opportunity to contribute to the security of our country."

All those interested are urged to contact the Congressman's offices at 15 Kearney Square, Lowell.

"I hope that we will have every young man of ability in the competition for these nominations from the Fifth Congressional District," Congressman Morse said.

Republican Women at Work

The enthusiastic new board of Winchester's Women's Republican Club met last Thursday at the home of its president, Mrs. Don S. Greer, who is continuing in office for another year.

A stimulating exchange of ideas, a discussion of some interesting program plans for next year's meetings, ambitious suggestions for a big '66 ways and means project, plus plenty of good fellowship all made for a most worth-while "meeting of the minds." Next year promises to be one of the most active ever for the Women's Republican Club.

Fact and Fiction

I AM SURE you have often been annoyed and angered by the discrepancy between the "image" of a firm projected through its advertising and public relations fantasies, and the actuality of dealing with it through its employees. We, however, are a small firm whose major source of publicity are the voices of the people we have served. Therefore, what you hear about us is the truth and not the distilled essence of a copywriter's fertile imagination.

Red Cross Elects For Next Year And Reports On Last

The Winchester Chapter of the American National Red Cross held its annual meeting at the First Baptist Church on Wednesday evening, May 5th.

Reverend Wesley A. Mallery of the First Congregational Church delivered the invocation, after which members and guests were served a delicious buffet supper prepared by Mrs. Elizabeth Rutherford, Canteen chairman, and her committee comprised of Mrs. Harold E. Bergquist, Mrs. Kingman P. Cass, Mrs. Alfred R. Muerling and Mrs. Hildred E. Prowse. The attractive floral decorations were fashioned by Mrs. E. Carl Hoglund.

At 7:30, John F. Sexton, chairman, called the meeting to order and after a reading of the call of the meeting, the treasurer's report was distributed and highlights pointed out by the treasurer, Lawrence T. Smith.

Henry T. Gerould, Blood Program chairman, announced the coming of the May 12th bloodmobile and awarded to Frank T. Shiverick and Harvey C. Hagg, 2 gallon blood donor pins, and to Richard C. Donovan, a 3 gallon pin.

William J. Shinney, due to his untiring efforts for the past seven years in the local Water Safety Program, was awarded an engraved service medal by the chairman. Mr. Shinney then announced that this summer a new phase of the program would be introduced in offering instruction to handicapped swimming students. The Red Cross instructors have had special training at Camp Kiwanee in this field.

Mrs. J. Taylor Winslow, Minute Man Council representative for Chelsea Naval and Bedford V.A. hospitals, spoke briefly on the increasing need for volunteers in mental health therapy, pointing directly toward the Bedford V.A. Hospital which is introducing an extended companion therapy program.

Frank T. Barnes, Jr., chairman of the nominating committee, composed of Mrs. Wayne E. Davis, William L. Martin, David S. Wardwell and Philip D. Cabot, next presented the following slate of directors to be voted in by the membership:

Mrs. Seymour M. Niles
Frank T. Shiverick
Harvey C. Haag
Richard Donovan
James R. Willing
Ralph W. Hatch
Carlton W. Totman
Rev. Wesley A. Mallery
Philip D. Cabot
Mrs. Pasquale J. Bruno
Mrs. Lester R. Godwin
Norman Houlding
Michael D. Saraco
Mrs. August Niewenhous

They were elected by a voice vote.

At the Board of Directors' meeting directly following the annual meeting, Mr. Barnes read the report of the nominating committee for officers and members of the executive committee for the next fiscal year, 1965-1966. The names of the officers are: chairman, David S. Wardwell; vice-chairman, Philip D. Cabot; secretary, Mrs. Wayne E. Davis; treasurer, Ralph W. Hatch. The executive committee members elected are: Mrs. H. Kimball Archibald, Herbert E. Bixler, Mrs. Pasquale J. Bruno, William L. Martin, John F. Sexton, and the above named officers.

At the conclusion of the business meeting, the chairman introduced the guest speaker, Willard D. Wood of Lexington, who is currently chairman of the Red Cross Greater Boston Regional Planning Board. Mr. Wood gave a very enlightened and spirited talk on the regional concept of the American Red Cross. He delineated, too, the great demand from many growing organizations for volunteer assistance and related this need to the necessity for Red Cross chapters to work together to solve their joint problems in this and other areas.

He also spoke of the good working relationship between the American Red Cross and the United Fund, and reminded that many volunteers working on the United Fund drives are members of the local Boards of the Red Cross.

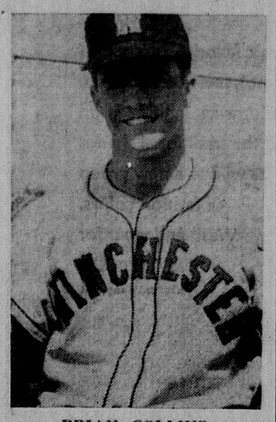
Collins Pitches Sachem Nine To First League Win

Sophomore pitcher Brian Collins pitched and batted Winchester to a very impressive 9-1 win over previously unbeaten Reading Wednesday at Manchester Field. Collins contributed a route going performance that was the best of the season for the Sachems. He also had himself quite a day at the bat as he pounded out a double and two singles in four official trips.



BRIAN COLLINS

This was the first league win for the young Sachems. They had lost four straight games in league play before beating Reading and things were beginning to look bad. They weren't hitting and their pitching in the first four games left something to be desired. Coach Colella was in dire need of a league win and he called on sophomore pitcher Collins to see if he could get the job done.

The Sachems started slow scoring one run in the first and one run in the second. During the first two innings they left four men on base.

A couple of close plays at first and second kept them from blowing the game wide open. Then the breaks finally came their way. They exploded for three runs in the third and wrapped the game up with four big runs in the fourth inning. Big guns in the Winchester lineup were shortstop Davis Blanchard with three hits and pitcher Brian Collins also with three. First baseman Jeff Schlener and centerfielder Lee Sullivan had two hits apiece.

While the Sachem bats were booming Collins was pitching a masterful game on the mound. Brian limited the Rockets to just five hits. He had a shutout right up to the last inning when Reading finally scored.

9-0 Stoneham Win, 1-2 Tanners Loss

Don Murphy pitched the Sachems to their second straight league win Friday afternoon at Stoneham. Murphy fired a brilliant two hitter and chipped in with two hits.

The Sachems scored four in the third and four in the last inning to wrap up the game. Kevin Wiggin blasted a home run to account for three of the Sachems runs in the third. Jeff Schlener, Bill Mahony, and Murphy all had two hits in four trips to the plate. The hits off Murphy were of the scratch nature, one fell before Lee Sullivan and the other was a check swing single. Murphy was nearly untouchable as he breezed through the Stoneham lineup.

Saturday afternoon Woburn got its best pitching performance from its best pitcher. Sal DeTeso limited the Sachems to three hits as he won a tight pitching duel 2-1. Except for wildness in the early innings he held firm. Billy Mahony was the only Sachem to do anything at the plate, he had two of the home team's three hits.

Steve Kajander pitched good enough baseball to win but the team did not give him support. Woburn scored an unearned run in the early innings, Winchester scored a few innings later and it developed into a pitching duel between Kajander and DeTeso. Steve tired in the sixth and Kevin Barry took over for him but Woburn pushed a run across the plate in the eighth inning to win the game.

WOBURN'S TIE BREAKER came in with a Steve Connolly slide on an eighth-inning single from John Morandi. It had been a 1-to-1 game with Kajander and Kev Barry holding down the mound for the Sachems. Connolly doubled in the eighth and then beat in Lee Sullivan's throw from center field. Cuff is making the tag.

Cap League

Cap League held its opening week end of activities last Saturday and Sunday. Despite a busy week end including a Scout Jamboree and Mother's Day, 120 boys turned out on Saturday at Ginn Field and 90 boys, Sunday at West Side.

It is important that all interested boys be present Saturday, May 15, at 1:30 at Ginn Field and on Sunday, May 16, at 1:30 at West Side Field as it is planned to divide the boys by their ages and schools to make permanent teams for the season.

Caps will be distributed to the boys as well as envelopes for a $2.00 contribution. This contribution helps to pay for the caps, baseballs and equipment. The insurance for Cap League is covered by Little League.

It is hoped that more boys in the 11-12-year age group will be present in order to make two complete teams. In fact all boys between the ages of 8-12 who are not on a major or minor league team should make a real effort to be present on Saturday, May 15 at Ginn Field for some exciting baseball!

Time to Sign Up For Fishing Derby

Announcements have gone out and registrations are already coming in for the annual Kiwanis Club sponsored Fishing Derby to be held this year on Saturday, June 5, at Wedge Pond.

Pre-school to sixth grade students are eligible and all schools have passed out the application blanks to be taken home and signed by a parent. If another is needed for any reason, it can be obtained at the Sport Shop on Church Street, where the completed blanks are to be returned.

As usual there will be a prederby parade, and contestants are asked to meet in back of the Town Hall at 9 a.m. The derby goes from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Power Squadron Is 10 Years Old

Three Winchester members were present when the Pequossette Power Squadron of Watertown, celebrated its tenth anniversary at an annual meeting on Thursday, May 6th, at the Lexington Inn, Lexington.

The meeting was highlighted by Ted Lannefeld, the newly elected squadron commander, and Sam Lord, district educational officer, who gave the history of the power squadron in the 12th district.

To mark this special occasion all the past commanders of Pequossette Squadron were introduced and R. H. Kingsley Brown, past district commander of the 12th District, commented on the success of the area squadron. The evening was climaxed by Don Kent, WBZ Radio-TV meteorologist, who presented a film and narrative on weather and boating in New England.

Tracksters Dump Woburn 84-29

The Sachem track team rolled to an impressive 84-29 victory over Woburn last Thursday afternoon at Manchester Field. The tracksters has 10 out of 13 first-place finishers; their only trouble was in the sprints, the 100, 220 and 440 events. Woburn won these, but could pick up only three points because the Sachems finished second and third.

Tibor Saddler won the low hurdles, broad jump, and also ran in the relay. Dick Fahey breezed home in the two-mile, winning by almost a lap.

The Sachems collected 26 points in the discus, shot put and 880. Schiraga also breezed home in the mile. This was the Sachems' biggest winning margin of the season. Woburn's Bob Hasselbaum continued undefeated in the 100-yard dash, the only bright spot for the Tanners.

Barry Littleton On All-American Swim Team

Word has been received by the Huntington School of Boston that four members of its swimming team have been honored by being selected for the All-America Prep School swim team.

The four boys, William Poirier of Quincy, Robert Asquith of Roslindale, Dennis Moulton of Waltham, and Barry Littleton of Cranston Road qualified for the number-one position in the 200-yard freestyle relay.

In winning this event in the time of 1 minute, 30.7 seconds at Lawrenceville, New Jersey, on February 27, the four swimmers posted the fastest time for this event in private school competition this year. The same four boys won the 200-yard free relay at the New England Prep School meet at Andover Academy on March 13 in the time of 130.8.

In addition, Barry was selected as a member of the All America squad in the 100-yard butterfly.

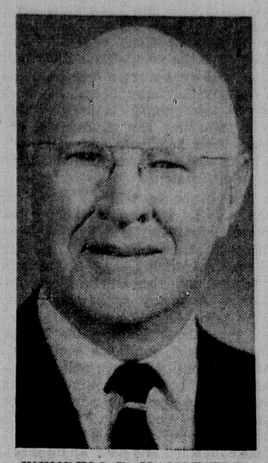
Barry, son of Professor and Mrs. Earle F. Littleton, represented Winchester High School in interscholastic swimming a year ago. In the Brown University Interscholastic Swimming meet he won two gold medals in the 50-yard free-style and the 100-yard butterfly. In the fly he set a new record for the event and established a new Brown University pool record. Barry also holds the pool record for the 100-yard fly at the University of Connecticut and Tufts University.

Barry has been accepted as a member of the class of 1969 at East Carolina College in Greenville, North Carolina.

Currently a regular on Tufts' streaking freshman basball team is John Yagjian of 66 Grove Street.

Springfield Honor To Mansfield

Wendell D. Mansfield of Hallandale, Fla., will be one of two to receive the annual Tarbell Medallion from Springfield College at the commencement dinner of the college to be held June 12. The other recipient will be Orville H. "Larry" Emmons, executive secretary for the New England YMCA.



WENDELL D. MANSFIELD

Mansfield's honor will come as a pleasant surprise to his many friends in Winchester, where he served for 11 years as director of physical education, athletic director and coach of boys at Winchester High School.

"Manny," as he is known to many who played for him in the "old days," came to Winchester in 1925 and left in 1936, with a great football team in the making, to return to Springfield, his alma mater, as assistant coach of football.

Mansfield came to Winchester upon his graduation from Springfield College in 1925. During the 11 years he spent here he coached virtually all the boys' teams, and turned in an outstanding won-and-lost record.

He left Springfield to assume the head football coach's portfolio at Bates College. He left Bates to become head coach and athletic director at Pomfret School in Pomfret, Conn. When he retired from Pomfret in 1962 he was given a huge testimonial, attended by many of those he had coached at Winchester, Springfield, Bates and Pomfret. While at Pomfret he scouted for the New York Giants professional football team.

His wife, the former Priscilla Wheeler of Concord, directed the physical education program and coached the girls' teams at Winchester High. It was while both were coaching here that Mansfield and Miss Wheeler were married. Most of their married life in Winchester was spent on Stone Avenue.

"Mannie's" football team he bequeathed to his successor, George Lauer, beat Woburn, 46-0, the greatest victory ever won by a Winchester team over the Orange. Gerald Ficcociello, a truly great fullback, was captain of the team.

Mansfield will receive the Tarbell Award from the Springfield College Alumni Council for service to his alma mater. It is the highest award made by the college.

Al Falvey, Jr.

Last week the Woburn High track team visited Manchester Field for a meet with the Sachems. The meet was a poor exhibition by the Tanners, who showed no depth in any event. The Woburn team was made up of just a few individuals in the sprint races. Winchester won the meet 84-29 and could have won the meet by a much larger score had they wanted to.

After talking with former Track Coach John Mcgovern he informed us that there isn't any more interest in the sport in Woburn. John said that most of the boys would rather drive around in their cars in the afternoon than go out for the sport. When he was coaching ten years ago at Woburn that school had some of the best track and cross-country teams in the state. Things are different now, according to Coach McGovern, the boys just do not want to put out. He was impressed with the great number of boys interested in track and cross-country at Winchester High. He also expressed hope that some day Woburn would again have a fine track and cross-country team.

Sports Briefs: His name is Lee Sullivan and he is the only player on last year's Sachem baseball squad to see action in every game this year. Bob Crotty and Bob Gilberti, members of last year's squad, are hurt this season.

New Coach Doc Sweeney of Woburn High finally got his first win. It came after losing five straight league games. It also came at the expense of the Sachems. The game was played last Saturday at Loring Avenue Field for two reason. It was a home game for Woburn, but their field was not in playable condition. They asked that the game be shifted to Manchester Field. As it turned out, Manchester Field was in use last week by the Boy Scouts, and the game had to be shifted again, this time to Loring Avenue. Both teams will meet this afternoon at Manchester Field, game time 2 p.m.

Manchester Field is also undergoing some renovations by the park department, which is putting in a new underground sprinkler system. Just in case you're wondering why all those poles and logs are piled up along the fence, you can stop wondering. It is not a Marine Corps training base, but just a way for Coach Henry Knowlton's Sachem football team to get in shape. After a season on his obstacle course the boys should be in shape for the Army.

Last week we wrote about the Red Sox and how they were improved over last year. They have certainly improved themselves, but so have the other eight ball clubs. So it looks as if the Sox will be in the same place they were last year. How about the Yankees? Although it is early yet, they don't look like the Bronx Bombers they used to be. While still on baseball, how about a tip of the hat to Robin Roberts, the 38-year-old veteran pitcher of the Baltimore Orioles. He has won his first four games this season. After the Yankees gave up cn him a few years ago, that dime phone call the Orioles got has turned into a mighty big one. Why can't the Red Sox find a worn-out pitcher who will win them 15 games a season?

We understand that basketball and football coach Brooks Holmes is quite a golfer. He is now turning his talents to teaching the sport and giving daily instruction to the gym classes. Not bad. Wonder what other school does that.

Wonderland Park opened its dog racing season last night. One of the amazing things was the showing of Ruston. Here is a dog that has run at Wonderland for the past three seasons. She ran in the Wonderland Derby in 1962 and was the favorite but did not win it. The next year she was hurt and was considered all done racing. Ruston fooled a lot of people last year when she came back and won dog racing's Kentucky Derby at Wonderland. Last week she broke the track record in a schooling race. It is amazing for a dog to have four great years like she has had. Last night she ran in the inaugural race. Win or lose, she has to be one of the greatest ever to run at Revere.

Monday's game in which the Sachems bowed to Wakefield was certainly a disgrace on the part of the Wakefield coach. He was up and down with every call the home plate umpire made. These are the people who make the job of officiating a headache. Even after the game he went right after the ump and still continued a verbal blast on him. It's just too bad that someone from the headmasters' committee wasn't around to see what was going on. One of the umpires who works many of the Winchester games said that the Wakefield coach really overplays the part. Some day it will cost him an important game.

Another season of bowling was completed on Thursday evening when the Clubs and Spades met for rolloffs. It was an exciting night for the teams because they were so evenly matched.

At the present time, the league is run on a four point system. As a result, the two teams split these four points and had to go into bowling extra boxes.

The Spades took the first and third strings, while the Clubs took the second string by enough pins to gain total pinfall also. This accounted for the extra boxes.

With the girls all bowling at their best, they had two more boxes to bowl and to really shine. Even this was close all the way. The last two bowlers were the captains of each team, when it was their turn to bowl, the Spades were ahead two pins. Cappie Airey, captain of the Clubs, came through with a spare and a five drop to win by her five pins of the spare. Congratulations to the Clubs!

Special mention should be made regarding the good sportsmanship of these girls. A game well played!

Winners of the trophies this year will be:

Cappie Airey high average 94.5

Fran Lucas high triple 314

Stina Hicks and Rose DiTucci high single 124

The banquet will be held on May 20th at the Frolics. Bus leaves at 6:45 p.m. Please be prompt!

Duplicate Bridge Club

As the result of torrid top-flight tournament action on Wednesday, May 5, the club has new champions in two of its major categories. The names of Fredna Perkins and Rae Grove will be engraved on the Anderson's Challenge Bowl as women's pairs champions for 1965, while Ed Sullivan and Dick Herlihy will be similarly immortalized on the permanent Chitel's Trophy emblematic of supremacy in the men's pairs.

The 1964 champions defended well in both events, with Betty Slade and Lee Mitchell scoring a tie for second place this year while Bob Haskell and Clarence Woodward were ten points above average and high in the running in the men's field.

Twenty pairs of ladies answered the bell in the distaff event and 21 boards were played for an average score of 63. The top six finishers earned ACBL master point awards:

Fredna Perkins and Rae Grove	82½
Loly Smith and Irene Sittinger	79
Betty Slade and Lee Mitchell	79
Betty Yeomans and Gerry Lawrence	72
Ida Finlay and Miggs Root	69
Ann Galpin and Madeline Walworth	68

Also above average were:

Ann Heckel and Barbara Kiers	66
Peggy Sanderson and Tina Lorris	65
Gay and Barbara Schrieber	64½
Barbara Sawyer and Evelyn Blackler	64½
Martha Walker and Ellen Schofield	64
Carlene Lawton and Donna Bauld	64

The men's pairs had an even bigger field, with 24 pairs slugging it out in a scrambled Mitchell movement. Top master point winners were Robert Arthur and David Marshall with a score of 132½ on a 110 average for 22 boards played. Next in line were Ed and Dick who had the best score among club members with 127. Other above average tandems and their order of finish were:

Darrell Root and Blair Hawley	125
Alan Leland and Joe Scarpaci	122½
Dave Littleton and Steve Root	122
Bob Haskell and Clarence Woodward	120
Paul Vatter and Lewis Ward	119½
Jock Olmsted and James Curley	117
Alan Friot and A. Davidson	113
P. Ranaghan and R. Prevoir	112½
Bill Duryea and Robert Blackler	111½
Phil Cade and Jim Byrne	111
Ted Atkinson and Gerald Barrett	110½

Here is Ed Sullivan with his account of some of the action:

WILL YOU OR WON'T YOU?

Last week was men's pairs championship. You walk in, sit down with your partner, and wonder what fate has in store for you this time. Last year you finished second, and you grin and ask yourself; will you finish second this year, or twenty second?

The boards are made and the first hand is dealt. Both sides vulnerable, and South is dealer. The South hand opens two spades, West (your partner bids no trump, and North passes) sitting East you are curious about three things. (1) The make-up of the South hand, (2) the make-up of your partner's hand, (3) should you or your partner take control of the hand. Looking at the south convention card you see that he plays weak two bids, indicating a six card spade suit at least, and between 6-12 points. Your partner West, a very experienced and capable player, has bid two no trump which indicates a reasonable strong hand, and most important, first round control of the spade suit. Now look at the East hand, evaluate it, and consider what you must do.

EAST
♠ K 4
♥ A K Q 10 7 5
♣ Q 8 5 3

You know first that your team has at least a game in this hand, and possibly a slam. Is the slam favorable, and if so, in Hearts or no trump? Wisely or not, you bid four no trump (asking for aces), your partner responds 5 hearts, showing two aces (one of which is undoubtedly the ace of spades, so you bid six hearts, which becomes the final contract. North leads a spade, and your partner raps up six hearts, losing only a diamond.

The complete hand is listed below:

NORTH
♠ 8 7 5
♥ 8 6 4
♦ Q 9 5 4
♣ 9 6 4

WEST
♥ J 9 2
♦ 10 8 3 2
♣ A K J 2

EAST
♠ K 4
♥ A K Q 10 7 5
♣ Q 8 5 3

SOUTH
♠ J 10 9 6 3 2
♣ 10 7

The irony of this hand is that if South did not open a weak 2 spade bid, and your partner have a chance immediately to show the ace of spades, the possibility is you would have played this hand in four hearts.

Weak bids do sometimes interfere with opponents bidding, but just as often serve to tell them too much, not only as to the outstanding honors in the other hands, but also the composition of these hands.

The results of this hand are as follows: the board was played 11 times, one team reached six hearts doubled, making six for a top, three teams reached a six heart contract (including ours) for a next to top, one north-south team sacrificed at four spades down two for a next to top their way, (a loss of only 500 points, which all but one East-West team make at least 680 points) and one East-West team bid only two hearts, making six for a bottom. Five teams bid four hearts making six for a below average score.

P.S.: No. 1 of the teams that played this hand in hearts, our table was the only one where West played the hand.

P.S.: No. 2, we finished second again.

Pets And Fish Hooks

"If you fish, be extra careful of your pet," said Dr. Gus W. Thornton, assistant to the chief of staff of the Mass. S.P.C.A.'s Angell Memorial Animal Hospital, Boston. "Maybe you'd better leave your dog home, so that there's no chance he will suffer the pain of an imbedded fish hook," continued Dr. Thornton. Almost every week of the fishing season a dog, sometimes a cat or a child, tangles with the business end of a hook. It is always a painful encounter; and in the case of a dog or cat, veterinary attention is necessary to remove the hook with the least amount of pain, damage and with the least danger of infection.

Casting represents the greatest danger, especially if young children or pets are with you. When you throw back your line, be constantly aware that your dog may be sleeping or moving about unnoticed behind you, or that a toddler may run into the hook. But the danger is almost as great at home if you are careless in the storage of your fishing gear. If you have a kitten or puppy about the house, you can leave your equipment for just a few minutes and come back to find your pet in trouble. Dr. Thornton also warned pet owners never to pull a dangling fish line from your pet's mouth—there may be a hook on the other end.

A little extra care and a little extra time to store fishing gear properly, promptly and out of reach of pets and children may save you time and money. It may save your pet or a child serious injury or much discomfort.

Coaches Club Starts Here

The coaches of all sports in the Winchester Schools last week formed an organization to promote a greater exchange of ideas for the benefit of the schools and their athletes.

The coaches are vitally interested in developing better sportsmanship, character, and citizenship.

Winchester is among the first group of coaches to form such an organization. The coaches intend to promote and improve athletic coaching by actively setting up instructional clinics in the system and by fostering public relations in the town.

Frank Finigan was elected first president of the club, Manny Marshall, vice president, and Jim Phillips, secretary-treasurer.

Winchester Little League

By Charlie Lucier

This is the first of a series of thumb nail sketches that will outline the rosters of each of the Winchester Little League teams in the weeks to come. Watch for your favorite team to appear. No attempt has been made to select the teams by any yard stick. They have been selected at random for their review in these columns.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

The Pirates

Sponsored by Fitzgerald Fuel Co.

Manager Mal Leslie is a happy guy right now. His Pirates have been playing good baseball and as of last Sunday they are leading the league. Mal ducks quickly as he mentions, "It isn't every team that has a judge on the bench." He is referring to Coach Frank Cullen, who is in reality Judge Francis P. Cullen of the Woburn District Court. "Even so, some of the decisions are going against us," Mal adds.

Both Manager Leslie and Coach Cullen are serious about their team, however, as they agree that the Pirates are a fast club that is composed of hard working boys and they expect some great results from this outfit as the season progresses.

There is no doubt of the balance of this year's Pirates. To start off behind the plate there is Tom Haffner, one of the best of the backstops who can also play an outfield position. Tom is one of the hard hitters on this club as well. Sharing catching duties with Tom is Gerry Ferro, a steady receiver who is not about to sit on the bench for anybody. Two catchers like these boys should keep any manager in a happy frame of mind.

Craig Stockwell handles the first base chores and does a smart job of it. Frank Cullen has all but taken up residence around second base and Peter Niles gobbles up any ball that is hit to short. Joe Mozzicato owns third base. Nothing comes down toward the hot corner that Joe cannot fold up and put in his pocket. With an infield like this it is small wonder that the Pirates are one of the toughest teams on defense in the league.

Tommy Betz handles right field most of the time and Tom has a heavy bat when it comes to naming the hitters on this team. Not too tall in stature, Tom is a big man with the stick as the opposing pitchers will testify. Bill Gannon and Brian Cullen are two outfielders that can be switched to any of the gardening posts. Both boys are sure ball hawks and their hitting is improving with each game.

The Pirates sport another trio of outfielders in Jim Marvin, Paul Snell and Tim Stygles. These three boys can play any of the outfield posts and they do a bang-up job of it every time. A fast outfield can cut down the extra base hits and these three are among the fastest you can find.

Pitching is hardly a problem for the surging Pirates. Peter Niles is perhaps the ace of the staff and when he is pitching Ed Keating can step into the shortstop position. When the coaching staff calls the turn, Pete rambles into short and Ed walks to the mound to take over the pitching chore. Ken Tarbell is another of the pitching corps who is blinding the opposing batters with his speed. Like the other tossers, Ken can handle an outfield job if called upon to do so.

Dick Murphy is always available for mound duty when he gets the nod and his glove is always ready to take over an infield post as needed. And if that were not enough, Joe Mozzicato is always ready to trade places with Dick and walk up on the mound while Dick takes over third base.

With one of the finest pitching staffs in the league, a tight defensive ball club, and some good hitters, it is small wonder that Mal Leslie and Frank Cullen are jovial. This club is out to sink the rest of the league and by the looks of their start they may do just that.

The Buffalos

Sponsored by Forester's Flower Shop.

The Buffalos are on the rampage again and they have nothing but bad news for the rest of the league. Manager Judson Curtis is handling the club this year and he would like to take home the bunting in his first year at the helm. "This team is really good," Manager Curtis explained, "they hit well and they field well. And I think that they are going to get better with each game." Coach Chuck Lucier adds his confidence to that of his boss. "The boys are out for the pennant and they have the stuff to take it this year," he commented.

It might be that this team will carry out the predictions of the managerial staff. Bennett Ewing is probably one of the best catchers in the league and Ben speaks with authority at the plate as well. Steve Washburn usually plays shortstop but he was a welcome surprise behind the plate in a recent game so it appears the Buffalos are super-strong in this department.

Reid Frazier is all that a coach could want at the first base position, and when you add Tom Raleigh at second, Geoffrey Guy at short and Ken Curtis at third the infield is as solid as that famous Rock. With Joe Guarnaccia and Alan King ready to take over any of the infield spots, it is easy to see why the Buffalos are so good on defense. All of these boys are good glove men and their hitting is beginning to come through in style.

Steve Bradley, Mike Brock and Bob Cronin make up an outfield that is second to none in the league. Then they have John Nash to handle center field with Ricky Ponti and Ed Ver Planck taking over left and right fields and the Buffalos have another trio that makes the tough ones look easy. Franklin Evans is another outer gardener who is going to be heard from as the season gets going. All of these boys are improving with each game and they will be hard to beat as they go along.

Pitching is something of a problem but Tom Raleigh is one solution and Steve Bradley is another. The coaching staff is working on another pitching surprise that they hope will emerge before too long. And if they can come up with another flinger like the two they have it will be "Look out league" from here on in.

The Buffalos are pawing the turf and lowering their heads for the charge. It might be well for the other teams to prime their biggest rifles for these Buffalos will be tough to stop.

The Wolves

Sponsored by Chitel's Clothing Store.

The Wolves are on the prowl again and their manager and coach have a hungry look in their eyes as well. Manager Ed Ball smiles as he says, "We got off to a slow start but now that we are on the way we don't intend to take our foot off the gas for the rest of the season." Coach Bob Connolly never had any doubts at all. "This year the team is raring to go," he said, "and I think that these boys are going to be the surprise of the league."

And well they might for they have the stuff that it takes. Young Ed Ball, Jr., is a mound ace who also cavorts in the shortstop position when Carmen Tofuri is in the box. Carmen trades places and plays short when Eddie is tossing them in. Both of these boys are good hitters and will account for a lot of runs in the games to come.

With Andy Fichera at first there is no need to look further for that job. Jim McCormack plays second base and is a spark plug on this club. Joe Lanigan and Jim Lawton split the third base chore and Jim can also take over at second if he is needed. With Ed Ball or Carmen Tofuri at short you have an infield machine that was designed to make the super play.

Left field can be handled by John Astill and Bob Cesari is all that could be asked for at center field. Brian Croft is ready for outfield duty and Larry Henry can step into any of the garden spots too. Mark Lanigan and Joe Nash usually take their places in the outfield on either side of John O'Donnell or Tom Orsillo. Any of these boys can be teamed together and the outfield efficiency is still at peak performance.

Finally the catching duties are all in the capable hands of Dave Miner. And with hands like his the job is well performed. This club has some hitters too. Dave Miner is among the best that you can find and Tom Orsillo is not shy when it comes to smashing the ball around. Andy Fichera, Carmen Tofuri and Ed Ball are all making mince meat out of the opposing pitching and all in all the Wolves are beginning to look around for their next victim.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

The Braves

Sponsored by Bonnell Motors.

It is always a pleasure to sit on the bench beside Manager Al "Babe" Olivadoti and talk about his Braves. A slight smile lights up his face and he slowly shakes his head as he says, "We've got a lot of work ahead but this team can make it." And then you wonder at what he might have in store for the rest of the league. Coach Walter Johnson, and there's a baseball name for those who remember the all-time great Washington pitcher, doesn't hide any surprises. "This team is full of hard working boys," he commented, "and they are really doing their stuff at every practice. It is the kind of determination that cannot be brushed aside."

Coach Anthony Carroll quietly nods his agreement. "We have quite a way to go," he added, "but nobobdy on the team seems to be complaining about the hard work so the results ought to be showing up soon."

The Braves have some good pitching arms in Dick Beaton, the number one man, and Cliff Emery, Norm Janson and Paul Whitney right on his heels. Not many teams can boast of four top-notch flingers but the Braves have them and they know it.

Bill Dobbins can catch and play first. He is a fine fielder and an asset to any team. When Cliff Emery is behind the plate, Bill handles the initial sack and when Cliff is on the mound Bill jumps behind the plate. Paul Whitney is also available for first base duties so there is no problem on that side of the infield.

Lance West is at home at second base and Craig West donates his time for shortstop chores. Third base can be covered by Bob Monterisi or Wayne West and they don't come any better than this infield.

Outfield positions are easily handled by this group: Rudy Fiore, Wayne Johnson, Paul Kennedy, Bob Robison, Kevin Riley and John Olivadoti. These boys can be put into trios and each group will give a performance that is excellent to watch. They are all fine fielders and fast on their feet so that many a base hit is held to a single instead of going for extra bases.

With defensive men like the Braves are sporting and some pitching that is as good as you can find, it might be that the smile on Manager Olivadoti's face means heap bad medicine for the rest of the league. And as the hitters get into their stride the Braves will be holding their war dance any night now.

The Rams

Sponsored by Hevey's Pharmacy.

The Rams are working with a father and son managerial staff this year as Manager Dick Kadesch has enlisted the help of his son, Dick, Jr., to do the coaching. Both the manager and the coach are loud in their praise of their club.

"This team has all of the potential that is needed," says Manager Kadesch, "and our job is to make them believe in themselves. I am more than pleased with the way this outfit has been working and I am sure that the results of this work will become apparent as the season rolls along."

The Rams have strong catching from Dick Butterworth and Mike McElhinney. Mike is also a pitcher of some merit as he heads the team's twirlers. Dan Brennan is another good pitcher, a lefty, and a real good hitter as well. When Dan is not in the pitcher's box he can handle the first base job with ease.

Another good first baseman is Guy Orton and Guy is also the man for the shortstop post. When Dan Brennan plays first, Guy jumps into short and Ray Boesch takes over the second base position. Carl Fuller holds down the third base post and this gives the Rams an infield that would be hard to beat.

Peter Batalis is also ready for second base patrolling and he is also a good outfielder so he sees plenty of service. Neil Callahan can play second and double as an outfielder to add strength to the team. Jay Frongillo is a hard hitter who can fill in at second or short and is a valuable man to have around.

In the outfield the Rams have strength to spare. They have Steve Batalis, Ray Camarda and Gerald Granfield to take the garden spots when they are needed. Then they have Steve Camarda who plays both infield and outfield and Mark DeTeso, who can cover the outer limits with the best of them. All of these outfielders can be interchanged and still the Rams can come up with a strong outer defense.

Now that the Rams have begun to move their speed will increase and they will be hard to slow down. Their heads are down and they are on the attack so it might be well for the rest of the league to look for a fast exit.

The Ponies

Sponsored by R. D. Whittemore, Realtor.

One of the fastest clubs in the league is the Ponies and this year Vandy French is handling the team with an eye to making use of that speed. "The team is making every effort to play each game better than the last one and nobody can ask for more than that," was Vandy's comment.

Carl Fisher is the man who handles the catching job and he does it well. Carl is one of the best receivers in the league and he is also a big sticker for the Ponies. John DeVries has first base nailed down and he is a top notch fielder as well as a good hitter. Jon Gundersen takes care of second base and Tom Dalton works well at third. With Frank Equi in short, the Ponies have an infield that is second to none.

Pitching is no problem with Bill Meahl ready to do his bit on the mound. Bill can also do a credible job at short if needed. Frank Equi is another dependable moundsman and Jim Errico is always ready to toss in the hard, fast one.

Jonathan Choate plays a lot of center field for this club and Jim Errico can handle that spot also if he is needed. Frank Figlioli works in right field and shares the job with Scott Thomas. Steve Meahl is in left field and works with Bob Lynch and Joe Martignetti in this spot. All of these boys are good outfielders and the Ponies are glad that they are part of the club. Dave Robison is a valuable man to have on a team as he is a good infielder and can also be spotted in the outfield if it is necessary.

The Ponies are ready to give it the hard run for the finish and with players like these we have mentioned it might be that the rest of the league will be looking at the dust of this club when the finish line is reached.

AIR CURRENTS were only one of many things studied and explained to parents and friends at last week's Lincoln School sixth-grade science exhibit. Here Bruce Jones is ready to tell the story of his exhibit.

Lincoln Holds Science Exhibit

The sixth grade of Lincoln School held a science exhibit on the afternoon of May 3. Each of the twenty-four students had planned and carried out a project in order to find the answer to a question on subjects from the geotropism of plants, to how an airplane fles, to the distillation of water.

The exhibits were viewed by all of the students at Lincoln School as well as the parents of the sixth graders; each sixth grader explained his project.

Prizes were awarded to three students whose work was of particular merit. They were Michael Simmons, who measured the electrical current produced by various solutions; Chris Parsons, who studied various lenses and their ability to focus images, and Carol Goodfellow, who worked on finding the effects of various solutions on the calcium in chicken bones.

Assisting with the judging were Miss Martha Cunningham, principal of Lincoln School, John Limongiello, McCall Jr. High science teacher, and Mrs. Barbara Nicholson, sixth grade teacher.

Four Recitals At the Eunice Kiley Studio

Last Sunday and the previous Sunday was the scene of four pianoforte recitals at the Kiley Studio, 433 Main Street. Two of the programs were given by two graduates. One of them, Joyce Clark of Winchester High School '65, gave a solo recital at 8 o'clock, April 25. The many classmates and friends were most appreciative and gave Joyce a standing ovation at the close.

Joyce was presented with a check for one hundred dollars by Miss Eunice Kiley, the proud teacher, for having studied the piano through her high school years and giving a solo recital of over an hour's length, also a solo performance at the June '65 recital, when the public is invited.

The afternoon of that same Sunday a special recital was given by four youngsters, all under 12 years of age.

Nancy Clark of Winchester, Kathy and Martha Barry of West Medford, and Glen Stewart of Arlington were the four participants of this enjoyable program. The girls carried old-fashioned bouquets, which they placed on the piano while they performed. All present were amazed at the progress of these young people.

The requirements to take part in these special recitals were a sonatina or sonata movement, and not less than seven or eight pieces in all, for each pupil. They were assisted by a graduate from Medford High School '65, Miss Cynthia Ware, also a scholarship pupil. The Mendelssohn G minor Concerto, presto movement, was the closing number and beautifully rendered by Cynthia Ware. Miss Kiley played the orchestral part arranged for second piano. Other composers represented on this program were Beethoven, Bach, Couyserin, Handel, Haydn, Debussy, Grieg Chopin, Bartok and Kabalersky.

Another capacity audience attended the senior solo recital given by Cynthia Ware May 2 at 8 o'clock. Friends, classmates and pupils enthusiastically received Miss Ware, who gave a splendid performance of over one hour's length, from the works of Bach, Beethoven, MacDowell, Grieg, Chopin, Rachmaninoff and Mendelssohn.

Cynthia received a one hundred dollar scholarship also, and was praised for her recital work in the last seven seasons. She will attend Oberlin College next season, going on with organ study. She is the fifth winner of the scholarship awarded by Miss Kiley to the pupil qualifying by continuing her study through the high school years and presenting a senior solo recital.

The afternoon recital of that same day at 4 o'clock, four talented pupils gave an enjoyable program. Susan and Martha Soule of Melrose, Marsha and Susan White of Winchester were the 13 and 15-year-old participants of this happy occasion. Joyce Clark, the fourth scholarship pupil, assisted with a group of three numbers at the close. Works from well-known composers were ably performed by this group. The same requirements were met by these talented youngsters.

These recitals are convincing proof that it is possible for talented youths to continue their study through junior and high school years and enjoy the art of giving pleasure through their music to others less fortunate.

The closing recital for all the pupils from the Kiley Studio will be at Fellowship Hall, Congregational Church, West Medford, June 15, at 7:30 p.m. The public is cordially invited.

Lewis, Mrs. Albert Marasca, Mrs. William Pearce, Mrs. Paul J. Sheeran and Mrs. Leo C. Thibeault.

Mrs. J. Lester Killian, president, will preside at the annual meeting preceding the program. This meeting will be called to order at two o'clock and promises to be most interesting and informative as brief reports will be given by the officers and chairmen of the various activities of the year.

Mankind's quest for immortality will be presented at Christian Science churches this Sunday through the story of John the Baptist and his relationship to Christ Jesus. Subject of the Bible Lesson is "Mortals and Immortals." Golden Text: "Thou art no more a servant, but a son; and if a son, then an heir of God through Christ" (Galatians 4:7). The concluding Bible verse is from I Corinthians: "As we have borne the image of the earthy, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly."
Related passages from the Christian Science textbook will include these lines: "The real man being linked by Science to his Maker, mortals need only turn from sin and lose sight of mortal selfhood to find Christ, the real man and his relation to God, and to recognize the divine sonship" (Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy, p. 316).

Channel 2 Honors 11 Here

Eleven volunteers from Winchester have donated an average of ten hours each to WGBH, addressing envelopes to further the station's current drive for funds and as a thank you, Channel 2 has invited all of them to attend a special taping of "The French Chef" on Thursday, May 13 in the WGBH-TV studios.

Each will have an opportunity to meet the Peabody Award-winning Julia Child and to see what goes on behind the scenes in the television studio.

WGBH's fund drive goal this year is $500,000, to enable the station to meet its basic operational costs, and to continue to produce programs such as the Boston Symphony Orchestra concerts, Dear Liar, and The French Chef, for which it is internationally known.

Those who have been invited to attend the taping from Winchester are Mrs. James G. Baker, Mrs. Frank D. Bates, Mrs. Leslie J. DeGroot, Mrs. Albert G. H. Dietz, Mrs. Rosemary F. Layzer, Mrs. Eber T. AT YOUR SERVICE

How would you like to don a sorcerer's cape and perform some magic? The ledgerdemaine only takes a minute; you just sprinkle a powder around a plant with blue flowers and watch them turn pink.

Magic? Not really; the trick is probably known to most all of you. One of the more well known trade secrets, aluminum sulphate is used to acidify an alkaline soil, thereby turning a blue hydrangea to pink. The trick can be reversed by using alum.

There is almost a myriad of chemicals available to the home gardener to help him to grow fine-looking plants. The wide selection makes the task of selecting the right one for the job at hand a difficult one. There are even some chemicals which perform jobs for which the home gardener never knew existed!

Muriate of potash is just such a chemical. This product with the exotic name performs a very worthwhile service: it increases the degree of hardiness of root systems which winter over in the ground.

Effective on peonies, iris, spring flowering bulbs, etc., muriate of potash not only intensifies color and fosters stiff stems, but, mainly, the plants are helped to withstand low temperatures.

Dehydrated cow manure, although uninviting name-wise, is a chemical which the rose or tuberous begonia fancier would never be without. This product is a soil builder; it does its work by promoting the formation of beneficial bacterias.

As mentioned in the opening paragraphs, aluminum sulphate is used to acidify alkaline soils as required by azaleas, rhododendrons, blueberries and the like.

Superphosphate is invaluable to the tomato grower. This chemical, high in phospheric acid, fosters large flowers and gigantic fruit.

Bone meal is used to promote extensive root systems. This chemical can be applied wherever plants are grown; especially beneficial to spring flowering bulbs.

The rooting hormone powders are familiar to many gardeners. These chemicals speed up the rooting of cuttings and make it possible for some plants ordinarily not propagated in this manner to be increased this way.

Sulphate of ammonia is used to promote strong, healthy-looking stems and foliage; high in inorganic nitrogen.

Lime sweetens the soil in the same way dehydrated cow manure does, by fostering beneficial bacterias.

Fertilizers are invaluable to the grower of plants. Different types of plants require different types of fertilizers.

The three main chemicals in fertilizers are nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash; the amounts of one in relation to the others determines the use of the plant food.

Rose food, for example, is usually about 5-10-5; that is; five per cent nitrogen, ten per cent phosphoric acid and five per cent potash. Evergreen food, on the other hand, is 4-6-10.

Insecticides are just as important as fertilizers. There are all sorts of these chemicals on the market, all pretty much of the same effectiveness. As with fertilizers, pest controls come in different types, some better suited to a certain job than others.

There is one type of insecticide which never ceases to amaze me; that is the systemic one. Most insecticides are sprayed on the leaves of a plant, and either smother or poison the insect.

Systemics are different; this type is applied to the soil around the plant. The root system takes in the poison and it is diffused into all parts of the plant.

An insect chews on the treated plant and is killed; the advantages of this get-'em-from-the-inside method are obvious and numerous. The insecticide is not washed off by rain or watering and no matter where the insect attacks, it is killed—a big improvement over having to be sure to touch the insect with the spray.

Bicycle Safety Films Sponsored By Fortnightly

Fine spring weather plus the profusion of bikes in Winchester made the showing of two films on bicycle safety particularly appropriate at this season. These were presented to our elementary school children this past week sponsored by the Fortnightly.

Officer William Nash of our local Police Department supervised the presentation and stressed to his enthusiastic audience the importance of obeying traffic signals, using hand signals and riding close to the curb. Parents should see that their children have "A bike that fits the child" with proper seat height, handle bars parellel to the ground and only one rider on a bike.

The youngsters participated in a lively question and answer period following the program.

Coast Guard Has Openings

The Coast Guard now has openings for men between the ages of 17-26 for active duty.

There are no academic requirements necessary for immediate enlistment. Recruits will be sent to Cape May, New Jersey, for a period of 12 weeks basic training. During this period, tests will be administered to determine each man's qualifications.

Depending on the needs of the service some qualified personnel will be assigned to advanced training schools, while others will go to ships or shore stations.

The Coast Guard emphasized the fact that it is not necessary for men to attend training schools to become petty officers. On-the-job training is available to those who desire advancing themselves in certain ratings for which service schools are available.

At the present time there is no waiting and applications will be processed immediately.

The Coast Guard hopes to attract qualified men who are interested in saving lives and property at sea. Details for enlistment are available at your local recruiter, Room 703, Custom House, Boston.

Smith College Alumnae Hear Horticulturist

Beautiful slides of landscaping in America and Europe highlighted the spring meeting of the Winchester Smith College Club held recently at the home of Mrs. Henry K. Spencer of Central Green.

William I. P. Campbell, a native of Scotland, who studied at the Royal Botanical Garden in Edinburgh and is at present horticulturist at Smith, was the speaker. And he brought to the local alumnae understanding and appreciation of the many gardens and plantings which make the Smith campus such an attractive one.

Mr. Campbell is in charge of the Lyman Plant House, the Capen garden, the President's garden; he teaches the course in horticulture offered by the botany department. He and his gardeners maintain a seed exchange service with other horticulturists all over the world and his annual fall flower show and spring bulb exhibit are highlights of the year at Smith.

Mrs. Janet S. Willis and Mrs. Phillip Parsons were tea hostesses for the meeting.

Auditions Time For the Youth Symphony Orch.

Saturday, May 15 and next Saturday, May 22 will conclude the audition days for the Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestra and the Junior Youth Symphony for the 1965-66 season.

This year there have been five Winchester members of the Youth Orchestra and three of the Junior Orchestra. The final concert of the year for these groups will be the Concerto Concert at Boston University Hall on May 23 at 3 p.m., with graduating seniors performing most of the solo parts.

The auditions are open to students from fifth to twelfth grades in all Greater Boston public, private and parochial schools. They will be at Youth Symphony headquarters, Boston University School of Fine and Applied Arts, 855 Commonwealth Avenue, by appointment between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. each Saturday.

Each student must have the recommendation of his own school music supervisor before auditioning and must bring his music and his own instrument. Exceptions are the harp, percussion and string bass, but bass players must bring their own bows, and percussionists their mallets and sticks.

Application forms are available from the music supervisors of all area schools, and appointments are made by telephone to CO2-4300, Ext. 8220.

All positions in the two orchestras are open, as previous members must always reaudition each year. Students are placed in either the G.B.Y.S.O. or in the Junior Youth Symphony according to audition results.

Directing auditions will be G.B. Y.S.O. conductor Dr. Artin Arslanian of the Boston University music faculty. Each student will be judged by musicians from his own instrumental area. The two symphonies are jointly sponsored by the University, the music supervisors of local schools, and a community board of directors.

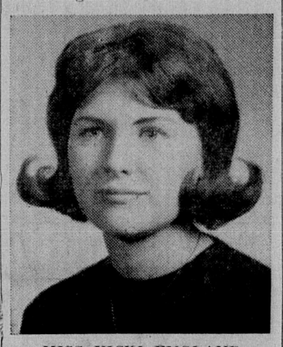
Vicki England's WHS Painting Is State Winner

Crated and on its way to Kansas City, Missouri, is a contemporary water color painted by Vivienne England of 64 Bacon Street.



MISS VICKI ENGLAND

Vicki's "Freedom and Growth" has won its way up a ladder of contests, beginning with classroom competition at WHS, on through a local Fortnightly sponsored judging and from there successfully through the Massachusetts Federation of Women's State Art contest. It is now on its way to the nationals, one of 50 country-wide state winners all of which are aiming at a scholarship prize.

Vicki is a senior at the High School. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence R. England and she expects next year to major in art at Vermont Collegt in Montpelier, where she will be a freshman.

The water color which has so pleased the judges, beginning with Miss Martha Carlson, who is in her first year of teaching at WHS, is a multicolor exposition of the artist's concept of the room. There is left to be explored - symbolized by a small dark green earth, the planets and an expansive background highlighted with pinks, blues and yellows.

Although the water color came out of the Fortnightly contest with only an honorable mention, it took first place at the next contest, the Hallmark Card Company - sponsored State show. From then it went on to be a part of the Worcester Art Exhibit and it will be judged in Kansas City soon.

The Kansas City first prize winner receives a $1,000 scholarship to the college of her choice and the next two winners also rate large scholarships. The Hallmark Company makes its final selections and awards prizes at the June Convention for General Federation of Women's Clubs Convention in New Orleans.

At the Fortnightly contest here earlier in the spring, Beverly Robbins of Washington Street, won first prize. Beverly's winner was also a water color, a representational social comment painting, done mostly in greens depicting a young Vietnamese girl in the fields feeding the birds of peace - with broken barbed wire in the background.

Woburn Youth Injured, Hospitalized In Gang Beating Over Weekend

An 18-year-old Woburn youth was reported in satisfactory condition yesterday at the Choate Hospital after being severely beaten and hospitalized last Friday night when a gang of Medford youths cut his car off the road on Main Street and attacked him.

Josept A. Bowden of 64 Winn Street in Woburn was treated for head and face injuries at the attack scene in front of 409 Main Street by Dr. Harry Benson, and later that night was transported from his home to the Choate Hospital by Woburn Police when his condition became more serious.

Shortly after 10:30 on Friday night a local resident notified police that a gang of boys was attacking the occupants of a car on Main Street.

Sgt. Andrew Crawford and Officer William Haggerty responded to the scene and on their arrival most of the gang of six youths immediately jumped back into their car and drove off. One wasn't able to get into the car before the driver left, and he started running down Main Street but was apprehended by Officers John Hennelly and Frank DeAmato at the intersection of Mt. Pleasant and Main Streets. He was taken to the Police Station for questioning and his parents were notified.

Inside the 1956 Ford, the operator, Joseph Bowden, had sustained a severe sprain of the left knee, a concussion, multiple cuts, and abrasions and lacerations about the face. His three companions, two youths and a girl, did not report any injuries.

According to police, Bowden was coming from Medford with his passengers when a 1962 Oldsmobile convertible pulled in front of his car and forced the vehicle towards the sidewalk and to a stop.

Four youths jumped out of the car while two stayed inside. One youth opened Bowden's car door and began punching and kicking him. Another youth had a stick and started to break the front windshield and window on the passenger's side.

At this point the police arrived, and they were able to get the car's registration number from one of Bowden's passengers. The number was traced by the Registry and the youths were notified by Medford Police to report to the Winchester Police Station.

Police discovered two wooden bats and a sawed off pool stick in the Oldsmobile, which was reportedly said kept in the car for protection.

A criminal complaint for assault and battery was issued in Woburn District Court on Tuesday, and the case is scheduled to come before the district juvenile and regular court on Thursday, May 27.

Police Chase A Speeding Driver

Police arrested the 19-year-old operator of a Chevrolet Corvette after what one officer described as a wild 75-to-80-mile-an-hour chase through Winchester last Friday.

Patroling near Route 3, Officer Henry Cogan, Jr., observed a Corvette on Pond Street going at a fast speed. He gave chase, with red light and siren signaling.

At Chesterford Road two women crossing the street had to run to get to the sidewalk as the Corvette went by, Officer Cogan reported. He went down Norfolk Street hoping to intercept the car if it turned in his direction, which it did, and the chase resumed, going west on Pond Street.

Mystic Glee Club Cops 2nd Award For New England

Winchester's Mystic Glee Club recently won the second place award in competition with singing groups from all over New England. The annual competition is sponsored by the New England Federation of Men's Glee Clubs and was held this year in Andover.

Judging was done entirely on tone qualities, pitch, diction and expression as the competing clubs perform unseen by the judges. The various clubs are announced to the audience and judges by number rather than by name to further assure unbiased judging.

The annual competition rounded out the most active and successful year in the 25-year-old Mystic Glee Club's history. Made up of male singers from Winchester and sur-

Home And Garden Club Cops Prize For Civic Beautification With Local Tree Plantings

The Winchester Home and Garden Club has been named a top winner in the annual Sears Roebuck Civic Beautification contest, sponsored through the Garden Club Federation of Massachusetts.

The award, which carries with it a $200 grant to be applied toward the club's landscaping program, was accepted by Mrs. Wesley A. McSorley, Jr., director of the East Middlesex district, at the Federation's awards dinner held Tuesday, May 11, at the Sheraton-Boston Hotel. Representing the Club as official delegates to the annual meeting were Mrs. Granville Gilpatrick, Mrs. Edmund Wright, and Mrs. Clifford Sundberg.

Mrs. Edward Mansfield, landscape design committee chairman, who outlined and submitted the winning entry, is vacationing in England. A cable of congratulation was sent her the following day by Mrs. James Mason, club president.

The Club's presentation contained a comprehensive report of a preliminary survey of Winchester's landscaping needs and a continuing program of its contemplated activities, proposed plans and completed projects.

Included in the latter category were the planting of shade trees at the hospital parking area last fall, and the Moraine locust trees behind the War Memorial at the Town Hall.

Not included was the major portion of the extensive protection now nearing completion along the west bank of the Aberjona at the Mill Pond. Although outlined in the planning stage, the actual

Special Open Hearing Called For May 26 On Town Recreation Needs

The Winchester Recreation Committee will hold a public meeting on Wednesday night, May 26, at 8 o'clock in the High School auditorium to present its concept of the town's recreational needs, to show how comprehensive plans for a community center can satisfy the town's requirements, and to obtain a public response from the townspeople on the issue.

At the open hearing the committee will briefly go over the history of the recreational facilities in Winchester and the attempts to get more here, and then will briefly review the history of the present three-year experimental project for the high school—noting its successes and showing why they point up to a very evident need for a community center for that age level especially.

This committee feels after studying, analyzing and experimenting for three years that the recreation facilities in Winchester are not adequate. True, there are playgrounds but these are summer facilities only and are not utilized by all age groups. There are school buildings which also are not adequate, primarily because of a lack of adequate types of space in a central location and/or utilization time available to the general public.

Basically, the committee feels there is a distinct lack of a well-developed, well-organized year-round recreation program for all age groups in this town.

Concrete plans will be offered the town May 26 for its support, views and criticism. The Recreation Committee hopes for a large attendance.

"We need a community building in town for recreation and civic gatherings," Recreation Committee chairman Richard Freeman said, "and I urge all interested townspeople to come to this public hearing on the issue and register their sentiments."

Town Faces $5 Million Building Decision As Proposals For New High School Plant Are Weighed Existing Winchester High School: Worth A $5 Million Addition, Renovation Plan?

QUESTION: To Move WHS from Center? ANSWER: New Building on Old—Hodgepodge?

The citizens of Winchester will be confronted next week with a $5 million capital secondary school building program decision in what will be the largest single financial undertaking in the history of the town.

The decision comes before the town at this time due to School Committee pressure on town government to provide more space and facilities for the exploding secondary school population, which has rapidly outpaced projections made in the early 1950's when the town determined it was necessary to construct two additions and an auditorium onto the present High School building—at a cost of $1,959,591, and the borrowing for which the town is only half-way paid up on, with $90,000 a year payments due up to 1974.

In addition, the secondary school building project comes before the town mere months in the wake of the annual Town Meeting's decision to appropriate $50,000 for plans and site preparation for a new elementary school at the Tufts Road site.

Community reaction to the secondary school building project in general is mostly one of accepting the facts but rejection of the proposed solution posed by the Permanent Building Committee's secondary school building subcommittee. Most citizens are of similar accord in not liking the idea of moving the high school away from the center of town, while they may disagree on alternative solutions.

At the 1963 annual Town Meeting the town delegated to the Permanent Building Committee "the duty of considering the situation of the secondary schools, study and consider plans for alterations, expansion, rearrangement of present facilities, consider any other locations...also to consider additions to any present school buildings or for the construction of any other building or buildings."

ANALYSIS

The PBC report concluded that "present secondary facilities have a capacity of 1,250 pupils in grades 7, 8 and 9 (assuming relocation of School Department central offices which now occupy academic space for 150 pupils in Lynch) and 900 pupils in grades 10, 11 and 12." The report emphasizes, however, "that facilities are required for an additional 150 pupils in the junior high grades, 300 pupils if the central offices are not moved, and for an additional 600 pupils in the senior high grades."

The recommended additional secondary school facilities space provisions are based on a planned 1,500 high school enrollment, and a junior high enrollment of 1,400—saying that these estimates could turn out low, depending on whether Winchester's total population ends up at 27,000 as predicted by various agencies, or whether it rises to 30,000 as projected by others.

5 ALTERNATIVES

After investigating many theoretical ways to provide the needed facilities, the PBC stated it believed there were only five solutions which appeared feasible, namely:

1. Build an addition of necessary size to the senior high school, and build an addition of necessary size to Lynch (or McCall) Junior High School. (This solution referred to as the "Addition Plan")
2. Build an addition of sufficient size to Lynch and remodel the present Lynch structure as required to house 1,500 senior high school pupils, making Lynch the senior high school and use the present senior high school and McCall's as junior high schools. (The solution referred to as "Lynch Plan")
3. Build a new junior high school of necessary size on a new site to provide, in conjunction with Lynch, for 1,400 junior high school pupils, and convert the present senior high school, McCall and a new structure of necessary size to be built adjoining McCall, into a "campus" senior high school for 1,500 pupils. (This solution, which is that recommended by Dr. Marshall, referred to as the "Marshall Plan")
4. Build a new senior high school of necessary size on a new site to accommodate 1,500 pupils in grades 10 through 12, keep Lynch as one junior high school, and utilize the present senior high school as a junior high school and as the permanent location for the School Department offices. (This solution referred to as the "New High School Plan")

Elements of these may be combined to form other solutions. One such combination, which merits separate consideration, was

5. Building an addition of sufficient size to the present senior high school, and remodelling the present structure, as required, to house 1,500 senior high school pupils, and constructing a new junior high school of necessary size on a new site to provide, in conjunction with Lynch, for 1,400 junior high school pupils. (This solution referred to as the "Combination Plan")

Strongly basing its recommendations on the Marshall Report and its own studies, the PBC noted that "the present high school is an inflexible structure...which does not lend itself to rearrangement in keeping with current educational (requirements and) thinking, or to subsequent changes to keep pace with future educational progress." (The committee was referring to the school system's attempt to keep pace with progressive innovations in the modern educational revolution, such as honors courses, team teaching, language labs, curriculum reform "enrichment," independent study, advanced placement, and non-graded classes, as well as room sizes and layouts and other space considerations.)

SOLUTION?

The PBC added that "nothing short of replacement would overcome the limitations which are inherent in the (high school) building," such as constricted circulation and guidance office spaces, inadequate and inappropriately located toilet and storage spaces, and the windows, wiring and heating arrangements that fit only the present structure and could not be rearranged.

The PBC therefore discounted the Marshall plan as adding the inflexibilty of McCall to the inflexibility of the high school; rejected the Addition and Combination Plans as adding another multi-story stop-gap measure that would be unrelated to the whole high school and become inflexible; and objected to the Lynch Plan as converting an excellent junior high into a poor senior high, requiring expansion beyond what the building will lend itself to.

Gala Annual En Ka Fair Fun Event This Weekend

One of the floats in En Ka's very big parade Saturday morning will feature the highly amusing Jug Band, which makes music with a pickle barrel, brown jug, washboard and kazoo plus banjo, bass and three guitars. The band includes Garth Nelson, Wissy Gustin, Colin Grey, Tony Sylvestri, Chuck Schipellite, Barry Weeks and Walter Howard.

Be sure to catch this year's impressive Street Fair Parade with its colorful floats (more than a dozen) one of which features an elaborate replica of the proposed new Rec Hall for Winchester Youth.

There'll be marching bands, local celebrities and four rare antique fire engines. The parade will leave the Winchester Theatre promptly at 9 a.m., traveling down Main Street to Church Street, from whence it will turn left on Waterfield Road and left again on Mystic Valley Parkway, following the Parkway to the island at the Library, the parade will turn left onto Washington Street, then Mt. Vernon Street and a left down to Main Street and the rotary in the Center, circling the rotary, it will follow Main Street to Mystic Valley Parkway and a right turn to the Fair Grounds (Manchester Field) for the flag raising ceremony.

This parade promises to be the longest and most outstanding parade ever. Much hard work and ingenuity is being put into the elaborate floats; they are not to be missed.

Friday night's hootenanny and Saturday morning's parade are, of course, but two of the myriad attractions of the En Ka Sunflower Street Fair.

Scholarship Fund Aims For $20,000

Otto Schaefer, chairman of the Winchester Scholarship Fund, revealed at a recent interview the goal of the current fund drive must exceed last year's total of $17,000.

"We are now entering our 20th anniversary year," said Mr. Schaefer, "and, to date, have aided 326 Winchester High School graduates with financial grants totaling $133,250. To meet the expenses of the new scholarship recipients of 1965, and to maintain the currently existing scholarships it will be necessary to have close to $20,000 for this purpose."

John Dolan, Bob Costello and Harris Richardson, Jr. of the finance committee fully endorse Mr. Schaefer's urgent message.

"Cost of education today has increased 100 per cent in the realm of private and state institutions over the past 20 years," explained Mr. Dolan urging citizens to "Buy a Share in the future of our town."

Contributions may be sent to Charles Butler at the Winchester Trust Company, and are tax deductible.

41% Spent On Schools In Middlesex County, In Winchester, 50%; National Average 44%

How does the cost of education in Midlesex County compare with that in other parts of the country?

What proportion of local spending is for school construction and maintenance, for teachers salaries and for other school costs?

As is the case in every community in the nation, from the largest to the smallest, local officials are struggling with the problem of how to provide enough educational facilities to take care of the ever-rising tide of young people.

A Federal study of expenditures for education, covering every section of the United States, shows that such costs, in general, are more than twice those of any other single function of government.

In Middlesex County approximately 41.3 per cent of all public spending is for education. In some communities the proportion is somewhat less than that and, in others, much more.

The average nationally is 44-1 percent. In the State of Massachusetts it is 37.7 percent.

The study of local government expenditures, made every five years, is based on data compiled by the Census Bureau for its current Census of Governments. The previous one was in 1957.

The report shows that total spending in Middlesex County for all public purposes amounted in the year to $240.43 per local resident. Some $99.39 of this was for education.

School Bus Transportation Problem Analyzed, Discussed

Recent School Department surveys and the Permanent Building Committee's Secondary School Report make available comparative transportation figures relative to the proposed new 1500 pupil high school on the Turkey Ridge site.

State law reaquires towns to transport pupils who live more than 2 miles from the schools they attend. Based on the projected 1972 total public school renrollment of 6,000 plus 1,000 non-public school students, the School Department has estimated Winchester's bussing obligations. Under the New High School Plan, transporting these students would require 17 busses at a cost to the Town of $35,000.

Although the estimated gross cost for this 17 bus schedule is $76,500, the cost to the Town would remain at $35,000 due to a State law which pays for all transportation costs incurred by a community over a certain amount.

The State aid formula pays $5 times the number of pupils in the net daily average transported. In Winchester this comes to $35,000, an amount which the Town is expected to reach by 1972. Therefore, for four of the five plans outlined by the Permanent Building Committee, the transportation cost to the Town would be the same or $8,000 more than the $27,000 currently expended.

The Permanent Building Committee Report states that these estimates contemplate a bus schedule which, in the case of the New High School Plan, "would provide bus service twice in the afternoon after the regular bus trips at the close of school, which will add much to convenience (but will not increase cost)." No increase in cost is figured since the Town is billed

THE ADVOCATE AND THE ADVISED. Like the famous epistemologist Socrates, Austin Broadhurst, chairman of the secondary school building committee, argues the "final solution" new high school proposal against all sceptics—governmental and public—through adroit definition analysis of the problem and by careful examination of all elements of consideration. Here the Selectmen, Planning Board, and full building committee are being briefed by Mr. Broadhurst on latest developments before the May 24 special Town Meeting decision determines what course of action the town will take. At that time, the advised will advise the town on what the advocate has advised.

Lifeline for Older Citizens A Social Science

Lifeline, Greater Boston's free daily telephone reassurance service for senior citizens, celebrated its first anniversary on May 1.

During the past year, Lifeline has made thousands upon thousands of daily phone calls to senior citizens who live alone, in every section of Greater Boston, to make certain they are in good health, and to offer any assistance that may be needed.

In addition, Lifeline maintains constant contact with relatives and spiritual advisers of many senior citizens who require help above and beyond their regular daily phone call. Lifeline also sends birthday and suitable holiday cards to all its members.

In the event of an emergency, a Lifeline volunteer, or the local police, is sent to the home of the senior citizen requesting help. A free ambulance service is also available.

Lifeline is sponsored by Rescue, Inc., Boston's non-sectarian and non-profit prevention group. Rev. Kenneth B. Murphy, president of Rescue, Inc., is director of Lifeline.

"It is an attempt to bring a little cheerfulness into the lives of the senior citizens. It is an effort to show them that, if only for a few minutes each day, somebody does care about them."

The priest said that since the Lifeline service was inaugurated, many of the senior citizens on it have become close friends. "We started by calling them," he said, "and eventually many of the senior citizens started exchanging daily telephone calls among themselves."

Father Murphy said Lifeline has more than 300 members. "To be exact, we have 305 members," he said. "Our monthly phone bill is immense. But it's a pleasure to pay it, even though we have to scrape sometimes to raise the funds."

"Our second anniversary goal is 600 members," Father Murphy said. "There are countless senior citizens all over Greater Boston who could take advantage of our free telephone reassurance service. We hope they will contact us at GA 7-2212.

Secondary School Building Committee Questions, Answers

Four open meetings to discuss the secondary school building committee's report were held in the last two weeks. Groups of town meeting members and townspeople desirous of learning more about the important proposals to be brought before the town meeting on Monday evening listened intently.

There were questions asked, and there were answers given by the chairman of the school committee, Mrs. Robert Grenzeback, and by the spokesman for the building committee, Mr. Austin Broadhurst. Here is a sampling:

1. What are the underlying causes of the shortage of space in the high school?

There are three factors: growth of school population, (the growth was 2 and one-half times that of the population of the whole), vast changes in education, and an inadequate, inflexible school that cannot be efficiently adapted to present high school needs.

2. When did these changes show up?

At the time of World War II new methods of teaching were devised to help soldiers learn at a faster rate. The outgrowth was an educational revolution which came into existence just after the addition to the high school with its uniform-size rooms and rigid layout.

3. How large a school does the town need?

By 1972, high school enrollment is estimated to be 1500. Winchester is approaching its maximum growth. If the town plans wisely and builds a school that is adaptable and expandable, the secondary school problem will be solved for an indefinite period.

4. How is a building planned?

The school department computes the number of student and teaching spaces needed for each area of study. Upon review by the Massachusetts School Building Assistance Commission, these so-called "educational specifications" are given to the building committee and the architects who translate them into working drawings. The building is fitted to the pupils, not the pupils to the building.

5. What are some of the features not available in the present building?

Storage space is scant; library and cafeteria are inadequate. Rooms of varying size are needed. Conference rooms are absent; science labs are crowded. Corridors and stairways are congested. There are 20 more teachers than there are classrooms.

6. Will an addition alleviate these conditions?

Labs can be added, as can classrooms, but the core of the building will still be congested, its corridors having been originally built for junior high students. The end result would be an inflexible building.

7. Have all sites been considered?

Yes. All undeveloped land was investigated. Many parcels were not of sufficient acreage.

8. How about filling in Wedge Pond?

This body of water is a "great pond" and would require legislative acts to fill it in. Construction costs would be prohibitive.

9. What is good about the Turkey Ridge site?

It has the necessary acreage. It is bordered by a highway. It is removed from the noise of Main Street traffic. It can be the site of a flexible, expandable building with plenty of room for parking, access roads, and playing fields.

10. What about transportation?

Winchester now spends upwards of $25,000, will go to $27,000 soon for transportation of students. The maximum amount the town will spend is $35,000 according to state formula. Beyond $35,000, the cost of bus transportation will be assumed by the state.

11. Why not build schools higher?

Anything above three stories is impractical because of student traffic problems, the need for elevators with increased cost and maintenance, and the wasteful repitition of space needed on each floor for storage, lavatories, and custodial equipment and facilities.

12. Which are more important, teachers or buildings?

No question about it. Teachers are by far more important. W. Howard Niblock, principal of the high school, made this assertion, but added that teachers like every one else, consider working conditions and will go where salaries and good working conditions are present.

13. What about "state aid?"

State aid is available for new construction. No state aid is given for work done inside existing buildings.

14. What about comparative costs?

The estimated costs presented by the building committee reveal that the new high school plan is actually the most economical because it releases other facilities for use at the junior high and elementary levels.

15. Is Winchester "second to none" in education?

No. Winchester is a good school system but not in the forefront. Other communities have been catching up in recent years. Since our students are going to compete with students from other towns for jobs and college places, we must maintain a good position, comparatively, with other school systems.

Walk on Left Facing Traffic, Says AAA

Never turn your back on traffic, the American Automobile Association warned today. In order to avoid danger you must be able to see it.

Richard W. Hoover, safety director for AAA's Massachusetts Division, said: "Walking with, instead of against, traffic is a dangerous habit and contributes to many pedestrian deaths and injuries.

Bostonians are learning pedestrain rules in connection with the Boston Pedestrian Lifesaving Campaign which recently got underway. Pedestrians in suburban areas must remember this basic safe walking rule — WALK ON LEFT FACING TRAFFIC.

"With warmer weather bringing increased traffic and pedestrian activity," said Hoover, "this is an essential rule to follow. Many motorists have difficulty in seeing people walking on the street and pedestrians must take the responsibility by watching for on-coming cars and facing traffic."

A safety poster illustrating the theme, "Walk on the Left Facing Traffic" is being distributed to schools in Massachusetts as part of AAA's continuing safety education program.

The new poster, designed by John Hemphill, 18, a student at Norman High School, Norman, Oklahoma, was a first-place winner in the American Automobile Association's National Traffic Safety Poster Contest.

Auto Registration Listings to Cost Money Henceforth

Registrar of Motor Vehicles, Richard E. McLaughlin, plans to discontinue free telephone information relative to automobile registration listings, a function which costs the Commonwealth more than $50,000 per year, he said.

Registrar McLaughlin emphasized that the regular listing service will continue to be available to all law enforcement agencies of the Commonwealth on a round-the-clock, seven day basis, as in the past.

Henceforth, when citizens wish such listing information they must apply through their local police departments or go, personally, to the Registry in Boston. A fee of 50 cents per listing will be charged for requests emanating from other than police sources.

McLaughlin said that the expected reduction in telephone listing work and the revenue from the 50 cent fee would result in a net gain to the Commonwealth of more than $100,000 per annum. More than this, he said, about half of the clerical force now assigned to these duties could be reassigned to other Registry activities which are now in arrears because of personnel shortages.

Commenting upon the change, Registrar McLaughlin said this free telephone listing service has been much abused in Massachusetts. We are, he said, so far as he can determine, the only state in the Union which has carried on such a costly gratuitous service and, moreover, the uncontrolled release of such information represents a threat to the privacy and personal security of our citizens. McLaughlin said, "There is no knowing how many times such information has been obtained by criminals as a means of identifying potential victims. There will be no impediment to the legitimate release of this information to people who have good cause to obtain it but we are going to put an end to serving as a free information center for 'cranks, crackpots and criminals.' "

The new plan will go into effect as of June 1, the Registrar said, provided necessary approval is given by Commissioner McCarthy of Administration and Finance.

Flood Of Marriages Looms In Winchester

Winchester will be witnessing a sharp increase during the next few years in the number of its young people who will be getting married.

The reason is that there has been a pronounced rise in the young adult population.

According to figures released by the U.S. Census Bureau, there are now no less than 1,389 young men and women of the local area who are in the prime marrying ages, 20 to 24. This is considerably more than were in that age bracket five years ago.

The prospect of these approaching marriages is a happy one all around. But none are happier about them than the local retail merchants. Their rapture is enhanced by the fact that each new wedlock means a new household and each new household means thousands of dollars of new business.

In actual figures, according to surveys that have been made, an average of $1,200 is spent by a couple, or by their parents, on the engagement and wedding, and about $3,500 in the first year in equipping their home.

The amount of potential spending in Winchester, at this rate, based on 690 prospective marriages in the local group, comes to $3,243,000.

Few of these young people, just starting out, have the resources to handle such costs on their own. But they have a big plus going for them, as one economist put it.

They can count on an ample supply of financial assistance from their parents, who are prepared, in most cases, to help them through the early stages of getting settled.

All phases of the local economy stand to gain from the zip in business that this new spending will generate. Each new household will require rugs, furniture, pots and pans, dishes, linens, draperies, blankets, electrical equipment and the like.

The Government's figures also show that the number of young adults in Winchester will be still larger next year and will increase for several years beyond that. In 1970, they will total 1,998.

Because of the large number throughout the country who will be reaching the marrying stage in the near future, "it is a mistake to conclude that the baby boom is over," points out the Population Reference Bureau.

For The Birds

It was "Make Way for Ducklings" day here on Monday.

It was for spring. It was for motherhood. It was for survival. It was for the demonstration of the courtesy and innate protective instincts of Winchester's finest.

It all came about when Sherman Russell of 1 Wolcott Road looked out his window and saw a very special procession going by. A mother Mallard duck was making her way out of the woods toward Long Pond and onto Wolcott Road with 12 tiny ducklings in disciplined procession behind her.

Duckmanitarian Russell went immediately to his phone and alerted Police Headquarters. At headquarters Officer Richard Beaton put out a quick call for car 51, cruising the East side of town.

With equal dispatch officers Alfred Poole and Donald Piggott manning Car 51 hastened to the scene.

By this time Mrs. Duck had made her way across Highland Avenue and was headed down Eaton Street, her precious formation obediently following, making their tiny legs work like their mechanical counterparts.

Officers Piggott and Poole went ahead and, lights aflashing, held up the traffic at Washington Street, drivers and pedestrians alike wondering what the emergency occurence was that demanded such attention.

With the assurance and confidence of someone who fully expected such an escort and such protection from the officers of the law, mother duck led her brood in state across Washington. Then, making like the crows, although not on the wing, she led them straight up the long steps of the St. Mary's schoolhouse, around to its back and down the embankment behind the convent toward the Shore Road Field.

At this point a slight emergency occurred, necessitating the active help of Officer Piggott, who was shepherding on foot, while Officer Poole drove the cruiser. Heading toward the field, mother duck cut across and became caught in a wire fence which was on its side. The officer obliged, and held the fence away while the ten feathered travellers got through. Thence they went under the playing field fence, across the field, under the fence again and, again with the assistance of the officers, the lights, and the traffic control, into the part of the Aberjona which is between Shore Road and the railroad overpass.

In addition to the many verbal comments and accolades which came their way for their service the following telegram addressed to Officers Poole and Piggott at Police Headquarters was received Tuesday.

"Congratulations on your kind and humanitarian act of yesterday, May 17, when above and beyond the call of duty you escorted a mother duck and her 10 ducklings across Skillings Road to the safety of the river. If any one says 'you're for the birds' I'll have to admit, 'it's true.'" (signed, only "a citizen.")

As one might imagine the father instinct of the officers has kept them on watch for their adopted family since the episode. But, as of yesterday morning, the brood had not been sighted. They would sleep better if they had a more recent report.

The Winchester Star

Established 1880 By Theodore P. Wilson, Sr.

Editorials:

Monumental Decision

The town must make up its mind this next week on what it is going to provide in terms of educational plant facilities for secondary school students here.

A building study committee was appointed two years ago and it has been actively working on the problem and possible solutions during that time—time when the size of the high school was rapidly diminishing as the size of the classes increased. The committee has finished its research, concluded its analyses, established proposed recommendations, and has now even corroborated its findings through independent findings of private professional companies. Their proposal is a confrontation with fact, analyses and recommendation—a call to action; and it cannot be bypassed for another year, lightly skipped over as a non-problem, or junked as being the wrong approach or answer.

The problems and attendant factors have been clearly stated in the press and in public meetings, on many occasions in the past few months, as have the proposed alternative solutions. Every possible aid to the decision-making process has been made available—all kinds of charts and statistics, cost figures, population and planning figures, and even letters of opinion publicized through the newspaper. No one can say that information hasn't been made available or that they haven't had an opportunity to learn or be heard.

Winchester has had a particularly rough time in its school building and planning programs. Almost without exception the course here has been to build too little too late, and often incorrectly, to add insult to injury. If we can take this past "experience" as any basis upon which to find an approach toward making up our minds as to what the town should decide, then the answer should be incontrovertible: start from stratch with a new building in a new location that can incorporate everything desirable (but especially flexibility and room for expansion in the future). This is, in fact, the urgently proposed solution. And it is a good solution—despite the fact that the majority of the townspeople can't exactly take a cotton to the new concept of having a high school outside the center of town.

We need to go along with this point of view: If a new high school has to be built it should be built in or near the center of town; and if we can get by without building a whole new school, but can make an addition, fine, let's take that easier and cheaper "solution." We go along, that is, as far as it goes with a hypothesis. However, if a new high school has to be built there is no really large enough tract near the center of town without involving a considerable amount of property takings. On the other hand, in 1954 the town decided it could get by with just an addition or two onto the high school, but that was merely postponing the problem—and here we are, this week, same problem, same tough decision. Let's not repeat that earlier "economic" blunder. We can't solve the problem by adding more hodgepodge onto what has already become a hodgepodge at the high school. This is the year for a new and final solution if we don't want to have to involve ourselves with building additions every five to ten years on old buildings.

Most of the objection to building the new high school on the Turkey Ridge site is not, ironically, the high cost—but on pure location and busing. Remember the controversy ten years ago over the railroad overpass: how it was going to ruin the appearance of the town, how it was going to deflate property values, etc.? Same idea here: the high school will lower property values (others think it might raise them!), the school will ruin the appearance of the prime residential area, and transportation would be costly and difficult to arrange. The basic issue in both cases is overlooked: the railroad overpass was built for safety and to speed traffic over and through the center; and the secondary school building solution should be a construction project aimed at providing the best educational plant for the youth of the town.

Looking at the basic issue, the background information and analyses provided by the secondary school building committee, and other factors involved, there can be only one really right answer: build a new high school outside the center of town and it looks like it will have to be on the Turkey Ridge site. We would rather there could be a better solution to suggest; but unfortunately, there isn't—and that is what we have to work with.

While there is a general opposition in the community to that solution, it is without substantial or announced leadership. One reason this is the case is that no one can come up with what is really a better solution. While we can wish there would be a better and more central site; we must face the fact that the land just isn't there as it used to be, and we must work with what we have. Thus, the disinclination to accept the recommended project for the proposed site is fruitless without a substitute proposal for this pressing secondary school space need, and every conceivable avenue of hope has been investigated.

The time for decision is now; and later, we hope, we will be able to look back and say, for once, we did the right thing—if reluctantly, because it was a new concept and we were well informed and advised.

Tribute To Our Lawmaker To Stand Up And Be Counted

Winchester's quiet, conservative legislator who lives up on Everett Avenue is on the front pages again.

The town's moderator, better known to many of the younger generation as their first ice hockey coach and to others as the man who comes into WHS history classes now and again to give an inside story on State government, Representative Harrison Chadwick, is getting what might be called a real good press this week.

The long-awaited official publication of the Massachusetts Crime Commission has shook the Capitol, Boston, the whole state and to some extent the nation. And Winchester can boast of the key part played in this historic expose by its favorite son legislator.

"A final tribute should go to Harrison Chadwick of Winchester, who tried a long time ago, all by himself, to expose these practices," said nationally known Louis Lyons, Channel 2 news analyst, as he wound up a stirring commentary on the commission report on Tuesday night.

"Rep. Harrison Chadwick (is) a lawmaker whose views are certain to be heard in the weeks ahead because of his involvement in the events that led up to passage of the crime commission legislation in 1962 . . .," said the Boston Herald yesterday on page one.

Representative Chadwick, as the saying goes, "stuck his neck out" in the name of good government. And as a result he had his head chopped off. But the squeals, screams and curses of those whose private and public rackets have been scrutinized and now publicized by the commission can only be sweet music to his ears.

Long an advocate of a State investigation by a crime commission, Mr. Chadwick in 1961 went before the CBS cameras as a postlude to their documentary, "Biography of a Bookie Joint," nationally one of the top-rating TV shows of the year. In a typically qualified and underplayed appearance, he allowed as how he thought yes indeed, there was a good deal of corruption here in Massachusetts and that some of it did, regretfully, stem from the lawmakers themselves.

His outraged co-legislators proceeded to hand him an official censure and, in the same unemotional, matter-of-fact way he accepted it. But the hullaballoo and his persistence had a good deal to do with the iniation of the commission.

Last year the men on Capitol Hill rescinded his censure, some perhaps with a realistic insight as to what was to come. And again Harrison, outwardly at least, seemed unimpressed.

It is interesting to conjecture what headlines and how much film footage might have gone to a man of a different temperament who had made for himself the same opportunity to top news coverage.

The script was perfect. The lone good man against the many bad men. It was and is a first-class Western—excuse us—Eastern.

But it is equally possible to deduce that it is just this modest Yankee stick-to-it-iveness, this equanimity of temperament, which has allowed Mr. Chadwick to continue with his invaluable work with no more fanfare than a good farmer tilling, sowing and reaping.

Winchester will continue to watch the drama with justifiable pride in its dedicated legislator, who is not afraid to stand up, even alone, and be counted.

Notes From The Police Blotter . . . . . Sad Ones

Recent stories have noted the efforts of Cub Scouts to clean up the town, the fine accomplishments of youthful scientists in grade school science projects and the willing offers of help by young boys to Home and Garden planters. These things are good, they often go unmentioned, they occur often.

But what of these notes, appearing in the last two weeks on the listing at Police Headquarters?

Over the weekend there were three calls to headquarters reporting street fights in town. Two were on Main Street (see front page story for one) and one on Everett Avenue.

Last Tuesday it was reported from Ginn Road that boys on the tracks were throwing stones at nearby homes and last Thursday that boys were firing pellets at a home on Francis Circuit.

There have been recent thefts of plants from graves in Wildwood Cemetery. (The cemetery personnel report it to be the work of older boys.)

One of the most startling and one of the most potentially tragic was this one which occurred Sunday afternoon at Wedge Pond:

An 11 year old boy who lives on Combridge Street was rowing a boat with two yonger boy passengers under parental instruction to keep them close to the shore. While skirting the land between the beach and the apartment house, he heard a boy yell, "Come on, here comes a boat now!" There followed a steady barrage of well aimed stones, thrown from the shore by four boys about 16 to 18. The rower made for the middle of the pond as quickly as he could, but not until he himself had received a gash on the shoulder.

It could easily have been his head.

Secondary School Decision: Modern High School Asked

1965 VIEW OF 1955 HIGH SCHOOL ADDITION: $1,959,591 project ten years ago to answer existing need for more secondary educational plant space. Town now pays $90,000 annually on balance of approximately $890,000—until 1974.

IN SUMMARY, THE PBC RECOMMENDS:

- That the Town now provide secondary school facilities to house a total of 1,500 pupils in the 10th, 11th and 12th grades and a total of 1,400 pupils in the 7th, 8th and 9th grades;
- That these facilities be provided by constructing a new senior high school to accommodate 1,500 pupils and that the present Senior High School and Lynch Junior High School be utilized as junior high schools; and
- That the new senior high school be constructed in the vacant tract of land located southerly of Johnson Road, westerly of the Catalano development, Girard Road and Parkhurst School, northerly of High Street and easterly of Ridge Street.

ADOPTION OF RECOMMENDATIONS, THE PBC BELIEVES, WILL:

- Provide a senior high school structure which will promote and not hold back the quality of education Winchester makes available to its high school students;
- Provide superior junior high school facilities;
- Make readily possible any expansion which unexpected population increase or program changes may require;
- Avoid disruption of and any material expenditures on present facilities;
- Provide a permanent home in the present Senior High School for the School Department central offices, now temporarily housed at Lynch; and
- Make McCall Junior High School available for use as an elementary school structure, thus contributing to a solution of the elementary school space problem.

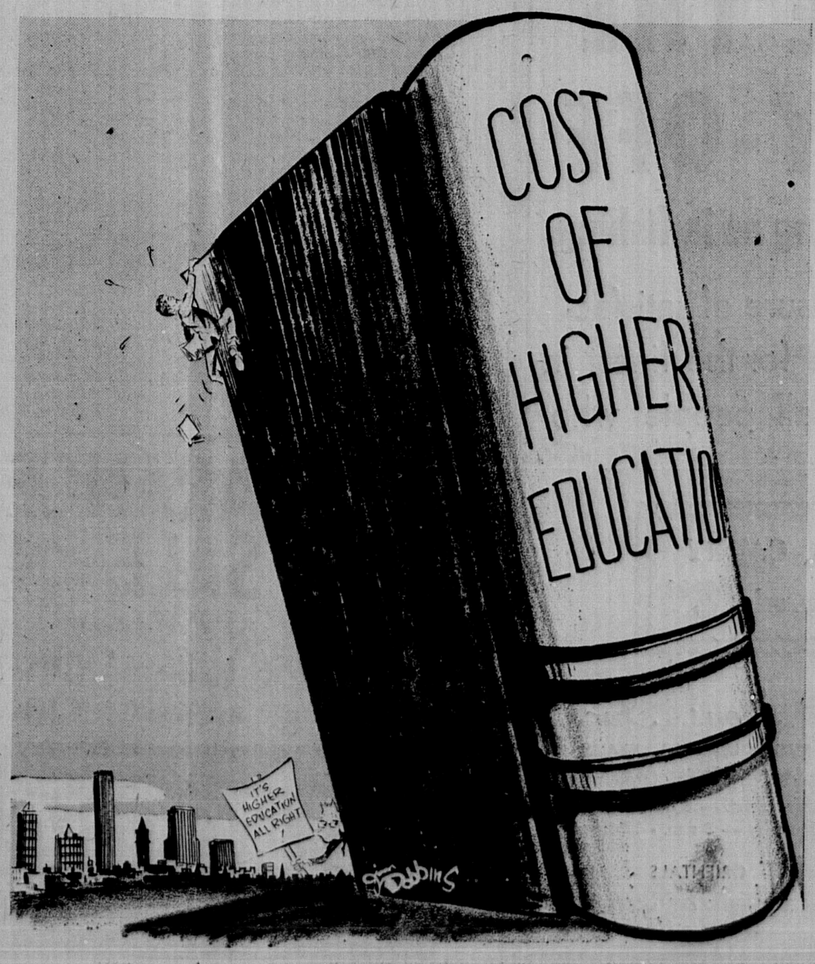
The Higher Cost Of Winchester Education



BOOK REVIEW

by Martha McGowan
Winchester Public Library

I WILL TRY

by Legson Kayira

How important is the college education one can receive in the United States? What efforts and sacrifices is it worth? These questions fail to trouble many Americans. Either the way to higher learning stretches easy and inevitable before them, or they decide early to limit their progress along it. The answers to the two questions have long occupied the author of this recently published personal narrative, however, and have drawn him on a frequently painful journey over half the globe and through many years.

Legson Kayira, now in his early twenties, began life in a small village of Nyasaland in South Africa. His childhood was spent in a culture just emerging into self-awareness. Beginnings of African nationalism contended there with what was regarded as the repressive influence of British protectorate status. Recourse was still had to primitive beliefs and rituals in times of desperation, although the missionary work of the Scottish Presbyterian Church, in particular, had brought Christianity to the native population and—almost as important—established its own schools, open to all.

One of these, the Livingstonia Secondary School, provided young Legson's earliest formal education and gave him the motto "I will try," which he made his own for life. At "Livingstonia" he learned also of Abraham Lincoln and of his rise from poverty to greatness. Lincoln became his ideal. He read the ageless Pilgrim's Progress. It became his vade mecum. He heard of America and her educational opportunities. They became his goal.

Upon graduation in 1958, leaving family and friends behind him, he set out alone to walk the length of Africa in hopes of eventually reaching an Egyptian seaport and thence, ultimately, the West. During the trek, which lasted two years in all, he supported himself by odd jobs, usually gardening or hod-carrying. He mixed with unfamiliar peoples and came to know more of Africa's turbulent political situation.

At Kampala in Uganda, in 1960, his African journey finally ended. During his free time there, he grew accustomed to reading omnivorously in a library maintained by the U. S. Information Service. One day, purely by chance, he happened upon a handbook of American junior colleges. Its pages fell open to a description of Skagit Valley Junior College in Washington State. Legson decided then and there that this school was his objective.

From this point his story becomes one which reflects credit on Skagit Valley, persons in the American diplomatic corps, and many others. Wheels began to turn for him both in Africa and the United States. Legson was at last enabled to realize his dream.

The account of a boy's life in modern Africa which is found in I Will Try by itself makes the book well worth reading. When to this is added an obviously intelligent young African's reflections upon his own background as well as upon the culture he came to know during three years of study in America, the book becomes highly interesting for its contemporary relevance. Above all, I Will Try merits attention for its inspiring message concerning the importance of educational opportunities as felt by the underprivileged peoples of the world.

Recommended for young adults.

The Last Word On Mondo Cane

Editor of the Star:

Restrictive dog laws do no good! Owners, whose dogs are allowed to run wild harming children, adults, and property, are people who will let their dogs run loose no matter what laws are passed. Montclair, New Jersey, Rochester, New York, Schenectady, New York, and Daytona Beach, Florida, have found that severe chaining laws do not stop dogs from running free. Such laws please the frustrated few; for the good dog lover owner and for his pet, these laws begin to limit every human's right to the pursuit of happiness.

Every dog can be a gentleman. Many intelligent owners can be trained to be responsible for themselves and their dogs' actions. Dog training obedience classes are tops in producing well-behaved owners and obedient dogs. Obedience-trained owners and dogs are welcomed everywhere; for an obedience dog heels quietly by its owner's side—on leash or off, sits when owner stops, stays where owner places it until spoken or signal command to go is given, goes down on signal or voice command, and retrieves and jumps on command. Obedience dogs know and stop when they hear the word "no," no matter who says it.

An obedience-trained dog is a responsible member of any community. His owner receives valuable training also in the everyday common courtesy of being directly accountable for what too many people consider a nuisance. Unfortunately, few people know anything about obedience-trained dogs. Sure—dogs can be trained at home. How do they behave in public or with other dogs around—off leash?

Any dog, mixed breed or bluest blood, can be obedience trained. The problems are in training the dog's owner. Obedience clubs are in many cities. Any obedience club will be more than delighted to give an interested group in Winchester the start and knowledge necessary to have well-trained, responsible owners and obedient dogs. Framingham has a fine club.

Some dog owners are hopeless; but every dog can be a gentleman and is much happier for it. The thoughtless, selfish owner will not train his dog; nothing will teach him better manners; no law will prevent him from doing as he pleases with his dog.

Sincerely,
Deborah Wadsworth Hoyt

"Operation Y" Group Favors Rec. Hearing

Editor of the Star:

The "Operation Y" committee was happy to read of the May 26th open hearing on town recreation needs. If a community center is what the people of Winchester want, we hope we may still be able to help even in some small way.

However, since the type of plan is still undecided, we feel we must follow through with the showing of the film on "You too can have a branch YMCA" along with two scheduled speakers: Eugene Turner, associate area secretary in charge of extension for the New England area YMCA; and, Peter Post, executive secretary for the Woburn branch of YMCA. This is so the town may have some first-hand knowledge of this type of program. The town is invited on May 30 at 7:30 p.m. to the Crawford Memorial Methodist Church, the Sr. Fellowship is turning over their regular fellowship time in support of our hoped-for public service.

We still thank the recreation committee and hope to work together toward a solution.

Swim Club Plan Is Commended

Editor of the Star:

On behalf of many interested residents of this town, sincere thanks to Austin Broadhurst, directors, and other working associates of the Winchester Swim Club for their fine presentation to the Board of Appeals on May 11.

The proponents of this proposed swimming facility exhibited thoughtful research, consideration in planning, foresight, and a respectful attitude toward their opponents.

In the manner of their presentation I believe the Board of Appeals was provided ample evidence of the quality of leadership behind this non-profit project.

Sincerely yours,

Early Sunday Fire On Worthen Road Is Investigated

The state fire marshal's office has joined the Winchester Fire and Police Departments in investigation of the origin of a fire which took place at 3:30 a.m. Sunday at 7 Worthen Road, at the home of Loring P. Gleason.

The Gleasons were in Gloucester at the time of the fire, which started in a pile of firewood on the home's breezeway and extended up a wall to the attic of the breezeway and down into the home.

The breezeway and part of the roof burned, causing a considerable amount of damage.

Fire headquarters received notice of the fire from the Gibbons home across the road when John Gibbons looked over and saw the flames and reflection. Engine 4 with Captain Connolly driving and Lt. Welch and Fireman Nash aboard responded, along with the resuce truck with Fireman Haggerty and the ladder with Fireman Sullivan. Chief Francis Amico was notified and took charge; and subsequently Box 561 was rung, with Arlington called to send a truck to help cover the station.

At 4:40 the fire was under control but not entirely out, and the recall did not sound until 5:55 a.m. The sleeping neighborhood had come quickly to life, and a large number of citizens witnessed the fire.

A large part of the damage accrued from the heavy smoke which filled the living quarters of the home, even though the fire itself did not reach that area.

Chief Amico and a lieutenant from the fire marshal's office are continuing investigation of the unknown cause of the fire. The owners had been away from their home since Friday.

Democratic Town Committee

There will be a meeting of the Committee this evening in the East Room, Town Hall. Several important matters will be discussed and acted upon and a social hour with chairman Bee Wilson and her dependable assistants will round out the evening.

How fortunate we are to have these fine qualified ladies; their able handling of the social part of our get-togethers has not only elicited praise from those who enjoy our local affairs, but has spread afar through the state, our reputation for hospitality and ultra-delicious food.

We received a cordial letter from Senator Ted Kennedy which was dated the day before he left for London to participate in the exercises which will forever honor his brother, former President John F. Kennedy.

The Senator's letter was an answer to our congratulations on his fine work in helping to have a poll tax amendment added to the Civil Rights Bill. We are so proud of him.

In his reply he wrote to our chairman, "I want you to know how much I appreciate the wonderful job you are doing in Winchester, and how much I value your support. I was sorry to learn that you have been ill, and I hope this finds you well on the road to a complete recovery."

What splendid representation he is giving our state and how proud we are to have him on the job in Washington. He was a true prophet when he said, "I could do more for Massachusetts."

In reading the account of Ted's thorough preparation on the poll tax amendment, we were delighted to see in the papers that one of his three Harvard legal advisers was Professor Mark DeWolf Howe. He will be remembered as the most important educator in Massachusetts in the fight to defeat Ted in his campaign for the Senate.

Well, time marches on!

Who, indeed, among the honored patriots who set our country free, could ever envisage that this month, only 189 years after the outbreak of our war with Britain, the young Queen of that nation, would dedicate a memorial to our late young President, John F. Kennedy? And how eminently fitting that the acre of green field on which the monument stands is part of the sacred field of Runnymede, where that ancient country succeeded in forcing King John, through the efforts of the English Barons, to grant it the Magna Carta, the foundation of the people's rights in England and the model for our own country's Bill of Rights.

We will meet promptly at 8 o'clock this evening.

Urge Adoption Of Building Comm. Recommendations

Editor of the Star:

The undersigned former selectmen and former members of the School Committee are in favor of a new 1,500-pupil high school on the Turkey Ridge site (i.e.: on the west side hill between High Street and Johnson Road, lying in general across from the Vinson-Owen School and between Ridge Street and the Parkhurst School) for these reasons:

1. It is the only solution which makes possible new facilities built and designed in the mid-1960's to accommodate a modern educational program requiring flexibility in size and function of teaching and study space. All other solutions involve the reworking and remodeling of older structures already once reworked and remodeled and not readily adaptable structurally to meet today's requirements and the probable requirements for the next twenty to forty years.
2. It is the only solution which provides adequate playground facilities for a 1,500-pupil building and at the same time provides space for future expansion, if events in the 1970's prove the 1,500-pupil projection too modest.
3. It is the only solution which obviates the necessity of taking a substantial number of homes in order to provide enlarged playground facilities, which might be required if existing buildings were enlarged and remodeled and suitable playground space were to be acquired adjacent to those buildings.
4. It is the only solution which makes the McCall School available for elementary school use, and thus makes it possible to defer for some years at least the need for a second new elementary schcol. As an added plus factor it would also eliminate the need for building new school department offices at some place in the center, because school department offices can readily be accommodated in the present senior high school, when it becomes a junior high.
5. It is the only solution which can fairly be said to be a permanent long-time solution of our senior high school problem. Any supposed solution calling for additions to existing buildings at existing sites, such as has been attempted in the past for the senior high school, will result in the problem coming up to haunt us once again in the next ten or fifteen years.
6. We are satisfied that the probable economies of operating a new building will offset in some measure the admittedly higher transportation costs (borne for the most part by the State, however) for bussing students. We do not believe nostalgia for a high school in the center or sentiment for keeping things as they are should be a controlling factor in the opinion of citizens who rank quality of education above sentiment.
7. The building committee's current estimates of the cost of the new high school indicate that it will add about $3.70 to the tax rate the first year (and less later). This is important money — but any other program will also be expensive. In fact, the committee's estimates show that any program which will provide for school department offices and elementary school relief will cost at least as much as, if not more than, the proposed new high school.

For these reasons then we urge town meeting members to adopt the building committee's recommendations at the town meeting and we also request our fellow citizens to call their town meeting representatives and ask them to support the committee's program at the town meeting.

Enjoy a Ride While Mowing

work on this area was begun after the contest closing date of April 1, and may qualify as a completed activity in next year's competition.

The announcement that it had won the citation put fresh enthusiasm into the club's planting program at the Mill Pond.

Planting Project

Early last Thursday morning a group of eight members under the supervision of Mrs. Alexander Aitken, met at the center to receive the first delivery of shrubs. Dressed in work clothes, gloves, sneakers, and equipped with an assortment of shovels and buckets they went about the task of planting more than 100 laurel and azaleas with a determination and good humor that survived mishaps, aching muscles and mud, as well as heat, rain and curious spectators.

Like most construction jobs it was not without its sidewalk superintendents. Their number included shoppers, merchants, police, firemen, mothers, children, dogs and ducks. They came and left and came back. All were interested, many were encouraging. Some were helpful.

Among these were Jack Kimball and Capt. Michael Connolly of the fire department who came to the rescue of the ladies who were bailing water out of the pond with pails to water the plants. They set up a portable pump with a fifty foot hose and came back several times during the day to change its position along the embankment until the entire area was watered.

The planters received an additional lift in spirits when four little boys, aged 8 and 9 came by and offered to help. They were Joseph and Ralph Skerry, Mike and Paul Batalis.

Good Story

Word of the big "diggings" at the center travelled beyond Winchester too. An out of town newspaper sent a reporter who got a good story, although his photographer just missed getting the picture, when the club's president-elect fell into the pond while trying to aid one of the girls who had lost her footing on the banking.

As one on-looker commented "this is better than a three-ring circus." It was fun for the star performers too, but it was also a big job. By late afternoon the last shrub was planted. Muddy and drenched from the thundershower they rinsed off grimy hands in a rain puddle on Converse Place and went home tired but happy to rest up until Tuesday when they went through the whole thing all over again with the second delivery of bushes and hedge.

For the interested bystander who was heard to ask "What are the names of those beauties?" (or was it "beauts?") there are two answers. If he meant the azaleas, the tall deep pink ones are Arnoldiana, the medium pink are Hinamayo and the low soft pink ones are an evergreen variety named Carmen.

The others were June Mason, Eve Gilpatrick, Olga Wright, Dorothy Cole, Alice Brown, Sally Robinson, Gwen Watkins, Dot Sundberg, Stella Aitken, Priscilla Pearl and Alice McFadden.

That everything went along so smoothly was due to a great extent to the careful planning, preparation, guidance, and inspiration of Mrs. Aitken. She was not only co-partner with Mrs. Mansfield in working out the planting arrangement, but she personally selected the shrubs, supervised their placement and worked shovel in hand beside her crew of helpers.

The Winchester Home and Garden Club has won a coveted prize for its ambitious undertaking but the entire membership is agreed that an "unsung hero's" award has also been earned by Mrs. Aitken.

The per capita cost of education in other counties across the country averaged $96.58 and, in those of comparable size, $104.28 per capita.

Enrollments in the nation's schools have been growing by leaps and bounds in recent years. Not only has there been this sharp rise in school population but there has also been an increase in the number of years of schooling per person.

More youngsters are staying to complete their high school training. Compared with 1950, when only 34 percent of the adult population went through high school, 42 percent are doing so now.

The new Federal budget proposes financial assistance to alleviate the burden. With strong feelings in Congress both for and against a Government role in education, a drag-out fight is expected.

Hearing

Mr. Freeman said last week he hoped this effort to provide the town with a community center would meet with success, for it is being approached in a different way—by trying to raise enough in private donations and subscriptions and from institution and foundations, so that the money won't have to come from local tax revenues to build it. The attempt to spend public tax money for a community center has been the major stumbling block in the past, he noted.

That report concludes that "the New High School Plan is by far the best plan for providing the kinds and sizes of spaces needed for a modern educational program for a 1,500-pupil high school and for providing these spaces in the best relationship to one another.

The PBC noted that "From the point of view of centrality, of accessibility, of availability of public transportation and of nearness to other facilities such as the library, shops, service establishments, the town's center is the best location for a high school. The volume and noise of traffic on Main Street, however, are undesirable, and traffic noise has been an interference with classroom work at the senior high school. Having a high school so near the town's business center is not an unmixed blessing."

The PBC continued, "The location for the New High School Plan . . . is not near either the geographical or population center of the town. To the extent that these are disadvantages, the PBC believes they are insubstantial when contrasted with the major educational advantages of a new high school on an adequate site."

What are the relative costs of the solutions?

The PBS estimated the costs which are displayed in chart form on the editorial page.

The committee noted that increases in bus transportation costs would largely be absorbed by the state.

LOCATION

The PBC surveyed the town for available tracts of vacant land sites of 30 acre sizes, after discounting land near the center of town by the present High School, at the Beggs and Cobb site, in the Town Forest and off Tufts Road as all being too little in area, too expensive in land takings, or not completely adequate for the purposes.

A tract of some 80 acres east of Ridge Street between Johnson Road and High Streets, referred to as the Turkey Ridge parcel, was finally selected as the most promising site location by the PBC.

The PBC proposes acquiring some 46 acres of the Turkey Ridge parcel, stretching from Johnson Road to High Street and including the swamp area next to Johnson Road, which can be developed for playing fields, and the higher land south and east of the swamp on which the secondary school structure would be placed.

Copies of the PBC secondary school project report and recommendations are available at the Public Library and at the school department offices at Lynch School.

Transportation

a flat charge per day per bus permitting after hour scheduling of busses already required at regular hours. School Department surveys of Boston area towns show 13 of 19 providing some sort of after hours transportation.

Related to transportation figures is the geographic location of Turkey Ridge. The proposed new high school on this site would be .9 road miles from the Lexington and Woburn lines and 2.05 miles from the rotary at the center of town. The present Senior High School is .5 road miles from the Fells and .9 from Medford. The same School Department surveys list five Boston area high schools 2 or more miles from the center of town. Natick High School, comparable to the proposed high school in size with 1581 students, is 1.25 miles from the center of town. Natick transports approximately 50 per cent of its high school students.

Transportation, along with all other aspects of the proposed solution to the problem of overcrowding at the present Senior High School will be discussed tonight at the last of four information meetings on the subject. The meeting will be held in the Lincoln School Auditorium at 8 p.m. All interested residents are invited.

Glee Club

rounding towns, the Glee Club sang a large number of concerts this year, both in Winchester and other communities throughout the Greater Boston area.

The highlight of the year's activity was the cabaret-style concert given April 24 at the Lynch Junior High School, which was so well attended that extra seats had to be brought in for the overflow crowd.

The concert celebrated the 25th anniversary of the club and members from previous years who were in the audience were invited on stage to join the present club in a series of numbers. The popular double-quartet, the Two-By-Fours, which started with the Mystic Glee Club many years ago, also rejoined the club for the special concert and sang several selections of their own.

The concert program was carefully selected from numbers popular through the years and the audience thoroughly enjoyed the wide variety of the evening's presentations.

Music critics in the audience said that the club was at its vocal best for the well-attended concert and particularly praised the attacks and tonal qualities of the group. Special thanks and commendation was given to the prior members who went on-stage with little or no rehearsal and performed so admirably.

Many "old-timers" enjoyed the evening so much that they will rejoin the club on a regular basis when activities start again this fall. Club president, Robert J. Hallisey, issues warm invitations to all men who enjoy glee club singing to join with the club.

The popularity of the cabaret-style concert this year proves that this type of musical evening is well-enjoyed by Winchester residents and it is expected that the club will repeat the same concert style in the coming season.

The two junior choirs, Junior High choir, High School Forum choir and two senior choirs will all participate in this beautiful program in the church sanctuary.

Each choir will sing two anthems separately and then all choirs will combine in the stirring "Battle Hymm of the Republic." Over 150 singers will take part in the Festival.

It is hoped that many families will plan to attend this outstanding occasion together. Following the festival, refreshments will be served in Chidley Hall. Everyone is invited to attend.

The Festival will be directed by Robert White, choir director. The organist will be Bruce Bennett.

Winchester's Last Chance . . .

January 4, 1965

To the School Committee
Town of Winchester, Massachusetts

The Citizens' Advisory Committee on Secondary School-College Relations has the honor to present to you the following unanimous interim recommendations:

(1) that a new senior high school be constructed and completed by September, 1967, and

(2) that absolutely adequate funds be appropriated and adequate land be provided for this senior high school to meet the present and future educational demands of the youngsters of our town.

In 1957, when the Citizens' Advisory Committee of educators in universities in the Greater Boston area was first appointed, we were instructed by you to concern ourselves with problems of "policies, procedures and programs of study whereby we prepare our students for higher education." We are gratified that many of our recommendations have been adopted promptly and have strengthened the rigor and content of the high school curriculum significantly. But the townspeople of Winchester must once and for all appreciate that lack of foresight, lack of funds and lack of land can forestall the most striking improvements that any school system could initiate.

With our everyday vital interest in education we are constantly aware of the qualities of schooling which our own students from every part of the United States have had. In communities where town politics and frugalities prevent sensible salary schedules, new school construction and prescient planning, the secondary schooling of girls and boys suffers unnecessarily. If the citizens of the Town of Winchester, most particularly the parents who have children in the Winchester school system, care about excellence in education, then those very citizens and parents must support with tax dollars a first-rate new senior high school with land sufficient for present and future needs. This is Winchester's last chance to provide for our children the senior high school that we believe they deserve.

"THE FRIENDLY WORD" as a suggestion won for Mrs. Earl Cragin of Reading the newsletter-naming contest recently sponsored by the Friends of the Winchester Hospital. Mrs. Albert Muggia, newsletter editor, presents her with a gift certificate at Filene's as a prize. Mrs. Reese James, contest chairman, looks on at right.

"Friendly Word" Wins Newsletter Name Contest

Mrs. Earl Cragin of Reading submitted the winning name for the Friends of Winchester Hospital Newsletter in the contest which ended on May 1.

Many very appealing names were sent in for the competition which was judged by Mrs. Reese James, James Dobbins and David C. McLean.

It was noted that the first choice of all three judges was Mrs. Cragin's entry "The Friendly Word." All Friends will receive their next issue of the newsletter in September under the new name.

As this issue of the Star goes on sale, the Friends will be holding their annual meeting at the home of Mrs. Frank Bates where the new name will also be announced.

Dr. Penner Leads Congregational Conference

Dr. Albert J. Penner of 329 Highland Avenue, president of the Massachusetts Congregational Christian Conference which concluded in Boston on Tuesday, was re-elected to head the group at its three-day conference held at the Old South Church, Copley Square.

REV. DR. ALBERT J. PENNER

The oldest and largest Protestant denomination in Massachusetts, the Bay State Congregationalists trace their roots back to the Pilgrim Colony in Plymouth. This was its 166th annual meeting.

Dr. Penner took up the executive leadership of the more than 600 churches in the State in 1958, after serving for nine years as pastor of the Broadway Congregational Church in the heart of New York City.

At the Monday night session Dr. Penner revealed plans for a capital fund campaign to advance the Conference programs in four general areas, the urban revolution, housing for older persons, youth and especially the student population and the general Conference program.

The Conference also honored 19 newly ordained Congregational clergymen and two who were celebrating their 50th year, the Rev. William Dudley of Everett and Rev. Robert Grey of Woburn.

The closing session of the sessions heard the Rev. George W. Webber of East Harlem warn that "Unless we get jolted badly, unless something shatters the present introversion and complacency of the churches, irrelevant to an urban culture, we've had it.

"The Church cannot stand in the safety of its citadels, and the clergyman protected by his education, or by his commitment to Christ, safe and secure, and throw life rings to drowning men in the middle of an urban world.

"No, the Christian must always be involved in the world, as one who shares and is threatened by, and is faced with the precise difficulties and problems which every other man in the ghetto faces."

Chase

The Corvette, travelling at approximately 80 miles an hour and on the left side of the road, according to police, forced three other vehicles coming from the opposite direction to the side of the road.

The Corvette then turned into the Texaco station, and the operator jumped out and headed toward the Dairy Bar, where he spotted a Pontiac sitting in the parking lot. The two passengers remained behind.

Mrs. Robert Valarese of Melrose, who was sitting in the Pontiac while her husband was at the Dairy Bar, saw the youth running toward her. She quickly took the keys out of the ignition and began getting out of the car. Her husband, seeing what was transpiring, began running toward his wife and the car. Meanwhile, the youth apparently changed his mind and began walking toward the Dairy Bar.

Officer Henry Cogan arrested the youth, identified as Robert F. Migliaccio, 19, of Carter Street, for operating so as to endanger and for operating after his license was suspended.

Bishop Minihan Confirms Children Of St. Mary's

Radiant sunshine and clear, cool weather added to the joy of three hundred and sixty-nine confirmandi on Friday afternoon as His Excellency Bishop Jeremiah Minihan conferred the Sacrament of Confirmation on this large group.

Robed in white and red robes the young people filed from Saint Mary's Hall to the church and awaited the arrival of Bishop Minihan. Promptly at 4 o'clock His Excellency arrived and was escorted into the sanctuary by Rt. Rev. John M. Manion, pastor of St. Mary's and by the curates of the parish. In a short but wide-ranged dialogue between himself and the confirmandi the bishop stressed the importance of the sacrament and the beauty of the vernacular which was used in the administration of the sacrament.

The ceremony proceeded with the renewal of baptismal promises and the rite of confirmation. Filing two by two the confirmandi approached the feet of the bishop to be confirmed. The bishop was assisted by Rev. James Garrity. Rev. Gilbert Phinn, Rev. Martin Dolphin, Rev. John O'Donnell and Rev. Francis Turke. Saint Mary's Boys' Schola, directed by Sister St. Patricia and accompanied by Mrs. Loretta Cox supplied the liturgical music of the confirmation ceremony.

The sponsor for the boys was Robert Costello, president of the Holy Name Society; the girls' sponsor was Mrs. James Walsh, prefect of the Sodality in Saint Mary's Parish.

New Optical And Hearing Aid Shop In the Center

Paul E. Longval, optician, who opened in business here at the very end of last year chose Winchester because he liked the look of its business center and after four months here is glad he came. His shop, located at 9 Waterfield Road, looking out over the now beautiful common, offers the fitting of eyeglass prescriptions, with all kinds of lenses and frames and contact lenses.

PAUL E. LONGVAL

In addition, Mr. Longval has had 15 years of experience in fitting and servicing hearing aids and is now the only one in the center with this service. As a sideline, the shop sells precision weather instruments - thermometers, barometers and hydrometers. Plastic lenses, a development in the last two years which, according to Mr. Longval, now accounts for 56 per cent of production and sales in Paris, France, are available at his office.

Mr. Longval, a registered optician, has been in business over 25 years. He received his training in Boston and in Michigan and has been associated in business in the Haverhill area for many years but most recently in Medford Square, associated with Dr. John Finnin. He is a vice president of the Massachusetts Association of Dispensing Opticians and holds an honorary master's in opthalmic optics from the American Board of Opticianry.

Associated with him in business is his wife, Doris, also a registered optician. She is responsible for the handsome decor of the shop, done in blues and greens. The couple live in Dracut and are the parents of three children, a son, who will be attending Lowell Tech and two daughters, both students at Notre Dame Academy.

Jaycee-ettes Report on Year

On May 12, the Winchester Jaycee-ettes held their general and annual meeting at the Battle Green Motor Inn in Lexington. Mrs. Richard Press, state president; and Mrs. Charles Welsh, candidate for state president, 1965-1966 attended the meeting.

After dinner the general meeting was conducted by Mrs. Robert McNamara, outgoing president.

Project reports were presented and included the following: Four sets of steak knives were delivered to the Winchester Home for the Aged; the Jaycee-ette cookbook is completed and hoped to be on sale by mid-June (these books will be sold by members and local merchants); $100 has been donated to the Winchester Scholarship Foundation; a girl has been selected from the Senior Class to receive the Jaycee-ette award, new this year and will be continued each year hereafter.

Mrs. John Kavanagh was appointed chairman for Jaycee-aid at the local tennis tournament to be held at the Palmer Courts Saturday morning May 22.

At the annual meeting final project reports were presented as well as the treasurer's and secretary's report for the year. The following slate of officers for 1965-1966 were installed by Mrs. Richard Press, state president:

President, Mrs. John Williams
Vice-President, Mrs. David Mawicke
Secretary, Mrs. John Kavanagh
Treasurer, Mrs. John Doherty

A gavel was presented to the group by the out-going president and Jaycee-ette pins were given to all officers.

The next Jaycee-ette general meeting will be held Thursday evening June 3, at the home of Mrs. Robert McNamara. This meeting will be a wine tasting party hosted by the S. S. Pierce Company.

Cancer Drive Is Successful Here

House-to-House chairman of the American Cancer Society's Crusade, George S. Hebb, Jr., 14 Jefferson Road announced that "according to preliminary reports, this year's fund drive will top our expectations. The generous response is evidence of the concern and desire of the people of Winchester to do something about a disease which will kill an estimated 295,000 Americans in 1965."

Mr. Hebb paid tribute to all the volunteers who conducted the educational and fund raising drive and were responsible for reaching more people than ever before with life saving facts about cancer.

All those who did not make a contribution are urged to do so now by sending one to Charles Butler, treasurer, Winchester Trust Company. Also, if anyone has not yet returned their kit would they please do so to Mr. Butler.

The Cancer committee is asking all "to cure more, give more in 1965."

Top Math Honor To Brenda Baker

Brenda Sue Baker, a senior at WHS, was among 20 high school students representing 14 secondary schools in the state who were selected prize winners in the first annual statewide olympiad competition in mathematics sponsored by the Actuaries' Club of Boston.

Brenda, who has just been announced to be the winner of a National Merit Scholarship Corporation award and who is heading to Radcliffe, was a bronze medal winner and was awarded $25 in prize money. She had the distinction of being the only girl winner among the 20 who rated tops in the State contest.

The Massachusetts Association of Mathematics Leagues (MAML) conducted the two level competition and Charles Rockland, a student at Boston Latin High School, captured top prize of the final round in which 155 high school students competed for a total of $1,000 in cash prizes.

The first level examination of the olympiad competition was held earlier this year and attracted more than 6,000 students from 191 secondary schools in the state. Participants took multiple choice examination in which speed and accuracy were measured. Based on the ranking obtained in this test, the 155 students were eligible to compete in the second level examination which was made up of complex mathematical problems.

The olympiad prize competition, which replaces the University of Massachusetts high school prize examination, is a further example of the cooperative effort of educators and the business community to identify and encourage academic talent.

Money Can't Buy It

★ OUR PROFESSION serves living people in their "lonely hour." And, it is the impression that they take away with them which tells the story whether we are going to continue to serve or to wither away. All the glowing words we can pay people to write about our facilities, modernity, and courteous and competent service can be turned to ashes by a word from one of these people. The fact that we have continued to flourish for so many years says something about us which money can't buy. We have continued to serve.

Spring Activity At Mystic School

Mystic School Auditorium has been a busy place this past week. Two plays and a science fair were enjoyed by parents and pupils.

The fifth and sixth grades cooperated to present an assembly which had one purpose: to encourage children to read more books.

Mrs. Eileen Hartwell and Mrs. Julia Pomeroy, fifth grade teachers, directed the program held May 6 and 7. Every child chose a favorite book from the long list he had read during the year. Each youngster wrote a play based on the book selected; in some cases it was a poem or a summary. Each young playwright produced his own play, even to spelling out costumes and sound effects. All fifth and sixth graders participated, a total of 103 pupils.

On May 13, the fourth graders presented "Rolito," a story of a nine-year old Mexican boy. The lead was played by Jackie Fontaine in the Wednesday performance and by Scott Dingwell on Thursday. A chorus introduced each scene, with a delightful accompaniment by Mrs. Norton Demsey.

With the help of Mrs. Eleanor Thistlethwaite, music teacher in the Winchester schools, the youngsters learned several Spanish words and phrases. Fourth grade teachers Miss Patricia Stevens and Miss Penelope Feinemann directed the production.

One of the most heartwarming scenes occurred when Mamacita, played by Beth Roche, sang "Arruru," a Spanish lullaby. Ferdinand the Bull was the cause of many laughs as he danced around the stage. Comic scenes made the entire play enjoyable viewing for the audience.

On Friday, the auditorium was transformed into a buzzing science exhibition hall. Directing operations was Miss Margaret Millican, science teacher for both sixth grade classes. She was assisted by Miss Gladys Wood, sixth grade teacher specializing in social studies under the modified dual progress plan in use at Mystic School.

All sixth graders were encouraged to present a project or some subject interesting to them and also related to something studied in their science course. Their enthusiasm was marked and their explanations animated, especially when they were explaining their experiments to the little kindergarteners and first graders who were allowed to visit in the afternoon.

A balloon zoomed across the hall every few minjutes on a wire to illustrate jet propulsion.

Static electricity, demonstration of pulleys, fuses and how they work, distillation and filtration, fire extinguisher and its principle, nearsightedness and farsightedness, "Orville's" bones, crystallization, vibration, optical illusion, color theory, and an "educated mouse" were some of the topics discussed and exhibited knowledgeably by the youngsters.

A water wheel made of halves of pecan shells attached with lollipop sticks to a spool turned when doused with water from a coffee can. Half the fun of the show came from pouring water, making bulbs light up, or blowing up balloons.

Dad's tools came in handy too. An electric drill is a fine way to show what happens when a disc of varied colors spins at high speed.

Miss Millican stressed that the pupils were not competing, but were displaying results of the work they had done on a topic of particular interest to them.

Mrs. Volpe Takes College Club Inside Her Job

The Winchester College Club held its annual tea on May 12 at the home of Mrs. Paul Atwood, 21 Pilgrim Drive.

After a business meeting and election of officers Mrs. John Volpe delighted members by giving them an insight into the problems, amusing and otherwise that she met as First Lady of the Commonwealth. Her informal talk with its many flashes of humor, carried members through a White House dinner, problems with protocol when foreign dignitaries visited and even gave a birds eye view of other governors' ladies.

With this final meeting the College Club is looking forward to next year with the following new officers:

President, Mrs. Arnold Kleinbecker; vice-president, Mrs. C. Thorpe Thompson; secretary, Mrs. Robert Cavanaugh; treasurer, Mrs Carlton Dane; assistant treasurer, Mrs. Stanley Buchanan. Chairman of committees are as follows: program, Mrs. T. Kirby Davidson; membership, Mrs. Henry Harris; hospitality, Mrs. Thomas Coe; publicity, Mrs. Walther Weilman; nomination, Mrs. Nelson Bell; Daytime Study Groups, Mrs. Lee McGuire; committee for Evening Interest Groups, Dr. and Mrs. James Wright, Miss Dorothy Larned and Mr. and Mrs. Nolan Jones.

Many in 509 Ready for Webelos

For Cub Pack 509 the May meeting, to be held this Friday, May 21, promises to be one of the most exciting and rewarding of the year.

To the Cubs of the Webelos Den, who have completed their required achievements, will be presented the Webelos Badge, the highest in Cub Scouting. Representing the culmination of several years of effort and achievement, it signifies that the Cub has attained the pinnacle of Cubbing and is now ready to start into a full-fledged Boy Scout program.

For excitement and thrills, the Pinewood Derby should provide more than enough for everyone. It is anticipated that there will be 64 or more entries at post time. (Remember the weight limit, fellows; overweight cars will be disqualified.) The competition will start with each den, and the two fastest cars of the den will represent their den in a series of races to determine the pack champion.

As a note of interest for the coming months, R. DeBourke will discuss the summer program that is being planned for June, July and August.

At our last pack meeting, April, Miss Lenore Rich received the pack charter for the coming year and congratulated all Cubs on their first birthday. Jim Fitzsimmons gave a short talk on the importance of keeping our town clean and made us all aware that each of us must do his part.

Awards of achievement and advancement were made by awards chairman, Tom Gramzow, to the following Cubs:

Lion — Robert Ferro, William Gramzow

Panel Discusses Pressures At Vinson - Owen Meeting

Pressures on elementary school children, their values and their dangers, were the subject of a lively panel discussion held at the Vinson-Owen School last Thursday night under the heading "What's the Rush? Where Are We Going?" The discussion was the program for and followed the annual meeting for the school's Parents' Association.

Dr. Clare M. Corcoran, principal of Vinson-Owen School acted as moderator and introduced first was Dr. Euan T. Blanch, a practicing pediatrician in Winchester. His subject matter dealt with the child as a whole and growth patterns from a physician's point of view.

Essentially, Dr. Blanch pointed out that a child must be subjected to pressures in order to cope with increased responsibilities throughout life and into adulthood. Dr. Blanch also cited several emotional stress symptoms such as pain, headaches, stuttering and hair twisting.

Speaking next was Miss Doris Bergren, school adjustment councilor, Winchester schools, who spoke from point of view of the guidance councilor. She sees on a regular basis the children with whom problems exist and it is her job to help these youngsters recognize that they must learn to cope with pressures and also to help them gain more confidence in themselves and their school work. Miss Bergren also mentioned a few examples of the cases she has handled where it was found that, in the lessening of school room pressures, some children responded better to the point where they were then equipped to take on additional work when meted out in smaller doses.

The third panelist, Dr. Norman Goldstein, chief psychologist of Mystic Valley Children's Clinic, went quickly to the heart of the matter of pressures. He related that pressures are a necessary thing and that it is this series of pressures at children's various phases of development that permit them to adapt to group living, eventually culminating in success at a vocation as adults. He stressed that pressures provide control, boundaries or limits and act as contructive guide lines in children's development when properly applied.

Dr. Harry Gilson, superintendent of Winchester schools, then spoke on the effect pressures have on the citizenry when sifted down from higher levels. As an example of this, he cited the successful Russian Sputnik shot of some years ago and what a tremendous impact it had had on our school programs. While educational preoccupation with math, physics and science for awhile seemed to threaten the humanities and the arts in schools across the country, Dr. Gilson stated that the balance should swing back to proper proportions.

One of the results in the increased scientific effort reflects pre-occupation on the part of students and parents alike on grades and this in turn is accountable for a major part of the prevalent cheating problems, he said. However, he stressed that we needed this reawakening, added stimulus, interest and support for education in order to meet today's urgent demands and challenges. Dr. Gilson closed by saying, "We're going to educate better by giving children better challenges and better motivations."

Mrs. Joseph Vick Roy, association president, opened the meeting with a welcome to parents and a thank you to the outgoing board members of the association. The short business meeting also included the election of new officers and committee chairmen.

Parents' Association officers for Vinson-Owen for the 1965-66 school year are: Mrs. Charles Haley, president; Mrs. David Holmes, vice president; Roger Harsch, treasurer; Mrs. Edward Higgins, recording secretary; and Mrs. Robert White, corresponding secretary.

Committee chairmen are Dr. Howard Frazier, program; Mrs. Joseph Ciccio and Mrs. Antonio Vacca, co-chairmen, ways and means; Mrs. Zenon Zannetos, room mothers; Mrs. Albin Strazdas, publicity; Mrs. George Harris, Jr., membership; Mrs. Henry Twitchell, social; Richard Spencer, nominating; and Mrs. Oscar Baerenwald and Mrs. Roger Crandlemire, extra curricular.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. James Dorsey and her committee after the lively and interesting question and asnwer period which followed the panel.

We now carry the National brand of travel books, passport cases, Vinyl writing cases at the Winchester Star.

ACROSS THE COUNTER

One of nation's top insurance executives was asked on the Johnny Carson TV show: "How much income does a man have to earn before he can afford to buy ALL the insurance he needs?" The executive put his hands behind his head, leaned back and stared thoughtfully into space. After a while he said sadly: "Nobody can afford all the insurance he needs."

This is no doubt true. A maximum of protection for every insurable hazard would be prohibitive in cost. However, all phases of life involve compromise. The best a person can hope for is "reasonably adequate insurance." Everyone has to decide which risks he is willing to brave.

You are exposed to the risk of heavy financial loss several times a day. For instance, every time you drive. And the number-one essential is to make certain that you are protected from the type of loss that could spell financial disaster. This requires high limits of auto and personal liability insurance, and ample coverage on your chief possessions—such as your home and household contents.

The amount of insurance which is "reasonably adequate" depends on many factors. Let us help you figure it out!

Knights' Gala Party Next Week

Here it comes, the last social function for the entire Council for this fraternal year.

This should be one of the most exciting and fun-filled events of the season. The Past Grand Knights Dinner will be held at the Council 210 Hall on the Saturday, of Memorial Day weekend, that is May 29th.

All you Brothers and your fair ladies can really look forward to a rollicking affair before the summer season of camping and beaches begin. A catered, baked ham dinner will be served in the hall at 7 p.m. by Doyles catering of Dorchester.

Then comes something that is too good to let all the news out of the bag yet, but this year's program by J. Mulrenan and D. Burke will surpass the wonderful show that gave about 100 people a memorable performance by the Knights own "off Broadway," group.

Dancing will follow to the lilting melodies of Ken Thorpes orchestra, until the hour of twelve midnight.

Come and join with us in paying a small tribute to a group of men who at one time or another gave their time and effort to make our wonderful Council what we enjoy today. Tickets are available at the Council rooms. Come and see if you can solve the riddle of the Darkening Knight.

BKTA Week's Big Collection

A generous amount of material (old blankets, sheets, etc.) was donated by the pupils of the Winchester Elementary Schools during the recent annual Be Kind to Animals Week. This cloth will be put to good use in the cages of sick and injured animals at the Angell Memorial Animal Hospital, and as splints for broken paws.

The membership of the local Winchester Auxiliary of MSPCA wishes to sincerely thank pupils, parents and faculty of the following schools for their thoughtfulness and generosity: Lincoln School, Mystic School, Noonan School, Lewis Parkhurst School, Vinson-Owen School, George Washington School, Wyman School and Saint Mary's.

News from The Andover Inn

The Treadway Inns Corporation tells the story of growth and success in its annual report to the stockholders, published recently. And Jerry D. O'Donoghue, innkeeper at the Andover Inn in Andover, joins with his 24 innkeepers of Treadway's Eastern Seaboard affiliation in pride at the corporation's accomplishments.

The Andover Inn, located on the campus of Phillips Academy and just adjacent to the Cochran Bird Sanctuary and the famed Addison Art Gallery, is a favorite with many here.

Antique Trunk Is on Loan

Last week, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen M. Edgell, and their son, Stephen, Jr., of Sheffield West, loaned a rare, small leather bound trunk from their collection to the Society For the Preservation of New England Antiquities.

The Society was delighted to have the trunk, which was complete with brass key plate, latch and key, and a bail pull handle on the lid. It is lined with its original wallpaper, and is a rarity because it has the complete and perfect label, inside the cover, of John Hower, Trunk and Saddle maker, of No. 1 Ann Street, Boston.

This was the address of the Old Feather Store, in Dock Square, the ancient gabled building in the Elizabethan style, erected in 1680, and long an object of great interest in the city. This historic building, long the home of one of the best known apothecary stores in Boston, as well as a shop dealing in West India goods and one selling feathers, was one of the last relics of the Puritan days in Boston, and sad to say, was destroyed for "progress" in 1860.

The trunk will be on permanent display in the Wallpaper Room at the Harrison Gray Otis House, Cambridge Street, Boston, headquarters of the S.P.N.E.A., of which Mrs. Edgell is a member.

Lutheran Church Conducts Major Building Drive

At a special congregational meeting held recently, the members of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, Woburn, LCA, voted to conduct a "Christ First" building drive fund drive. This drive will provide funds to build a new church on the 10 acre site on Alfred Street in North Woburn near the intersection of Routes 128 and 38.

During the next few weeks all Winchester members of the congregation will be visited and asked to recognize their gifts from God, examine their hearts and then to make a sacrificial pledge to the building fund.

The congregation is presently engaged in the presentation and acceptance of the written building program which has been prepared after ten months of intensive studies of its program. This has included such areas as worship, education, fellowship, recreation and administration.

The church is presently located on Montvale Avenue, one block east of Woburn Center, and Worship Services are held at 9 and 11 each Sunday morning, with Church School classes for all ages at 10. A cordial welcome is extended to all.

Top Award To Star Checker

Mrs. Laura McCann, of Portsmouth, N.H., a Star Market Checker, is the International Checker of the year, having proved herself the best of more than 50,000 other Super Market checkout cashiers.

In the 10th annual competition for this honor, sponsored at Chicago by the Super Market Institute and the National Cash Register Company, Mrs. McCann bested nine regional winners from this country and Canada.

It was the second international championship within four years for Star Markets, and the third time in that period that Star Market cashiers have captured regional honors. In 1963 Rose Scalavino walked away with the grand prize. As winner, Mrs. McCann will receive a gold "Tilly" statuette (the Oscar of the Food Industry) a mink stole, a two-week vacation in Hawaii as a guest of the Dole Corporation, and other prizes.

VA News

Veterans with GI home loans or loans on their GI insurance policies may pay the loans off at any time, in full or in extra part payments without incurring a penalty charge, William F. Connors, manager of VA's Boston office said today.

The minimum extra payment a veteran may make on his home loan is the equivalent of a month's payment, or $100, whichever is less.

The insurance loan may be paid off in payments of $5.00 or more at any time.

The Veterans Administration also pointed out that should a veteran need money for other expenses or emergencies, the extra payments already made—if the lender agrees, in the case of a home loan—may be re-applied to regular payments in order to prevent the loan from going into default.

Sachem Bats Explode in 20-12 Win To Gain Split with Woburn

Last Saturday the Sachems lashed out a 21 hit attack and buried the Tanners at Manchester Field to gain a split of their home and home series. This was a far different game from that in which the Sachems lost 2-1 the previous Saturday. It was no pitchers game, eight hurlers went to the mound and the game took over two and a half hours to play.

When the first inning started the Tanners chased starting pitcher Steve Kajander for two quick runs. Torrice, Lynch, and Connolly lined singles through the box and that was the end of Kajander. Kevin Barry came in to relieve and got the side out with only two runs scoring.

Billy Chase opened the last half of the first with a line single to left, that was only a faint indication of what was to follow. Davis Blanchard then hit the second pitch into the parking lot to tie the score at two apiece. Jeff Schlener walked and Bob Gilberti blasted one into the centerfield stands to make the score 4-2 Winchester.

That marked the end for Gorassi and Eddie Gillis came in to relieve him with still no outs. Kimball singled, Wiggin and Mahony walked and the Sachems had the bases loaded. Bob Cuff doubled and pitcher Kevin Barry singled and when the smoke cleared the Sachems had put together their best inning of the year chasing eight runs across the plate.

Woburn started to come back in the second when they scored four more runs to make the score 8-6. Barry had to leave the game when he was struck by a line drive and the effect was noticeable in his pitching.

Winchester finally put an end to the close game as they scored four in the third and made it 13-6. Woburn scored a run in the top of the fourth to make it 13-7. The Sachems iced the game in the last of the fourth, chasing Gillis and Boutwell, the second and third pitchers for Woburn. The big blow coming when Blanchard hit his second home run of the game, this one a three run blast.

Sounding more like the annual Thanksgiving Day football game, Winchester ended with a 20-12 victory score. Big guns in the lineup were: Bill Chase with 2 hits, Davis Blanchard with 2 home runs and a single, Jeff Schlener with a hit, Bob Gilberti with a single, double and home run, Jack Kimball with four hits, Kevin Wiggin with two hits, Bob Cuff with two singles and a double, Kevin Barry with a single and double and Lee Sullivan with a double. Tommy Lynch continued his no hitting for Woburn. He had a perfect day with four hits. The summaries:

CO-CAPTAIN DAVIS BLANCHARD blasted two home runs into the parking lot driving in five of the Sachems twenty runs scored against Woburn last Saturday at Manchester Field. He also had a R.B.I. single.

Belmont Defeats Sachems For Second Time 6-3

Belmont High made it a clean sweep over the Sachems when they defeated them 6-3 Wednesday afternoon at Manchester Field. Pitcher Joe Restuccia won his second game of the year against the Sachems.

Winchester took a quick 2-0 lead in the first inning when the first five batters lined singles. That was the last time they were to lead in the game because Belmont scored five runs in the second and wrapped up the game.

The Sachems made a vain effort in the last inning to pull the game out of the fire. Collins and Chase led off with singles and Blanchard doubled, scoring Collins, but the next three batters were set down in order.

Bill Chase, Davis Blanchard, Jeff Schlener and Brian Collins had two hits apiece for Winchester. Billy Mahony had the other hit. Brian Collins relieved Murphy in the second and pitched fine ball the rest of the game. The summaries:

Wakefield Over Sachems 12-9

Last week the Sachems lost a very hard fought 12-9 decision to Wakefield at Manchester Field. This game was a high tensioned affair with one of the Wakefield pitchers being ejected from the game.

The weird play took place in the fifth inning when Mike Martello, Wakefield pitcher, went over to touch second base after Bob Cuff Sachem catcher, left too soon on a pop-up. They then proceeded over to second base to tag it, but the umpire would not recognize the tag because the pitcher was on the rubber and the batter was in the batter's box.

The enraged Martello charged after the umpire and was quickly thrown out of the ball game. Cuff was then called out when Martello's replacement Ulwick followed the proper procedure.

Jeff Schlener, Sachem first baseman, led the Winchester hitting attack with three hits in three trips to the plate. Bob Cuff and Kevin Wiggin had two hits for the Winchester nine, who were out-hit only 13-12 by the league leaders.

Wakefield chased starting pitcher Brian Collins out in the fourth inning when they scored six runs. Murphy and Oxford hit home runs in the next inning off Kevin Barry. The Sachems blew a golden opportunity in the last inning when they had the bases loaded, one out but couldn't score. The summaries:

Murphy Fires Sachems Over Lexington 4-1

The Sachems picked up their third league win of the season when Don Murphy fired a three-hitter at Lexington. Murphy was robbed of a shutout when the Minutemen collected two scratch hits and scored their only run.

Jack Kimball continued to show a marked improvement at the bat he was the only Sachem to collect two hits, one was a two run producing triple. Jack Moran did the catching for the Sachems and batted in a run.

The Sachems scored a pair in the third and sixth innings. Jack Kimball drove in the two runs in the sixth with his triple and hits by Moran, Chase and Blanchard produced the other two runs. While the Sachems were scoring Murphy picked up his second league win on a nifty three hitter. The summaries:

24 HOUR TOWING

Windup Of The Masters With Harry McGrath

In looking back over Jack Nicklaus' record-breaking victory in the recent Masters, it is interesting to note that Jack's victory was attributed more to his well rounded ability, than to his exceptional power off the tee.

For the 4 rounds of the tournament Jack used a total of 71 strokes on the par 5 holes, Arnold Palmer used 69 and Gary Player 68.

His total strokes for the 4 rounds on the par 4 holes was 157, against Palmer's 158 and Player's 160.

It was on the par 3 holes that he really made up his winning margin.

His total number of strokes for the 4 rounds on the par 3 holes was 43, while Palmer used 53 and Player 52.

Another indication of his consistency is brought out by his ringer score for the 4 rounds of the tournament - the lowest score on each hole that he played.

Out — 344, 232, 344 - 29
In — 442, 444, 234 - 31 - 60

The all-time ringer score for the tournament is 40.

When you consider that Jack's low score was 64-tieing the all time, his ringer of 60 shows how consistent he was throughout the tournament.

Perfectionist that he is, he went to the practice area right after his round of 64.

For those of you who would like to attempt to duplicate his 64 - here it is.

First hole, 400 yards - 310 yard drive, wedge, two putts 50 feet; second, 555, driver, three iron, 105-foot (his estimate) wedge, 24-foot putt for birdie; third, 355, three wood, bounce wedge shot, two putts from eight feet; fourth, 220 yards, "fat" four iron, eight foot putt, birdie; fifth, 450, drive, six iron, two putts from 20 feet; sixth, 190, six iron, 20 foot putt, birdie; seventh, 365, drive wedge, two footer for birdie; eighth, 530, drive, three iron, two putts from 75 feet for birdie; ninth, drive, wedge, two putts from 20 feet - 31, five birdies, 14 putts, hit all greens.

Tenth, 470 yards, drive, eight iron, two putts from 25 feet; 11th 445, drive, eight iron, two putts from 50 feet; 12th, 155, eight iron; missed five foot putt and parred; 13th, 475, drive, five iron that "dove" left due to glob of mud on ball, ending 45 feet away, two putts for birdie; 14th, pushed drive through fairway, seven iron and two putts from 23 feet; 15th, 520 yards, drove to left of trees in fairway, hit five iron to right rear fringe, chipped to within two feet from 80 feet away and sank it for birdie; 16th, 190 yards, six iron, eight foot putt for birdie; 17th, drive and eight iron, two putts from 80 feet; 18th, 420 yards, drive and wedge, two putts from 25 feet; 33 on three birdies, 16 putts, hit all greens.

Incidentally through 1964 covering 75 official events, Jack's has compiled a remarkable low stroke average of 70.44 per round.

The greatest of them all?

I really think so!

Tracksters Bomb Concord, 104-27

The Winchester High track team won its fourth straight track meet Friday afternoon at Manchester Field 104-27. This was the first time in the season that the Sachems reached the century mark. It also was a tremendous display of power by the ever-improving tracksters and it marked up one new record.

The Sachems were able to win 13 out of 15 first places. They lost the 440, shotput and high jump, but still placed men second and third in those events. The field events were their strongest—they shot-out Concord in the pole vault, javelin, discus, two mile and 100-yard dash.

Tibor Saddler won the high hurdles, broad jump, and ran with the winning relay team. Dave Pywell won his second straight low hurdles race. Schiraga was again impressive in the long distance runs, this time he won the mile.

The best performance of the day was turned in by Robert Kuhn as he set the discus record at the high school tossing it 179ft. 10in. Pete Fahey, the old record holder, was standing watching his old record fall.

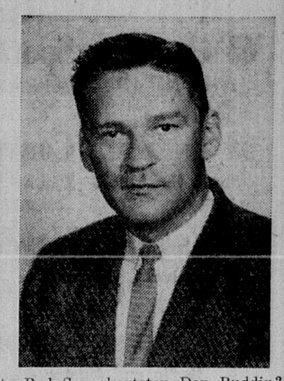
STAR SPORT SHORTS

Al Falvey, Jr.

One of the best "ideas" to come in a long time has been put into use this year. It is called an Idea Club and it is made up from all the coaches in Winchester. The club was formed to promote a greater exchange of ideas for the benefit of school and athletes alike.

During the meeting the coaches throughout the school system work together and try to bring forth their ideas at the meeting. Winchester is the first school to try anything of this nature in its school system. It's a very good idea, and it will give the coaches a better understanding of how the other coaches plan to run things. Some of them are new in the school system and some have been here for a number of years. Getting together for a meeting even once a month would help the coaches in the high school get an idea of what kind of material they will be getting next year. All it would take is a five-minute talk with the boys' coach in junior high school to see how they could improve his talents in high school.



Frank Finigan, hockey coach in town, is the president of this organization. Manny Marshall, the coach at McCall Junior High, is vice president, and Jim Phillips, basketball coach, is secretary-treasurer.

Sports Briefs: The annual Bentley College all-sports banquet was held last Thursday evening, and Robert Watson (WHS 1962) was named the most improved player in basketball . . . John Peckham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Peckham of 64 Church Street, went the seven-inning route to get his third win of the season for Yankton College. In addition to a fine mound performance John went two for three at bat. One of his hits was a double that sparked a rally in the fifth inning. Right now he has seven hits in twelve trips to the plate. Not bad for a pitcher.

Ever wonder what happened to Red Sox shortstop Don Buddin? He is in the same league with Paul Del Rossi. Don plays for Knoxville and Paul for Columbus in the AA Southern League. Paul has pitched ten innings of ball this season for the league-leading Yankee farm club. Getting back to Buddin, the former major leaguer proved that there is still a little power in his bat as he hit a grand slam on May 5. The jackpot wallop was the first since 1963 for the 31-year-old veteran.

Racing at Suffolk Downs enters its fifth week on Monday and the feature of the week is the $15,000 added Constitutional Stakes.

The Constitution honors the famed wooden warship "Old Ironsides," one of the country's historic relics preserved as a memorial in Boston Harbor.

The race is for three-year-olds, who will be given their first opportunity to go a distance, as the event is at a mile and 70 yards. A total of 49 second-year horses has been named.

The Constitution is one of Suffolk's oldest stakes and was first run in 1935. This will be the 25th running of the event. The initial running in 1935 was captured by Infidex and since then has been won by such well-known horses as Clingendaal, Lovely Night, Valdina Orphan (trained by Frank Catrone, who is now handling the Kentucky Derby winner Lucky Debonair), Beldine, Quarter Pole, Blessbull, Orleans Doge and North South Gal. The last named, a filly, won the Constitution in 1962, the last time the race was run.

New Semi-Pro Football Team

Atlantic Coast football league president Joseph Rosentover today announced the awarding of a new franchise to the hub for the 1965 season. The new team, to be known as the Boston Steamrollers, will play its home games at Everett Memorial Stadium.

The addition of the Boston team brings to eight the number of clubs which will play under the ACFL banner during the coming campaign.

The Steamrollers will join forces with the defending champion New Bedford Sweepers who played out of Everett last season, Holyoke, Mohawk Valley of Syracuse, Jersey City, Scranton, Harrisburg and Pittsburgh.

In making his announcement President Rosentover informed that players who were with the Providence Steamrollers last season, this franchise having been suspended by the league, have been assigned to the Boston club.

Conrad Pensavalle, a former Everett High and Dartmouth star, will head the new organization as president. Joining with him as owners and directors of the Steamrollers will be vice presidents Tony Lumenti, Andrew Bailey and Russell Pensavalle, along with treasurer-clerk Rudy Fiore.

John Fiorentino and Peter Maggio will serve as the team's attorneys while Al Morochnick, widely known basketball official and ex-pro-player, will handle advertising and ticket details.

Register Your Boats

Pleasant weather keeps bringing more and more Massachusetts boaters out into the open.

And coming into the open, also, is the fact that some boaters are neglecting to register their boats for the season with the State Division of Motorboats.

"I forgot," is the typical reply that division enforcement agents receive as they make their rounds across the state.

State Director Wilton Vaugh said that every boat of five or more horsepower must be registered with the State, and that violations can result in court appearances, fines, and inconveniences.

The advantages, besides compliance with the law, include helping prevent boat thefts, curbing reckless or dangerous boat operaton, providing identification for boating in other states, identifying boat ownership in cases of accident or emergency, and fostering safe boating practices.

Vaugh pointed out that a Massachusetts registration permits a boater to use the Federal waters of all 50 states and the inland waters of 46 states for a period up to 90 days without purchasing additional local or Coast Guard Certificates.

Registration certificates, except for original issues, are valid for a full year and become renewable for $3.00 on the anniversary of a boat owner's birthday. Other state fees are: original—$5, transfers—$1.50, and replacements—$1.

Winchester Softball League

On Monday, May 24, at 6:30 p.m., the 1965 softball season officially starts for some 180 softball players.

The defending champs, S. O. I. (champs for the last four years) start defending against the Elks, V. F. W., Calidyne, Anderson's Jewelers, (high school seniors), and Sachems (Brown Screw Machine Co.).

Not only is the law of averages going against the Sons this year, but also fate. Their two excellent fast-ball pitchers, Dave Kline and Harry Ells, won't be back. One way or another, though, the Sons always seem to make the playoffs, and if they should lose, the team that beats them will know it's been in a ball game.

The Elks seem to be the team to beat. Despite the loss of Kevin Mawn the team still has plenty of talent. Richie Mawn, the manager, has a well-organized team which has youth, speed, spirit, and experience to go along with the talent, a combination that will be hard to beat. The Elks have been bridesmaids for the last three years and feel it's about time to take the big step.

The Sachems should make the playoffs this year and be a strong threat to upset the Elks. Arthur Gorrasi will manage the team with help from Richie DiMinico. The Sachems have some good young ball players. If they can come up with a pitcher, watch out!

The Calidyne Co. is back with us this year and claims this is its year. Calidyne has been in the league for over ten year. We're certainly happy they're with us again.

A new team this year is the Anderson Jewelers, made up of high school seniors. They've been holding secret practice sessions for three weeks and claim they're going to be the youngest team ever to win the championship.

The V. F. W. team is a mystery. It has some of the same problems the Sons have, namely age. Nornie Cogan, the manager, claims, "we're running out of wars." The Vets have had their share of championships and losses, but whatever their situation, they always fielded a good team. The Vets, a sports-minded organization, have throughout the years supported softball and should be applauded for their efforts.

Who can forget the playoff games of the middle forties and early fifties, especially the Vets'-Sons' games.

The games were played at Ginn Field, with the crowds so big they had to be roped off. Both teams were loaded with good ball players and the games were well played. The most entertaining part of the games were the verbal battles between Paul Connors and Hokie Prokopio (managers for the Vets and Sons) chest to chest, with Ted Bartlett, umpire and softball director at the time.

Watch the games at Leonard Field. They will be played throughout the summer, Mondays through Thursdays, beginning at 6:30.

Schedule

Monday, May 24—Calidyne vs V. F. W.

Tuesday, May 25—Anderson vs Sachems

Wednesday, May 26—S. O. I. vs Elks

Thursday, May 27—Sachems vs Calidyne

Come on, Kids; Get in on The Fishing Derby

Hurry, hurry, hury!

If you want to see what's waiting for you at Wedge Pond, take a look at the fish pulled out the other day. Ain't that something? There are plenty more like that waiting to be landed. But you can't get in on the Kiwanis Fishing Derby unless you sign up.

Prizes galore. Snare a big one, and a dandy prize to boot.

Announcements have gone out and registrations are already coming in for the Fishing Derby, to be held this year on Saturday, June 5, at Wedge Pond.

Pre-school to sixth grade students are eligible and all schools have passed out the application blanks to be taken home and signed by a parent. If another is needed for any reason, it can be obtained at the Sport Shop on Church Street, where the completed blanks are to be returned.

As usual there will be a pre-derby parade, and contestants are asked to meet in back of the Town Hall at 9 a.m. The derby goes from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Cap League Attracts 120

More than 120 boys turned out for last Saturday's and Sunday's Cap League baseball activities. There are presently eight full teams participating in this program.

All boys in the Cap League are requested to be at the theater parking lot by 8:30 a.m. on Saturday, May 22, to march in the En Ka parade.

Cap Leaguers should wear their new caps which were distributed last week end.

A few boys missing caps will receive them before the En Ka parade. So that boys can fully enjoy the Fair, no games will be played this Saturday. Play will resume again on Sunday.

Winchester Little League

By Charlie Lucier

NATIONAL LEAGUE

The Twins

Sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

This may be the year for the Twins. Manager Dave Boyle is keeping his fingers crossed but he says, "The team is stronger this year and they have the ability to take it all. I know that they can do it, too." Coach Al Milley explains, "It takes a couple of years to build a team and we think that we have just about arrived now. The boys are keeping the pressure on their opponents and it is bound to tell sooner or later."

The Twins have come up with three good pitchers so far and they have hopes of turning up another twirler as the season goes along. The number one man is Larry Weller who is also one of the best stickers on the club. Then they have Steve Devanty who can burn them in with the best of moundsmen and Anthony Pizzo, who is not about to take a seat for anybody.

First base is covered by Jim Hurley or Paul Swymer. Both boys are good glove menand can handle the job with top efficiency. Larry Weller can also dance around first base when he is not on a pitching assignment. Bob Jackson usually covers second and sometimes the Twins play Anthony Pizzo at the keystone sack. Tom Belden has third base nailed to his shoes and the manager does not need to worry about that position further. Alex Milley eats up everything that comes down shortstop way and he is a good hiter as well. And for extra protection there is John Howard who can fill in at an infield post or take over an outfield position with equal prowess.

John Donnell is as fine a catcher as you could hope for on any team. With a defense like that there is no reason for any lack of confidence in the Twins this season.

Dave Bower, Ron Castignetti and Davis Hall make up an outfield trio that would be hard to improve upon. Hall is one of the better hitters and the other two boys are getting better with each game. Mike Howard, Steve McDavitt and Steve Devanty can work outfield posts with speed and ability. Then Jim Hurley is aavilable for garden chores as well as Paul Swymer and John Howard.

With outfield material like that the Twins are certainly not short on defense. These boys are beginning to get their batting eyes sharpened up and the opposing pitchers are starting to learn to duck after they toss in the apple.

The Tigers

Sponsored by the Elks.

The Tigers have been rather docile up to now but they smell fresh meat and their fur is beginning to bristle. Manager Tom Mullaney is not in the least concerned about the slow start. "These boys are going to get in the groove shortly and then watch us tear up the turf," was his comment. Dave Ashton and Tom Mullaney, Jr., are the Tigers' coaches and both of them feel that the club is about ready to spring into action with a big "A."

Bill Harris is the catcher for this club and a better one would be difficult to find. Bill is a sticker too so that he is dangerous at the plate and behind it as well. Frank Pichler and Mike Shiang have carried the pitching chores along up to now and young Pichler also patrols an outfield post when needed. Mike turns up at short when he is not on the mound.

Joe Vitka is first base all the way. Joe works with authority on the bag and is the club's heavy hitter also. Dick Mullaney covers second base or handle an outfield position with ease and Henry Geroould works either second or short with plenty of ability. Paul Tonello is at home on the hot corner and his bat is also on fire. Bob Tonello is an all around guy who plays either an outfield or infield position when he gets the nod.

Charlie Adams, Jeff Ashton and Bill Swymer give this club an outfield group that is "top drawer" and Charlie Tatarian, Mark Von Rosenvinge and Dave Welles are always set to work in the outfield when the managerial choice works their way. These boys are good men with the glove and they are fast on their feet so that any combination gives the Tigers an outfield without a peer on any team in the league.

The Tiger snarls have been low-pitched so far but their voices are getting louder and their claws are getting sharper. The rest of the league had better start to look behind them for those Tigers come up on their prey without a sound.

The Bulldogs

Sponsored by Roderick L. Bullen, Realtor.

"We are playing the best baseball that we are capable of at the moment," says Manager Dale Sherborn of his Bulldogs, "but that does not mean that we are not going to get better with each game." There is no room for doubt of that statement from Coach Samoiloff. "These boys are doing a great job and I expect them to finish right up at the top of the pile," was the coach's comment.

The Bulldogs are chock full of spirit and the will to win. Dave Harsch, who does the catching, is a perfect example. Dave is a hard worker who inspires his club and what he does not do with his voice he does with his strong bat. Chris Pacetti is another receiver who can handle the team with equal efficiency so the Bulldogs are set in that department.

Pete Blanchard and Dick Swanson split the first base assignment and with two such men there is a problem for the manager in his choice for a starting lineup. Alex Samoiloff and Steve Spang work the second base territory and both boys are real good men at that position. Bill Arnold can play third or handle the left field post and Roy Goyea or Pete Pacetti can fill in at third base when Bill is in the outer garden.

Doug Errico usually handles the shortstop position but when he is pitching Ron Goyea slips into the shortstop shoes. Errico is one of the best pitchers in the loop. Mark Scollans is another pitcher who is poison to the opposing batters and Charlie Spang can toss them in with accuracy when he is called upon to do so.

Paul Cincotta and Brendan Riley work on either side of Mark Mellen in center field and this team is set as far as the outfield is concerned. Bil Arnold can hold down an outfield position as well as Charlie Spang so the Bulldogs are not worried about their defense.

When the Bulldogs swing into action it might be a good idea to have the "Beware of the Dog" signs posted where the rest of the league can plainly see them. This pup has real sharp teeth.

Calling All Little Leaguers

Don't forget the En Ka annual parade which will be held on Saturday, May 22. All Little League players are invited to join the parade with their managers or coaches. The parade will form at the Winchester Theatre parking lot at 8:30 a.m., and the boys are asked to be in uniform for the march.

The Mothers' Auxiliary is featuring a gaily decorated float as well as three trailers which will carry some of the uniformed players in the parade. All boys are urged to attend and make this year's march a huge success.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

The Reds

Sponsored by Purity Sav-Mor Market.

Manager Joe Julian was sitting on the bench after a recent game. "How are the Reds doing?" he was asked. Joe chuckled a bit, pushed his cap back on his head and said, "Golly, I don't know. We realize that we are weak in a few spots but we are working hard to correct them. And once we get that done there's no telling how we may end up."

The Reds have two coaches. Henry Petrillo is one and John McPhail. Both men speak as one when they talk about the Reds. "There is no question of the boys' determination," they agree. "They are working like demons to improve their playing and have the ability to profit by their efforts."

Nobody in the league is forgetting about the Reds for they have the stuff to pull the chestnuts out of the fire at any time. Behind the plate they are more than fortified with Chape Whitman as the big gun and Bobby Gill learning the ropes. Chape is a slugger and a wonderful backstop. Bob is fast becoming a carbon copy and by next year he will have the job all to himself.

The infield shapes up with Anthony Vespucci at first, Mark Siegfriedt at second, Joey Julian at short and Sandy Staniewicz at third. These boys are all good ball handlers and they are also heavy hitters. The Reds boast of another set of infielders that can perform just as well as the ones already mentioned. Kevin Anderson takes over at second, Carmen Fuccillo jumps into short and Pete Whitman takes over the hot corner, while Steve Everett plays first. Not many clubs can field two infields as fast and as good as these boys.

Outfielders are no problem. John Procopio can handle centerfield with the best of them. Then Keith McPhail goes into right field while John Piantedosi covers left field. John is also a good second baseman if the need arises. They they have Kevin Anderson and Carmen Fuccillo ready for outfield duty if needed. Mike Siegfriedt is another good garden man with a strong arm and plenty of savvy. John Dugan and Pete Whitman are ready to volunteerfor outfield duty so that the Reds are always strong defensively.

The number one pitcher on the club is Joey Julian with Steve Everett right behind him. John Procopio is so close he is practically a shadow and any manager would be pleased to have just one of these boys to say nothing of having all three.

Most of the hitting this season has been done by Tony Vespucci, Sandy Staniewicz, Chape Whitman, John Procopio and Joey Juilian. That is not to say that the rest of the team is resting on their bats. These Reds are ready to set a bomb off under the rest of the league at any time. But they give the opposition fair warning that the worst is yet to come.

The Leopards

Sponsored by Bixby & Northrup, Realtors.

"The Leopards are getting a slow start," Manager George Tello explained, "but they are trying hard and the wins will come as the season goes along." The two young coaches of the club are certain that their manager is correct. Steve Yanulis and John Tello, the coaches, add their words of praise. "These boys are giving all of the effort that they have to play better and they are sure to improve as they continue the schedule."

Like all clubs, the Lepoards have found that the breaks were not going their way. This club has some good material and as they begin to mesh the breaks will start to drop on their side of the fence. Working hard behind the plate is Charlie Potts who is making rapid strides in learning this spot. Charlie never caught before but he has the makings of a good receiver as time will testify.

Dave Fixler is the first baseman and a good one. Bill Haff takes care of second base and Torrey Wallace handles the third base chore. Tim Armstrong is a fixture at short and this infield is not about to take a back seat for anybody. Time is a heavy slugger and is doing his best to lead the way for the others.

Dick Dunn is the big man in center field with Dwight Baghdoyan at first and Dave Curtis in left. These thre garden men are fast and possess strong arms so that the defense is as tight as could be desired. Sean Flaherty, Andy McLaughlin and Vic Romano make up another good outfield and John Sauber is ready to step into an outfield spot when called upon.

Pitching is the strong point of the Leopard squad. Peter Tello is a fine tosser with accuracy and speed and Barry Mears can toss his share of the fast ones. Leigh Quinn rounds out the moundsmen and he is another good man. All of these pitchers, strangely enough, are among the good hitters on this team. Make no mistake about it, the Leopards are getting ready to howl and it might be a good idea to keep a sharp eye on them from here on in.

The Wildcats

Sponsored by McLaughlin's Shoe Store.

There is nothing more fierce than a wild Wildcat and Manager Charles Hall feels that his club is the wildest. "I am really proud of the way these boys are working," Manager Hall offered, "they are doing everything that they can to make a real ball club this year." Coach Ed Sandford smiles as he says, "They are a great bunch of boys and I am glad that I could work with them."

Jim Blackham is their catcher and they don't come any better on this job. George Kelley has nailed down the first base post and Kerry Brough does his best work around second base. Mark Laughlin plays short and is a good glove man while Dan Savant covers third base like a blanket.

Bob Thoms is a good all around player and when he is not pitching he takes over at shortstop. Bob Thoms and Mark Laughlin team up with George Kelley and Mark Forte to give this club its hitting strength.

Mark Forte is one of the best centerfielders in the league and no manager could ask for more than that. Mike Sandford takes over left field and it is a tough job to get one by him. Jim Savant handles right field and can be called to do mound duty if he is needed. Pete Brownell, Bill Hudson and Peter Kent form another trio of outfielders that can keep the efficiency of the club at top order. Peter O'Leary, Doug Leslie and Mark Simmons make up another set of outfielders whose defensive ability is at the peak. These boys are also potential pitching threats and the opposition might be facing one of them in an upcoming game.

The Wildcats can be peaceful enough but don't start hitting their pitchers or their fangs will unfold and the fireworks will start.

Duplicate Bridge Club

One evening when you won't need a partner will be Wednesday, June 2nd, at which time the Club Individual Championship will be held. At stake will be the honor and prestige of capturing the Winchester News Challenge Bowl, and defending champion Dr. Robert Blackler will be a formidable threat to extend his reign.

On May 12th, Section A was once again the popular eleven table Mitchell in which all EW pairs met all NS teams over a span of 22 boards.

In Section B, the presence of a roving pair resulted in a NS average of 100, while EW were shooting for the more common figure of 110.

Here is an interesting hand played by the Sittingers at their Peterborough Club against a couple from Keene, the member of which playing East is one of the top-ranking players in the area. Both sides are vulnerable.

West properly opened the bidding with one Spade, and my partner with a nice Heart overcall but with five Spades trap-passed. East with no support took out at one no-trump and I, playing South overcalled with two diamonds, the higher ranking of my two five-card suits. West continued with two Spades. North and East passed and much to my partner's chagrin I mentioned my second suit - three Clubs. North took out at three Diamonds, the better of my two suits and East promptly doubled. After two passes, my partner rescued by finally bidding her five-card Heart suit, and again East doubled. Now, having a fairly good picture of the hand, I felt reasonably safe in redoubling.

Partner took the initial Spade lead with her ace and led a Club, taken by East's ace. East immediately returned another Spade for me to ruff. The king of Clubs got rid of one of partner's diamond losers, and since trumps were never led by the opposition, four-odd was a cinch for a top score of 1,310. Cross-ruffing permitted loss of only a Heart, Diamond and Club, making seven trump tricks and one in each of the other suits. Better defense would have given the defense another trick but the resulting 910 points would still have been "top of the board."

All but one of the West Spade contracts were set up to 3 tricks, but one poorly played four-Heart contract went down three, — not doubled for no change in the match points! They probably defeated themselves by going after opponents' trumps.

WINCHESTER—Eight-room single, four bedrooms. Located on full half-acre lot, beautifully landscaped. Large play area. Ideal for children. We invite you to ride by 306 Washington Street. Please do not disturb owner. Asking $28,500. For appointment call Jerry Quarato at 729-7648, or EX 6-9134.

A Plant - and - a - Half

How would you like to have a hanging plant which was so big and and so beautiful that when people saw it they would say: "Boy, that's a plant-and-a-half!"

A candidate for this title is the immensely popular trailing fuchsia.

One of the most impressive family of plants I have ever seen, fuchsias would be a welcome addition to a shaded spot in anyone's garden. Available in either upright or trailing habit, these plants were ultra a la mode during the Victorian period and are just as fashionable today.

This member in excellent standing of the evening primrose (onagraceae) family was introduced to Europe from South America while the 1800's were young. The myriad varieties available today are the pride and joy of California hybridizers.

Fuchsia flowers are, to make an understatement, this plant's claim to fame. One who has beheld this beauty never forgets the wax-like details of the blooms. Every color combination is represented in the family except true blue and true yellow.

Purples are numerous, however, and some of the more exquisite flowers are to be found in this shade.

On both the upright and trailing types, the flowers hang; it is unfortunate that no picture accompanies this article since the blooms approach that which is beyond description.

Their structure is as follows: pendulous in nature, having a long tubular calyx, four spreading lobes, four small petals and conspicuously projecting stamens and pistils. That verbose description means that the flower hangs and is, basically, shaped along the lines of a cylinder.

The lobes are the things which cover the bud before it opens; they bend backwards. The petals "make the flowers." They are either ruffled, reflexed, etc.

As mentioned before, these plants require semi-shade as the leaves burn easily. In warmer climates, upright fuchsias are regarded as evergreen shrubs; they are not hardy in this climate, however.

For all practical purposes, these plants are a one-season-only variety. If you have fluorescent lamps for growing plants, do not count on keeping big plants over the winter, or even starting cuttings—fuchsias cannot be grown under any type of artificial light; the stems, which should be stiff, short and compact, get soft and spindly in no time.

It should not be necessary to prune a trailing variety since this job has been done by the florist. Uprights can be only variety. If you have fluorescent lamps for growing plants, do not count on keeping big plants over the winter, or even starting cuttings—fuchsias cannot be grown under any type of artificial light; the stems, which shou ldbe stiff, short and compact, get soft and spindly in no time.

It should not be necessary to prune a trailing variety since this job has been done by the florist. Uprights can be kept to desired heights. Soil for fuchsias can be either neutral or acid, but must never contain lime (alkaline).

The plants require a lot of water and the soil should never dry out. Do not neglect fertilizer.

Most garden centers have a wide selection of beautiful fuchsias; if you are not of the plant-and-a-half school already, why not try one of these magnificent specimens?

Discarded Pills Can Be Dangerous;

One reader relates to the Star that recently their dog came home very ill, and that a youngster stopped by the house to say the dog had eaten some pills that had been in a bottle lying on the ground.

The resident, remembering the Star editorial on poison prevention week, telephoned a local pharmacist—and ended up with three pharmacists helping her in trying to find out what the dog had eaten and what antidote should be given.

The story had a happy ending; the dog's owner took him to a vet where he was treated for the overdose of tranquilizers and returned to the family in good health. But the owner questioned: the story could have had an unhappy ending as far as the dog was concerned, and it could easily have been a child that found and ate the pills. Discarded pills can best be disposed of by flushing in a toilet or proper incineration. Medicines and other prescription substances should never be merely thrown away in a field or otherwise carelessly discarded.

Military Revises State Plans vs. Nuclear Attack

All Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps Active and Reserve forces assigned to support State Civil Defense in a nuclear attack will come under the direction of the Massachusetts National Guard, Maj. Gen. Joseph M. Ambrose, The Adjutant General of Massachusetts, announced today.

Assignment of military support of Civil Defense functions to the National Guard results from a Department of the Army plan approved by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

A total of six additional full-time officers and enlisted men are being added to the National Guard State Headquarters at Boston. They will have the status of National Guard technicians, and will be paid from Federal funds.

The State area command will provide support to the State Civil Defense system as required, and as available. The Civil Defense system will remain under civilian control except where civilian authority is unable to function.

To assure adequate planning, the Department of Defense has directed each of the military services to list specific forces that could support Civil Defense operations in a nuclear emergency.

Boating Safety

Each summer millions of family boating enthusiasts desert the highways for the high seas, rivers or ponds in canoes, rowboats, sailboats, outboard motor boats and inboards and even on makeshift rafts.

So many families take to the water for fun, relaxation, sport and health that some safety measures to avoid accidents are necessary. To help you return from the day's or week's outing safe and happy, the Medical Foundation, a United Fund agency, offers these suggestions for safe boating:

First and foremost for water safety is knowing how to swim, what to do if a swimmer is in trouble, and how to give artificial respiration using the approved mouth-to-mouth method.

Don't be one of the many who never reach the water's edge because of a traffic accident. Observe all the safety rules in regard to your car's condition, your boat trailer, and your driving.

Boating safety starts with a safe boat; one which is well built, well equipped and maintained clean and ship-shape.

While equipment varies with the size and type of boat, one item required in all boats is an approved life jacket for each passenger. Don't overlook an approved fire extinguisher for your pleasure craft. Fire is a boating hazard. Remember, gasoline fumes have the power of dynamite.

Match the motor to the hull. A large boat with a small motor means slow responses. A large motor with a small boat means difficult controls. Either can lead to disaster.

Before going out, check the weather. Stay within easy range of shore in large bodies of water. Sudden squalls can play havoc with unwary boatsmen.

Don't overload the boat, distribute the load evenly—side to side and bow to stern. Seats do not indicate capacity—total weight, not numbers, is your only safety guide. Don't stand or change seats while the boat is underway. If you must move about, keep low in the center and hold on to the gunwales.

Just as when driving your car it is important to know and practice the nautical rules of the road—the traffic signs or navigation aids, and the signals.

Keep a bow lookout while moving in strange or crowded waters. Only an irresponsible skipper will buzz a dock, or wharf. Avoid boating too close to swimmers, water skiers, or fishermen. Be careful of your wake when passing another boat.

If you do get into trouble in rough water, keep low in the boat and head into the waves. Remember that capsized boats rarely sink; stay with the boat until help arrives.

Let's remember folks, all it takes for fun and safety on the water is common sense and courtesy.

MSPCA Meets And Elects

The annual meeting of the Winchester MSPCA took place on Monday, May 10th at the home of Mrs. Maxwell McCreery, 4 Curtis Circle.

After the business meeting, the president, Mrs. Fred Cardin introduced a former Winchester resident, (Mrs.) Betty Bolster, now of Portland, Maine, who gave a vivid account of the work of the animal shelter in that city, one very interesting aspect of the program was the animal fair each year. This draws crowds from the surrounding countryside, the visitors gaining admission by the donation of dog and cat foods and other pet supplies. Many animals are adopted on this occasion and go home with their new families!

The highlight of the afternoon was a talk by Mrs. Walter Wilcox, Jr., of Arlington, on the topic "Making the Most of You." The charming speaker gave extremely useful hints on make-up, posture, choice of correct colors and lines of dress to suit one's complexion and figure. She was able to demonstrate the flattering effect of correct colors on three ladies selected from the audience, Mrs. Gordon Sidebotham, Mrs. Winthrop Knox and Mrs. Alfred Pywell.

At the conclusion of Mrs. Wilcox's informative and interesting talk, delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Dean Carleton's committee.

Nominated and elected to serve the group at the opening business session of the meeting were:

President, Mrs. Frederick Cardin

Vice President, Mrs. Maxwell McCreery

Rec. Secretary, Mrs. Robert Durfee

Cor. Secretary, Mrs. George Smith

- What Can Be 'Moral Breakdown Done About It?'

Winchester delegates from the Burlington Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses were among the 1563 assembled at Mechanics Hall, Worcester, to hear the climaxing talk of their three day assembly.

C. V. Henry, district minister for the Witnesses spoke on the subject of "The Moral Breakdown—What Can Be Done About It?" "No one can escape it," he said, "the moral breakdown affects us all. Three years ago J. Edgar Hoover said, 'A massive avalanche of crime (about two million a year) is sweeping our nation and is a shocking disgrace and a broad indictment of the American people.' "

Mr. Henry stated that "the basic cause for the moral breakdown is the failure to recognize the highest moral code in existence, God's great law book, the Bible. Where truth is cast aside or watered down, immorality follows. Behind the moral breakdown lies this fact: It is the rejection or abandoning of Bible principles that is a chief cause for the moral collapse. The world's view on morals is well described in the 14th Psalm verses 1-3."

The speaker then offered some positive solutions. "Bible study will unite families and combat the moral breakdown. Unless you learn righteous principles, you may do what is wrong. This will require diligent study on your part. No other book gives such a high standard of justice and gives the right counsel on business dealings, moral relationship with others, especially family relationships involving husbands, wives and children. Christians must have the proper attitude toward rulers, keep clean associations, settle disputes and many other things which vitally affect our daily lives. God's Word alone is concerned with these problems."

The highlight of Saturday's program was the talk on baptism by Mr. Henry after which 27 delegates were immersed. These 27 were added to the 68,236 who made their dedication and were immersed last year world-wide.

Saturday evening's program consisted of a talk and demonstrations which offered practical Bible counsel to all members of the family on how they may guard against delinquency in the home.

After an encouraging weekend the local delegates returned home where the regular meetings will be held at the Kingdom Hall.

Sidewalk Art Show to Boast Every Medium

Plans for Winchester's annual Sidewalk Art Show, sponsored by the Winchester Art Association, are rapidly reaching their final stages.

Invitations to exhibit in the June 5 show along the Manchester Field fence are going out to both amateur and professional artists in this part of New England, and announcements are being posted in studios and art schools. Hostesses to help hang pictures, make sales, and coordinate activities are being recruited, and working committees have been formed.

Artists will start to hang their pictures at 9 a.m. They will be on display along the fence on Mystic Valley Parkway until 5 p.m. A rich variety of picture styles in many mediums is expected. Although most of the works will be for sale, artists are also invited to show pictures that are not. Viewers may purchase art work during the day, or picking them up at the end of the day. The association receives a small commission on all sales to taking their selections with them, help support its art scholarship program.

Hostesses wearing distinctive hats will be on hand to help both the displaying artists and the viewers. They will pass out hooks, pins, and string to hang the pictures, help collectors with their purchases, and greet the public on behalf of the Art Association. In the event of rain, the show will be held the following Saturday, June 12.

GEORGE R. NOWELL of 68 Nelson Street completes his enlistment into the U. S. Marine Corps Reserve as Maj. A. N. Allen, executive officer of the Marine Air Detachment, administers the oath.

Nowell Enlists In the Marines

George R. Nowell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Nowell of 68 Nelson Street began his six months active duty as a Marine Air Reservist recently when he departed for recruit training at Parris Island, S. C.

Upon completion of "boot camp" Nowell will be transferred to Jacksonville, Florida, for the Aviation Familiarization Course. He may then be assigned to an advanced technical school or return to South Weymouth for on-the-job training in an aviation specialty.

After the initial six-month period Nowell will be assigned to one of three Marine Air Reserve squadrons at South Weymouth where he will attend drill one weekend each month for the remainder of his military obligation.

He is a graduate of Winchester High School and was formerly employed by G. R. Nowell & Son, Inc.

Competition For Service Stations

Winchester service stations are about to primp up for the Massachusetts Petroleum Council's annual "Service Station of the Year" contest.

The Council this year has declared any city or town within the perimeter of the planned Route 495 and its southern extension, Route 106, to be eligible for the competition.

The contest begins Memorial Day and ends July 28. Its purpose, according to Warren W. Deakins, council chairman, is to provide recognition for station dealers of outstanding merit, emphasize the importance of service stations to the community, and encourage good housekeeping at stations throughout the year.

WVNA Reports Mental Health Nursing Aid

Two striking examples of how our Visiting Nurses help other groups and agencies in Winchester were given at the monthly board meeting of the Winchester Visiting Nursing Association.

Miss Rita Plummer, the director, told of a new position just created on the staff of the Mystic Valley Mental Health Children's Clinic. This clinic is located in Lexington and serves the emotionally disturbed children of five towns, including Winchester. A special nurse has been added to the staff whose duty will be to consult with the nurses in the various towns, to give them help and advice, and also to find out about problems the town nurses may know of. Often a family will not admit it has a problem, but our visiting nurses, through their school work and the Board of Health Clinics, often can be of great help in discovering a problem and in giving advice to parents that they will often more readily accept from a nurse.

Mrs. Otto Schaefer then reported on the summer camp program. Several months ago En Ka Society asked our visiting nurses to suggest a list of children who needed summer camping experience but who could not afford to go. Miss Plummer presented a list to the Board and four board members interviewed the children and their parents. As a result, twelve happy children will soon be packing to go to camp.

Mrs. Thornton Stearns, education chairman, then presented a most interesting film about a hospital in Algeria, operated under CARE's Medico program. It is entirely staffed by volunteer doctors from the United States, each one of whom takes time from his busy practice to help the wretched and diseased people of this land.

Mrs. Robert Nyere, nominating chairman, introduced and welcomed Mrs. William Urmson as a new Board member.

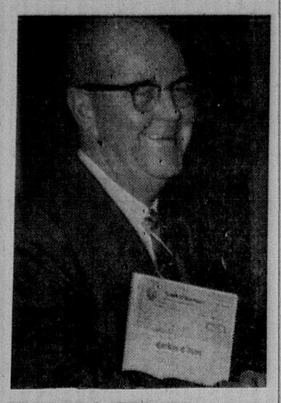
Clothing For Children Is Urgently Needed

There is a desperate need for babies and children's clothing and shoes for the suffering children in the world. Yard goods, sewing supplies, trading stamps for blankets and soap are also urgently needed.

Please bring to or contact the Clothing Center of the American Friends Service Committee, 5 Longfellow Park, Cambridge.

The American Friends Service Committee is a Quaker organization working through the United Nations, the Church World Organization and independently. The Church World Service reports there are 350,000 Angolan refugees in the Congo alone.

Many of the children have died from illness and starvation and the rest are in poor condition. The war-ravaged children of Algeria and Jordan, the fire-ravaged children of Lima, Peru, and many others are calling for help.



FRANCIS J. TIERNEY of 29 Nathaniel Road was recently honored in recognition of his suggestion which was adopted by the U. S. Post Office. Mr. Tierney, career clerk at the Somerville Branch, was appointed to the postal service in 1955. A citation and cash award went to him, presented by Ephraim Martin, Boston Postmaster.

Iron Curtain Photos Before Young Repubs

The Winchester Young Republican Club will hold its May meeting on Friday evening, May 21, at 8 p.m., in the East Room of the Town Hall.

Miss Barbara Currie of 20 Sunset Road, who recently returned from a 23-month tour of duty in Europe with the Department of the Army, will head the Y. R. program. Her many experiences overseas included a 10-day stay behind the Iron Curtain, most of that time being spent in Russia. Miss Currie will show color slide pictures taken while in Russia, describe her impressions of life behind the Iron Curtain, and display some souvenirs brought back with her to this country.

All Young Republicans Club members, as well as persons interested in joining the Y.R., are urged to attend what promises to be a most interesting evening.

Town Honors War Dead Memorial Day In Parade Ceremony

Plans are completed for Winchester's annual observance of Memorial Day on Monday, May 31, when the town will pay tribute to its armed service dead of all wars with a ceremonial parade headed by the U. S. Navy Band from Boston and local veterans, civic groups, and community leaders, marching in tribute.

The Memorial Day Sunday service, traditionally held before Memorial Day, was held last Sunday at 11 a.m. at the Second Congregational Church.

The annual decorating of veterans' graves will take place tomorrow at 6 p.m. for Wildwood Cemetery, and at 10 on Saturday morning for Calvary Cemetery.

On Monday morning the parade will assemble at Leonard Field at 9 a.m., and head towards Calvary Cemetery via Washington Street.

The invocation will be delivered at Calvary Cemetery by the Reverend Francis X. Turke of St. Mary's Church. Following the 9:30 taps ceremonies the parade will return along Washington for an "eyes right" while passing the memorial plaque on Leonard Field.

There will be the traditional placing of wreaths and taps ceremonies at the Town Hall Memorial Honor Roll at 10 o'clock, with refreshments at 10:20 and reassembly at 10:45.

The parade will proceed to the War Memorial at the McCall Junior High School for similar 11 o'clock ceremonies, and then go to Wildwood Cemetery for an 11:30 invocation by the Reverend James R. Scroggs of the Second Congregational Church and taps ceremonies.

The procession will return to the Center, where the Board of Selectmen will review the parade from the Common—opposite the First Congregational Church on Church Street— as it returns from Wildwood Cemetery before dismissal.

The Memorial Day Committee, headed by William J. Carroll, has extended an invitation to all Winchester veterans, regardless of whether they are members of veterans organizations or not, and to all servicemen home on leave from the armed services, to participate in the observance of Memorial Day exercises.

Hewes Appointed New Dean at The U. of Connecticut

Robert Earl Hewes of 7 Dartmouth Street, director of the Office of Institutional Studies at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has been named the new dean of students at the University of Connecticut.

In making the announcement on May 5, U of C president Homer D. Baddige, Jr., said:

"The University is quite fortunate to obtain the services of a man with Mr. Hewes' breadth of experience in the student affairs field."

Mr. Hewes succeeds Dr. Arwood Northby who earlier this year asked to be relieved of his administrative duties as dean and head of the U of C Division of Student Personnel to concentrate on teaching.

The new U of C dean served as MIT registrar from 1956 to Jan. 1964. An alumnus of Bowdoin College, he also holds a bachelor's degree from MIT.

During World War II, Mr. Hewes served as a flight test engineer with Convair in San Diego, Calif. He later transferred to Convair's Fort Worth plant for flight tests of the B-36 bomber.

Survey Team Will Study & Evaluate Community Services

Trained representatives of the Community Research Project of Metropolitan Boston will enter the second phase this week of their interviewing in more than 50 cities and towns throughout the area, including Winchester, as part of an intensive study of how to improve community services to meet the needs of the area's varied and changing populations.

Carrying identification cards, carefully designated questionnaires, and a list of addresses, a task force of some 50 expert interviewers will continue to aim for a storehouse of up-to-date population facts, that will provide important guidelines for basic long range planning of community programs. En Ka's "Sunflower Fair" Is Gala, Carnival Event; Attracts Large Crowds

The sun smiled brightly over last week-end's En Ka Sunflower Street Fair and the throngs of persons who visited it. The weather was perfect, the turn-out tremendous, the gayety infectious, and the town-wide enthusiasm very enjoyable for all present.

Winchester and her neighboring towns really supported En Ka Society in its wish to bring a fun week end to town and at the same time to procure the funds which will enable En Ka to continue to help the many civic, charitable and for-the-youth projects which look to the society for a helping hand.

The big climax of every year's En Ka Street Fair is, of course, the drawing for the big prize, this year a trip to Bermuda for two. Howard Molloy of Harvard Street, an Auxiliary policeman and custodian at the Library, was the lucky winner. His short speech of acceptance voiced the sentiments of winners down through the ages. "I'm very glad I won!" The huge stuffed tiger was won by En Ka's own Norma Mueller. A lucky young gentleman from Medford took home a handsome umbrella table donated by Barbo's.

The unusually long parade boasted more than the usual sound of music. Sirens and the Jug Band's rhythms and melodies were only a few of the additions which augmented the old standbys, the WHS band, and the Immaculate Conception Drum and Bugle Corps.

Parade award winners among the many fine floats were those of the Visiting Nursing Association for the float most in keeping with its activity, and that of the Homefronters, judged most in keeping with the country fair of the day for En Ka.

Historical Note

The 130th anniversary of the arrival of the first steam passenger train in Winchester is being observed today by the passage of regularly scheduled Budd electric trains passing through on the overpass. The first steam train through the Winchester of May in 1837 stopped at the northern end of the square where the then Boston and Lowell Railroad station depot used to be—and blocked the whole center. Today trains swiftly pass on the overhead almost unnoticed, and stop at the modern depot at the southern end of the square.

Traffic Rotary Beautified With Trees & Shrubs

The rotary traffic circle beneath the railroad overpass in the center was spruced up and given a manicured landscape appearance last week by the Park Department as they moved ahead with a small but attractive town beautification and improvement project.

Approximately 150 Betty Prior rose bushes were planted around the outside curb perimeter of the rotary circle last Thursday by a four-man crew under the supervision of Herbert S. Mullen, superintendent of the Park Department. The holes had been channelled earlier that week.

Mr. Mullen said the rose bushes will grow to about 36 inches in height before they are trimmed. Later, he said, they will form one continuous hedge as they fill out.

Four upright Japanese yews, were placed at the end sides of four corner pillars to the overpass on the rotary. Mr. Mullen said the Park Department would let them grow to about six feet in height before shaping them to a point.

Six crab-type trees were then installed in front of the three west and three east side facing rotary overpass square pillars. About 11 feet high when planted, Mr. Mullen said they might grow as high as 20 feet.

The beautification and improvement project at the rotary was estimated to cost about $400, with $225 in rose bushes and upright yews coming from Mahoney's Rocky Ledge Farm and Nursery, and $150 in trees from Western Acres nursery.

League to Study Local Recreation, Town Manager

At its local convention last week, the Winchester League of Women Voters adopted a major program of study and action for the coming year.

After an active campaign and a lively convention, the members voted two new items for study, a study of recreation facilities and a study of the town manager form of government. Campaigns at league conventions are for the choosing of program, not the selection of candidates.

The league studied recreation several years ago and made a detailed survey of the recreation facilities available at that time. As a result of that study, the league urged the formation of the present Winchester Recreation Committee. The current study will examine the proposals of the Recreation Committee, and will look at existing recreation facilities and green areas.

Four years ago, the league began a series of studies of town government, starting with the re-writing of the best seller, "Inside Winchester," a ciiztens' handbook of Winchester town government.

"Our town manager study is an exploratory one," Mrs. John W. Null, league president, explained. "We would like to know what changes a town manager form of government would mean in Winchester; if it would be more efficient and economical; if the voters would be as much in control. We would examine the experience of other communities; look at previous studies; and confer with our town officials. Then, after study and discussion, see if a change would be helpful here."

The League of Women Voters takes action on a governmental issue only after thorough research, study, and discussion among members, and then only if there is substantial agreement among the membership. In two areas this was completed this year.

The convention voted to continue to support measures which would encourage planning among the various town boards and departments, and to support proposals to increase school building facilities. The league publication, "Survey of Public School Space Needs," has been widely quoted during the present town discussion on school building.

School Building Proposal Debate Continues, Hanging; Issues: Cost, Site, Bussing

The special Town Meeting called to determine whether the town should construct a new $5 million modern high school complex on the west side at a site on Turkey Ridge as a solution to the overcrowded secondary school problem ended late Monday night in mid-debate dissolution with no action taken.

With the long awaited secondary school building decision left hanging, and with debate continuing and no vote taken, the Town Meeting elected to reconvene the adjourned session at 7:45 p.m. in the high school auditorium on Thursday, June 3.

Attention on the secondary school problem Monday night centered around two main issues: providing excellent, yet economically reasonable, high school facilities; and centrality of location as against problems attendant to building away from the center. The Permanent Building Committee recommended building a new high school outside the center at Turkey Ridge. The Planning Board countered with a proposal for one near the center through eminent domain of taking some 60 houses in the Lake, Middlesex and Main Streets area. And one Town Meeting Member proposed staying at the present high school with an addition. The meeting adjourned with seven remaining speakers registering their intention to present their views on the issue.

High School Plans Proposed: Town Hesitates Before Acting On $5 Million Project

Following the opening prayer offered by the Rev. Robert A. Storer, minister of the Unitarian Church on Main Street and Mystic Valley Parkway, Town Moderator Harrison Chadwick informed the special Town Meeting that the actions of the annual Town Meeting had been validated by the Legislature (Chapter 459, Acts of 1965) and signed by Gov. John A. Volpe of Winchester.

The validity of the annual meeting had come under question when the town government failed to deliver all the annual warrants in the prescribed time procedure, and Rep. Chadwick was obliged to file a Legislative bill approving all actions taken.

Moderator Chadwick also informed the special Town Meeting that the Recreation Committee had scheduled a public hearing on a new recreation center proposal for Wednesday night, and that he thought the issue was of great importance to the town and deserved a large turnout.

ARTICLE TWO

The Town Meeting voted to consider Articles Two and Three before Article One, the school building issue. Article Two asked the town to accept Chapter 148, Acts of 1965, by which the Legislature allowed the town to pay an amount of about $640 to Miss Minnetta Jurgenson, retired Noonan principal, for teaching services rendered in remedial reading in the 1964 Winchester summer school program. Mrs. Robert Grenzeback, chairman of the School Committee, said the amount was to pay a "moral obligation" because Miss Jurgenson had volunteered her services to the town after it was found that the town could not continue to pay for her services according to state law. Charles Doucette, chairman of the Finance Committee, recommended favorable action on the article, and the Town Meeting approved it.

ARTICLE THREE

The Town Meeting quickly voted to appropriate $110.05 to pay an unpaid 1964 Civil Defense bill for repairs to the Auxiliary Fire Department's oil burner after the Finance Committee recommended passage of the article.

SCHOOL COMMITTEE

Moderator Chadwick began to explain the order of speakers he wished to follow for the sake of presentation when Arthur Hewis rose to question the Moderator's procedure. Moderator Chadwick told Mr. Hewis he would have his opportunity to speak later. He then read the article and explained what it allowed for.

Mrs. Grenzeback spoke first, outlining the three factors creating the school space problem—higher enrollments, demand for new and more flexible types of curriculum space, and the need for a larger plant. She pointed out that the high school exceeds its educational capacity now by 23%; that the curriculum has been greatly expanded with new teaching techniques and offerings; and that since the remodelling of WHS and McCall there has been a problem with further conversions and subdivisions within the buildings that showed they were being pressed beyond their structural limits.

Mrs. Grenzeback showed seven slides illustrating to the assembly the crowded conditions in the WHS corridors; the auditorium used as a study hall—without desks for writing; the cafeteria used for study halls and demonstration lectures; the teachers lounge used as a classroom; and at the junior high school the industrial arts room that was altered to a classroom; the drafting room changed to a lab; and "elbow-to-elbow" cafeteria conditions.

"The School Committee believes the recommendations of the Permanent Building Committee most completely answers the requirements of the school needs," Mrs. Grenzeback concluded.

BUILDING COMMITTEE

Austin Broadhurst, chairman of the Permanent Building Committee's secondary school subcommittee, pointed out that his committee had been assigned the task of considering solutions to the secondary school problem, including additions, renovations, alterations, and new buildings.

He emphasized the committee's three basic reference points: How many pupils to plan to house? What sort and size for facilities for any given number of students? And, how to provide the best possible answer for Winchester?

The interweaving of many diverse factors made the problem more difficult, he noted, and the committee jointly, with the School Committee, hired the services of an expert in school planning, Dr. John Marshall—who recommended building a new high school away from the center, but offered a compromise plan by joining WSH and McCall by a bridge or tunnel.

Using the results of Dr. Marshall's report in April, 1964, Mr. Broadhurst added, led to the committee's hiring of Architect's Collaborative of Cambridge for recommendations on building designs and locations for a new secondary school, which led to the selection of the Turkey Ridge site as the best site available.

Mr. Broadhurst said the committee had looked into the chance that a new parochial school built in town might ease the load, but found none planned. The building of a regional vocational technical school won't remove that many students from WHS, Mr. Broadhurst added, and if Route 3 eventually does go through Winchester it would not, according to present plans, cut across the proposed new high school site.

"The basis for planning," he said, "is the number of pupils to be taught."

"We are in a position to solve, correct and settle our secondary school problem—which has persisted for over two decades here now—if we choose a wise solution," Mr. Broadhurst said emphatically.

"It is the educational advantages versus the educational disadvantages which is the major thrust of the Permanent Building Committee's recommendation," Mr. Broadhurst said, and added that the key element involved is the flexibility of the new high school proposal for gave them a good 10 point start over Myopia's 5.

Another big and important win was the 12-3 score over TCC, the only match played in the rain, this one on their home course. Their wins over Worcester, Belmont and Dedham were quite close.

Final scores for the players had Mrs. Davidson in the lead with 13, Mrs. Bentley next with 10½, Mrs. Hood 8½, Mrs. O'Connor 6½ and Mrs. Thomas 6. Mrs. George Hall did a good substitution job for the team when she replaced Mrs. Thomas in the home course match against Belmont.

The team which took the WCC to the top last week was made up of the five players there holding the lowest club (and state) handicaps. Mrs. Thomas with a 5 was the group's captain. The Mesdames O'Connor, Bentley and Davidson are rated with a 9 and Mrs. Hood 10.

Winchester Country Club helped to establish a participation record for the W.G.A.M. competition this year with a total of seven teams entered in contest for the same number of the 22 cups played for by 660 players. Local teams were after cup 4, 10, 14, 15, 18 and 21 and all had very creditable records. None finishing lower than fourth.

Herbert W. Dutch

A 93-year-old native of Winchester, well known in his more active days as a pioneering educator, died on Thursday, May 20, at his home in Glen Ridge, New Jersey.

Herbert W. Dutch was born in Portland, Maine, May 9, 1872 the eldest son of Marshall H. and Charlotte H. Dutch of Winchester. He was the brother of the late Charles F. Dutch of Town Counsel here and of Marjorie Dutch, a member of the Unitarian Church.

Mr. Dutch came to Winchester with his family at an early age. He was graduated from the Winchester High School; and worked his way through Harvard College as assistant to the noted Prof. Le Baron R. Briggs, and by singing regularly in the Appleton Chapel choir. He was graduated from Harvard magna cum laude in 1896.

After teaching in Maine, he returned to Winchester as Greek and Latin teacher in the High School, and as assistant principal to the late Edwin N. Lovering.

In 1902 he took his savings to go to Europe for a year's study and travel. At the University of Bonn, he made his notes in archaeology and history in German, thus mastering the language and the information at once. He traveled with student groups to Czarist Russia, and to Troy and Greece under the guidance of Schliemann's successor, Prof. Dorpfeldt. In the summer, he chaperoned two Winchester High School boys through Switzerland, and met there the family of the Winchester Unitarian Minister, Dr. W. J. Lawrance, whose daughter Ruth soon became his bride.

After another year of teaching, he was called to Muskegon, Michigan to double duty as principal of two city high schools.

From Muskegon the young couple went to Montclair, N. J. in 1906, where Mr. Dutch pioneered in many of the aspects of student-government and student-participation in school functioning that are now taken for granted. Representative student - government, student - run bank and cafeteria, Senior Forum with outside speakers, were lightly referred to in 1910 as "Dutch reforms," but became established and well-known outside Montclair. Graduate classes from Teachers College, Columbia, were brought to study Mr. Dutch's progressive methods in action.

After twenty years as principal in Montclair, Mr. Dutch went to Glen Ridge, N. J., as superintendent, where he continued to organize, stimulate and broaden the school program until his retirement in 1942.

Increasing deafness curtailed his singing and dramatic activities, but he kept abreast of school news and world affairs through the N. Y. Times, as well as various periodicals and books of biography and archaeology.

He belonged to the Scholia Club of Columbia University, the Headmasters Association and the Harvard Club.

He is survived by his widow, Ruth L. Dutch, a daughter, Mrs. Harold F. Fultz, and a grandson, Fred Fultz.

Mr. Armstrong, an engineer with the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company, retired eight years ago after 43 years of service. He was a member of the Telephone Pioneers, the First Congregational Church of Winchester and the Congregational Men's Club. He was a veteran of World War I.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by a daughter, Mrs. William E. Natti of West Springfield, and a son, Rev. Donald C. Armstrong of Cleveland, Ohio. He also leaves two step-daughters, Mrs. Ralph M. Manning and Mrs. Donald G. Abbott, both of Winchester, and 14 grandchildren.

first phase, a control group of 1,000 interviews were conducted toward the total of 7,500 all of which must be completed during the next several weeks.

People of all ages, in all types of work, and in all social and economic classes, will be surveyed as interviewers approach addresses in a scientifically selected sample. This is believed to be the largest cross-section sample ever taken in the Greater Boston area outside of the census.

Using this interview method, the study will gather and analyze information on the changing needs and services in each community, examine how people presently utilize the services available to them, and find out where people feel that needs for necessary health, welfare, and recreation can be improved.

"It is important," Community Research Project director and nationally recognized sociologist, Dr. Morris Axelrod, points out, "that everyone who falls into this sample be interviewed. The accuracy of any such sample in representing the total population from which it is drawn depends on interviews taken at every address that has been picked."

Dr. Axelrod has been impressed with the eagerness and willingness of the area's citizens to make their views known. He speculates that it is in the town meeting tradition.

The Community Research Project, financed wholly by private foundations and government agencies, is sponsored by the U. S. Public Health Service, the United Community Services, and the Combined Jewish Philanthropies. The Combined Jewish Philanthropies initiated the project.

Those who take part in the interview will have the unique opportunity to serve themselves and their neighbors merely by expressing their feelings, attitudes, likes, and dislikes about the needs and the adequacy of community services.

Dr. Axelrod assures those to be interviewed, that under no circumstances will any information on individual respondents be released, and each reply will be held in the strictest confidence.

Board Of Health Anti-Rabies Dog Vaccine Clinic

An anti-rabies vaccine clinic for dogs will be conducted by the Winchester Board of Health on Saturday, June 5, from 9 in the morning to noon, and from 1 to 4 p.m., at the Town Hall.

The anti-rabies vaccine clinic, sponsored by the local health board, will be the first in Winchester in 11 years, and this will be the first such clinic started on an annual basis here.

In announcing the anti-rabies clinic, Michael D. Saraco, director of the Board of Health, said, "There is a rabies source in the wildlife of several New England states with outbreaks of wildlife rabies occurring in Maine during 1962 and 1963, and in Vermont in 1964 and 1965.

"It is still possible to have a rabies outbreak in the wildlife here in Massachusetts," Mr. Saraco said.

"Such an outbreak," Mr. Saraco continued, "could endanger our pets by the introduction of rabies into our dog population by bites from rabid wildlife."

Mr. Saraco urged that dog owners protect their pets against rabies by one inoculation of rabies vaccine, either through their veterinarian or at the Board of Health clinic.

The theme of the dinner and tour meeting was "people meeting people," which is this year's theme of National Hospital Week, which was osberved this month.

Town Meeting: The Important School Decision

It was disappointing to see Monday night's special Town Meeting adjourned without its reaching a decision on whether or not it would accept the Permanent Building Committee's recommendation for construction of a new high school on the Turkey Ridge site on the west side of town. On the other hand, we would rather see the meeting adjourned several times and reconvened until the issue is thoroughly met, discussed, and wisely decided upon. We are fearful, as is the community-at-large, that the Town Meeting might decide too quickly, or without being sufficiently informed or advised, or just might make the wrong decision to resolve the issue in some manner that is most expeditious and least controversial.

In an important community issue like this, it often happens that peripheral concerns enter into the picture as "factors" to be considered—and gradually then begin to take on greater weight in final determinations. This is unfortunate, it happens, but while peripheral considerations should be brought up and examined they should not be considered as important as elemental factors—upon which decisions should be more heavily based. One Town Meeting Member very wisely brought this out on Monday night, saying that the real issue under consideration was whether to build a new school and at the Turkey Ridge site, and not whether people liked the idea of moving out of the center of town or whether they could learn to like the idea of bussing more children than are now bussed.

The real issue in this secondary school building problem decision is whether or not a new school building is justified or whether an addition or other arrangement can satisfy the educational space requirements. The present high school facility is inferior in terms of what its space provides the administration to work with. It also is not large enough to cope with the enlarged school population. Either an addition or another building is needed, and to most it must appear clear that another jerry-built addition will only add another future problem onto a presently existing problem.

If this town is going to spend a substantial amount of money for either an addition or a new building, it should be for a new building. Why continue to tinker with toys when we're talking about real heavy capital investment for the Winchester of the next half-century or more. In making a judgment of that order, wisdom in planning today will be wisdom in economics and values returned tomorrow.

No one likes the Turkey Ridge site, it appears, not even the committee recommending it. What are we going to do, blame this committee for recommending to us a plan to use one of the few remaining locations in town suitable for the purpose when we should in fact look back at the town's history book and point to previous leaders and residents who did not have the foresight to plan ahead by reserving town lands closer to the center. Let us not repeat their earlier errors in land planning by making a similar shortsighted decision now in school building planning.

If any money is spent for secondary school building space, it should be for a new facility—one with flexibility and designed for modern teaching methods and people.

Memorial Day: A Remembrance And A Rededication

Break out the banner, for Sunday is Memorial Day, and you will want your standard to be clean, fresh, brilliant, and furling as freely as we as a nation are free.

Every house, every business, every public building in this town should prominently display the American Flag on Memorial Day. Memorial Day . . . when we honor all the men who sacrificed their time, effort, "blood, sweat and tears," and lives; that our nation should not be trod upon by other nations, and that our people should not be subjected under others, but should remain free in every way to discover destiny.

Memorial Day has undergone somewhat of an evolution since its inception in 1869. In that year, General John A. Logan, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, designated May 30th as a day on which the graves of Union soldiers were to be decorated. Over the years the honor was extended first to include the graves of Confederate soldiers, and finally the graves of American soldiers of all wars. In recent years, Congress has enlarged the scope of Memorial Day by proclaiming it as a day when the nation shall pray for peace.

Memorial Day is simply a public acknowledgement of a great debt of gratitude we living Americans feel in our hearts for what those we honor did for us, for this nation, and for liberty and freedom to the principles for which they gave their last full measure of devotion.

When you see the Flag pass in review in Memorial Day parades on Sunday, and Monday, cheer for the sailors that fought on the waves for it, cheer for the airmen that flew dangerous skies for it, cheer for the soldiers that always were brave for it, and, there will be tears for the men that went down to the grave for it.

With all the many kinds of challenges, dangers, and problems that we as a free people face in the current Cold War era—a different kind of war that we are in fact actually engaged in—it is even more necessary that we rededicate ourselves on this Memorial Day to the cause of human freedom, and to the cause for which our fighting veterans died.

So when you fly the United States Flag on Memorial Day, fly it in remembrance, in rededication, in pride! Fly the Flag with the determination that the supreme sacrifices that have gone into the building and preservation of our free country shall never have been made in vain.

Special Town Meeting

future educational space requirement changes or enlargements for a larger high school population.

Mr. Broadhurst then showed several slides, showing how the concept of teaching has changed relative to teacher-pupil arrangements in classrooms, how the various five alternative proposals might be designed on existing buildings to accomodate the requirements set down by the School Committee, and via a town map how the only site large enough and reasonable enough without a lot of hometakings would be at the Turkey Ridge location.

In explaining a chart of figures by the PBC to show the comparative costs of the various possible solutions (published in last week's Star, editorial page), Mr. Broadhurst stressed that he did not present the figures as being exact—but that they were estimates, and the differences between the estimated figures were fairly comparable he was sure. He further explained that the cost of building a new high school on the Turkey Ridge site appeared to be double the normal cost for building a new high school due to the cost of developing the land in the area for the construction and playing fields. Looking at the chart, he pointed out, the new high school plan turned out to be the least expensive solution; and the addition plan the most expensive.

BUSSING

On the problem of bussing, Mr. Broadhurst noted that Winchester now busses more than half its students at a cost of about $25,000 a year. Under the new high school plan, he said, the cost would rise to about $76,000, but with the state picking up the tab for everything over $35,000—or, the increase is just $8,000 more than the town is now paying.

The location is not centrally located, Mr. Broadhurst readily agreed, but said he did not see the merit in weighing the peripheral disadvantages as much as the educational advantages. The new high school would be a self-contained educational facility with good accommodations for educational instruction.

"The Permanent Building Committee thinks the time has come for the town to make up its mind and make a decision," Mr. Broadhurst stated. "We urge upon you a decision, a decision now," he said, "and the new high school proposal is a good one and is the right decision."

QUESTIONS, ANSWERS

There followed nearly an hour-long question and answer period between the assembly and Mr. Broadhurst.

One Town Meeting representative asked if the Turkey Ridge proposal were defeated did the PBC have an alternative suggested plan for recommendation. Mr. Broadhurst said the committee would ask to adjourn the meeting a few weeks in order to reorganize its orientation.

George Barbaro asked if the cost of blasting ledge had been included in the land development figures, and Mr. Broadhurst said the architects had included blasting figures in the total $665,000 land development costs.

Clarence Borggaard asked what proportion of students would have to be bussed, and was told aproximately two-thirds.

Robert Winn asked why a new high school couldn't be built on Shore Road Field. Mr. Broadhurst said the town spent over $50,000 to develop it as a playing field, and in addition, to try and build a heavy building on it would take a lot of engineering and additional ground support construction.

David Wardwell asked why as much as 200,000 square feet was needed in the new high school building plan, and Mr. Broadhurst answered by saying the present high school has 39,332 square feet of instructional space, not including the library, gym, cafeteria, stairways and other areas not devoted to actual classes. This compares to 160,000 square feet in the new school plan, and the difference to 200,000 square feet was for non-educational uses such as storage, etc.

Joseph Tansey asked whether the committee had returned to see Dr. Marshall after he gave his report and when they decided to recommend the new high school at the Turkey Ridge site. Mr. Broadhurst answered that the committee sent its finished report to Dr. Marshall, soliciting his reaction, but had received no reply. In elaborating on his answer, Mr. Broadhurst noted that the committee had reached different figures than Dr. Marshall had in making his recommendations, and therefore the committee had reasoned that Dr. Marshall's conclusions had been based on his figures and therefore his recommendations (the Marshall plan alternative) might have been different with the figures used by the committee. Mr. Broadhurst added that Dr. Marshall had leaned toward recommending a new high school outside the center of Winchester, but decided in favor of connecting WHS and McCall buildings by a bridge or tunnel as being cheaper and something Winchester would be more likely to "buy" for the population projections he had researched.

Frank Hawkins asked about the firmness of the $200,000 figure for landtakings. Mr. Broadhurst said the figures were derived from estimates made by Ralph Horn, vice president of Meredith and Grew real estate firm, and an assessor of the town of Reading. A woman representative asked if 10 cents a foot for backland was a realistic figure, and Mr. Broadhurst answered that his committee was under the impression all values were appraised at their full and fair cash value.

Ralph Atkinson asked what the $780,000 land figure in the addition plan to the existing high school was for, and Mr. Broadhurst said it was to take six acres of land with houses to replace land occupied by the addition. He added that Manchester Field is not now big enough to handle all the high school's athletic and playing field needs, and that the PBC "believes it is inevitable that if the town elects to stay in the center it will have to add land onto Manchester Field—and it will merely be delaying that cost if it isn't done at the outset if that plan is the one chosen."

Herbert Lord interrupted and asked "Do you think we'll live that long?" To which Mr. Broadhurst retorted immediately, "Yes!"

Mr. Borggaard asked whether there wouldn't be a vacant school if both a new high school and a new elementary school are built. Mr. Broadhurst said no, that when a new high school would open, and a new elementary school filled, the McCall would be about half-filled (250 to 300 pupils) with fifth and sixth grade students, and the remainder of the 550 student capacity McCall would fill up as the elementary school population increased.

Vincent Carroll rose and asked the Moderator to conduct a standing vote to see how many of the Town Meeting Members had actually gone and seen the Turkey Ridge site. Moderaotr Chadwick said such a motion would be better suited after the question period was over, but it was not raised again and so, likely, a great many Town Meeting Members were saved the possible embarrassment of showing that they could be voting on a proposal to construct a $5 million structure o na site they had never seen!

John Horn asked if road and drain figures had been included in the total cost estimate, and was told they had been.

Mr. Borggaard asked about the heavy schoolchildren traffic up Johnson Road and High Street if a new high school were built there. Mr. Broadhurst noted that there were sidewalks up Johnson Road, but not on High Street. As far as the bussing problem was concerned, Mr. Broadhurst said, that would be mostly an administrative problem for the School Committee to handle.

PLANNING BOARD PLAN

Moderator Chadwick read the motion to the assembly and asked if there were any debate. The meeting atmosphere was tense at this point, and no one rose to be the first speaker in opposition. There were several quick calls for "the question," or to have the vote then, but several persons promptly rose to present their points of view.

William G. Chapman, Jr., a member of the Planning Board, said the PBC had made its recommendation proposal based on the premise of no house takings unless absolutely necessary. "The Planning Board constitutes the 'unless,'" Mr. Chapman said.

The taking of a few houses to provide for a new high school centrally located for the majority need leads to the possibility of a new proposal" he said.

Prefacing his proposal with the comment that he would not want to impinge on the property rights of others, Mr. Chapman said the town must look at things as they are.

He proposed that the town take by eminent domain all the houses and land from Lake Street north to Park land, and from Middlesex Street east to Main Street.

The land involved covered about 31 acres, Mr. Chapman suggested, and approximately 60 houses (counting duplexes as two houses for two families). "These are small homes but very well kept," he asserted, "but their average assessed value is around $7,000 apiece, whereas homes that would be built on the Turkey Ridge site would be assessed at $20,000 each, minimum, yielding nearly three times the tax revenues to the town.

He further pointed out that the land along Middlesex Street would be all flat and wouldn't require heavy land development costs. Also, he noted, the area would be quiet by necessity because it would be adjacent to the cemetery. Most importantly, he said, the central location wouldn't alter the town's traffic problems greatly—as the other plan would, and disastrously, he said.

The Planning Board had given serious consideration to this proposal, he asserted, and recommended it as the best solution for a high school site on the basis of central location, more suitable land, and economic values involved.

MARSHALL PLAN

George Barbaro said he found it hard to reconcile $4,700 an acre for the west side land that the PBC said it would cost when he knew land was selling for $10,000 and $20,000 an acre in that part of town.

"If we tried to find a spot more inaccessible, more costly to develop, or less desirable I don't think we could do it," he said.

Mr. Barbaro said Turkey Ridge is one of the highest locations in Massachusetts, topped by only the Blue Hills, and the proposed site is at the summit of the two steepest and highest roads in town and across two of the most dangerous intersections in town.

"I am unalterably for the Marshall Plan," Mr. Barbaro said, adding that the town purchase the services of an expert in the field of educational planning and we should follow his figures and advice.

"This site would be the most expensive land taking in the history of the town," he said. "Let's listen to the experts, and not the self-appointed experts," he added.

ANOTHER PLAN

Robert Murphy said he thought the PBC was proposing to build the wrong building at the wrong location at the wrong time, and was seconded by applause. He said the PBC had concerned itself with a building and then where to put it, whereas he felt it should have been the other way around.

Mr. Murphy noted that the PBC plan would take about one-half million dollars of teenage spending right out of the center during the course of a year—and he said look at the centers in Woburn, Stoneham and other towns and see if that was what we wanted here.

Mr. Murphy said he figured the cost of land at the PBC Turkey Ridge site at more like $18,000 an acre, or over four times the PBC estimate. This would mean, if other PBC figures were low, he said, that the cost of the new high school at Parcel 14 would be closer to a $7 million project than a $5 million building program.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON

"If President Johnson had parachuted into Viet Nam he wouldn't have created one-half the commotion the Planning Board's proposal to take 60 family homes in Precinct Six would do," said Joseph Tansey.

"We look to the Planning Board for direction and they come up with this," Mr. Tansey exclaimed.

He added he respected the School Committee and the PBC, but he was sorry he just "could not swallow that site."

"I hope we get to a quick vote on this, a no vote," he said, "so we can get going on this with another site."

YOU SHALL OVERCOME

Mr. Wadsworth said, "If you can overcome your feelings of bussing, and of the site as being way out, the plan looks good." "You must give some serious thought to bussing and being out of the center," he said, "but this is not the problem."

"Isn't what you really want a new school built for the next 50 years, and not another two or three additions onto this WHS?" he asked.

IT'S WHAT COUNTS

Barbara Joslin rose to address the meeting affirmatively, saying, "I insist that the Town Meeting judge this school building issue on the basis of education." "I refuse," she continued, "to vote for a school on the basis of traffic patterns!" "And," she added, "I refuse to vote for a school on the basis of what the merchant's profits will be one way or another."

"And to consider the Turkey Ridge site proposal as out on the basis of tax values is absolutely idiocy!" she exclaimed.

"If you vote this new high school proposal down it will show you prefer to dodge the issue than to face it," Mrs. Joslin concluded, and was followed by heavy applause from the assembly and audience.

LVW

Mrs. John Null, president of the League of Women Voters, said the League strongly endorsed the PBC proposal.

CHAMPAGNE & BEER

"This town has a champagne appetite and a beer income!" Herbert Lord exclaimed at the conclusion of a short speech against putting another new school in the hands of the School Committee.

BROAD-GAUGED LOOK

"Let's take a broad-gauged hard look at the thing now," Atty. William J. Speers said.

He noted he was chairman of the committee that remodelled the McCall and WHS buildings, that they were directed to stay within those facilities and in the center in their work—even though it did not seem good sense to the committee at the time. "So don't try to monkey around again with what's here in the center," he said. "You've got to build a new school sometime," he asserted, and added that while the chosen site is not ideal or perfect, it was better than any other alternative.

FACING UP

"We have never faced our school building problems—and I say we because I was one of you—for so-called 'good' reasons," John Shanahan charged, "because the town couldn't afford any more, or was not sure of the projection figures, or thought it couldn't get by with what it had."

"Let's face the problem," he said, "take the solution we have had recommended here, and stand up and be counted on and for it."

DISSOLUTION

Moderator Chadwick asked how many speakers still wished to speak, and seven raised their hands.

Joseph Gray, chairman of the Planning Board, rose to move adjournment until Thursday, June 3, at 7:45 p.m. at the WHS auditorium.

On a standing vote of 112 to 59 the special Town Meeting, session one, was adjourned.

HOW TO BE A JEWISH MOTHER

by Dan Greenberg

This you should read. As the author says, you don't have to be either Jewish or a mother to be a Jewish mother. An Irish waitress or an Italian barber could also be a Jewish mother. But there is a special knack required and this is an authoritative treatise on the subject. Dan Greenberg is not a Jewish mother, but he has one.

There are several basic techniques required and you must master these or some morning you might wake up and find that your children can get along without you. Make sure they know that you are worrying about them and sacrificing for them. Sigh often and adopt an expression of suffering. This can be learned from watching television commercials. Copy the expression of the actor before he has taken such and such patent medicine.

There are several handy phrases that may be used to make your child feel guilty. Try "Go ahead and enjoy yourself," "Don't worry about me," "I feel fine, it will go away," etc. There are others which will come to you with practice.

Jewish mothers must feed people. There is a skill to be acquired in this too. Anyone who refuses a third helping of anything you cooked can be made to feel ungrateful and a boor if you work it right. Bread should be eaten with all courses including dessert to help "wash it down." Anybody who weighs less than two hundred and fifty pounds is properly referred to as a scarecrow.

There is a chapter on entertaining for the Jewish mother. Besides seeing that everyone has a little something to eat, i.e., the equivalent of a twelve-course meal, she can (a) have her son play the violin, (b) have her daughter play the piano, (c) tell a funny story—in this case since the important part of the story is the punch line that should come first. If it is a family gathering it is all right to discuss those members who could not attend. If there are men present current events may be mentioned; and since men do not consider food prices or babies current events, the informed hostess will do well to have at her fingertips a few comments to make on affairs of the day. The following may be useful. Yuri Gargarin: Very nice. I saw him at the Bolshoi last time. Dances nice, not like a sissy. The Common Market: I go mainly to the A. and P. Thermonuclear War: Feh! Who needs it. The Cincinnati Reds: In any large city you're going to find trouble makers.

There are chapters on thrift, on education, on sex and marriage, and on several other important matters, in each case with solutions of problems arising from thrift, education, sex, etc. The final chapter, presupposing the problems in the sex and marriage chapter to have been solved, is entitled How to be a Jewish Grandmother and has several good pointers on bringing up baby in spite of his bumbling and incompetent parents.

This expose of motherhood is not directed only at Jewish mothers. The author chose that kind because she was available for first-hand study. All mothers have some of these characteristics. Jewish mothers only have more of them.

Letters To The Editor

Only signed letters to the editor of the Star will be considered for publication in these columns. Letters should be brief.

En Ka Parade Is Lauded

Editor of the Star:

The En Ka parade was a splendid procession, and one of the most eloquent displays was that of the four young boys in the interest of the "Keep Winchester Clean" movement. The "Winchester Flora and Fauna" of waste boxes, bottles, cans etc., was cleverly conceived in a good cause. I would like to have heard much applause as this display passed.

Winchester is in some places a "dirty town" as the poster stated. It will take considerable more upgrading of civic pride to make it a really clean town. Maybe we have to finally resort to penalties, as they have in New York City.

The boys are to be congratulated, and thanked for their public spirit.

Memorial Day Exercises Here Monday Morning

Editor of the Star:

The Memorial Day Committee extends to all Winchester veterans a most cordial invitation to participate in the observance of Memorial Day exercises May 31, 1965.

The invocation at Wildwood Cemetery on Memorial Day will be delivered by the Reverend James R. Scroggs of the Second Congregational Church of Winchester.

The invocation at Calvary Cemetery will be delivered by Reverend Francis X. Turke of St. Mary's Church on Memorial Day.

The committee is pleased to announce that arrangements are being made for the suitable observance of Memorial Day at the public and parochial schools.

The decorating of Veterans' Graves will take place on Friday, May 28, at 6 p.m., for Wildwood Cemetery, and Saturday, May 29, at 10 a.m., for Calvary Cemetery.

Sincerely,
John T. Horn

Alternatives To Be Offered For High School Area

Editor of the Star:

I plan to ask my representative to move that the parcels 1, 2 and 3 be removed from the Warrant. If necessary I will ask that Article 1 be defeated and then the Permanent Building Committee can ask for another motion to accept an alternate proposal which would exclude these same parcels.

This would save time, money and aggravation both for the town and myself. It is unnecessary to take these 2 acres which are so close to houses for a "playing field" when there is 50% more land now in the site than the "reasonable useable minimum of 30 acres," recommended in the report of the Permanent Building Committee.

Sincerely,
Doris Erikson

Voters Asked To Unit Pressure On Gov't Leaders

Editor of the Star:

Doesn't it seem opposed to common sense when the voters elect a Governor for their State, and then place obstacles in the path of the best performance of his duty?

Isn't it comparable to hiring a carpenter to build your house, and then taking away his tools, demanding he do the job anyway?

Governor Volpe, at the risk of losing votes during his campaign, stated forthrightly the necessity of raising new revenue.

The sales tax, to which all buyers would contribute whether from Massachusetts or elsewhere, appears to be the least burdensome.

And the legislators who voted themselves a pay raise at a time when their State is in financial distress, using as one reason the excuse that it would attract better men to this branch of government service.

Well, we must remember this when it is election time again. Let us not be just voters, rather let us be thinking voters and unite in the effort to elect these better men, who will bring our State to the place of respect it once occupied in these United States of America.

Sincerely,
Florence C. Crossland

Embarrassing Question ?: Asks Interest

Editor of the Star:

Thanks to Mr. Chadwick's handling of the situation, the Town Meeting Members were not embarrassed by the request to rise and indicate that they had walked over the land in question as a site for the proposed new high school.

How many of these same people would ask a real estate agent to locate a piece of land for a house and then authorize the building to proceed without looking at the site?

I believe that any Town Meeting Member who intends to vote for the expenditure of 5-10 million dollars should satisfy himself that he has faithfully discharged, to the best of his ability, the trust lodged in him. This demands that he should personally inspect the site under consideration. I would like to suggest that advantage be taken of the long week-end so that when the question is asked at the next meeting on June 3rd no one will be embarrassed.

Those interested: try to make the meeting!

Sincerely,
Herman Erikson

Where Is The Responsible Citizenry?

Editor of the Star:

Where is our responsible citizenry?

Before last Monday's town meeting, I heard from only 4 constituents regarding the high school building program.

Thanks to the adjourned town meeting, one week remains before the vote on the proposals will be taken. If you care about the high school, notify your 33 precinct representatives and as many members-at-large as you can. Town Meeting Member lists are available at the Star, the Library and the Town Clerk's office.

Most of the speakers last Monday night who condemned the Turkey Ridge site could suggest no alternative. The only firm alternative proposal involved displacing 67 families and several businesses. Turkey Ridge may be a dreadful site, but are the alternatives better?

If you want a new high school, you'll have to work for it. Whether or not it passes may well depend on the number of citizens who notify their Town Meeting Members this week.

Sincerely,
Elizabeth C. Herberich

Keep Winchester Clean, Resident Urges Truckers

Editor of the Star:

At the start of last fall, the Board of Health officially inserted in the Winchester Star, in a format that none could fail to see, a long list of rules and regulations concerning trucking on the streets of Winchester.

One of the rules was that trucks have to be covered when transporting gravel, fill, rubbish, etc. on Winchester streets. This pertains both to the big trucking companies and to the smaller vehicles doing landscaping and/or carting rubbish to the Town Incinerator. It also pertains to the individual car owner with trunk open and rubbish spewing on the street.

Month after month and year after year this "uncovered truck" rule is flagrantly abused. Mr. Saraco, the Board of Health agent, has taken Polaroid film shots of violators and warned those companies. He has stationed himself in response to phone calls, at various stations such as Washington Street, among others, and I would state that Washington Street is the most abused. The fill or gravel spews off the trucks leaving a mess and on windy days it blows off and endangers cars following behind.

Frequent calls to the Board of Health office at the Town Hall, month after month, have always resulted in cooperation from this board but one agent cannot be everywhere with the manifold duties he has anyway.

A trucking company warned—evidently cooperates for a time and then chooses to ignore the directive on covering their trucks again and again. Some trucks are local but by far most are from outside town. They seem to come through town off either Route 128 or Route 93. Our own Highway Department trucks from recent observations have been covered when carrying fill. Therefore, what recourse do the townspeople have, to have this menace eliminated? It seems ridiculous to assume that residents of any main street in town should be expected to continually report these violators.

A copy of this letter is being sent to the Board of Selectmen and I think the Town might like to read the Board's answer in a subsequent issue of the Star.

Sincerely,
V. F. Erhard
194 Washington Street

Comments On Town Meeting Discussions

Editor of the Star:

New schools, red herrings, and another step down the road to less citizen participation in town government.

In twenty-five years of residence and activity in town government I have never seen such a display of disregard and non-compliance to parliamentary procedure and statute law. Flagrant abuse of the privilege of the floor by one who, as an attorney at law, obviously has been carried away by the praise of his idolators.

Disregard of Town By-Laws by an "Immoderate Moderator" who is characterized by his supporters as a Parliamentarian, and champion of good government.

This is also the year of the neophytes. The Planning Board's newest member, speaking for the first time at Town Meeting, carried to the floor the most dastardly, dangerous and actually most stupid proposition ever heard. This plan, a scheme that must have taken many valuable hours that could have been spent improving the Planning Board's image was so "barefaced" that the perennial giants of Planning, namely Messrs. Gray, Redding and Littleton sat in utter silence, leaving Mr. Gray's efforts to be expended on a motion to adjourn.

Two hours of continuous talk, with slides, and the Townspeople, in the dark, gave little light as to where this 5 million dollars, plus is coming from.

How can we have improved education with the same old leaders and teachers insured by "tenure," removable only by Public Hearing for cause.

The same books, the same lecturer, but put it in a new room on 47 acres of ledge and swamp, and what do you have?

One hundred and three thousand dollars for bus transportation for two out of three children, and if they miss the bus, taxi will be $1.50, or Mom adds another chore to her always crowded day.

Mr. Barbaro, speaking in opposition, talked fast and hit hard but could not beat the five minute clock that seemed to start about 11 p.m., three hours after the meeting started.

The slides showed fall foliage and leaves covering the granite, the brochure had a line stating March 1965, incidentally it was April when the committee got the money to make soundings on what they then said was still being investigated.

The meeting is adjourned until June 3rd.

The battle goes on—

It is probably one of the most important issues we face, and its impact will be felt in every home with children and on every tax bill for years to come.

Regardless of how and what has so far been said, the people of our Town should get out and talk on the street and on June 3rd, at the Town Meeting.

At this next session the people can be heard, should be heard and we then will hear the other side—the people's side.

Sincerely,
Arthur J. Hewis, Jr.

Flanders Field

Editor of the Star:

In Flanders field, many men have died
And they made freedom be their guide
Now each lies under his private cross
And poppies grow, instead of moss
Red poppies signify Blood shed
As now they lie with dirt for their bed
I'm sure these men did not die in vain
But they fought and they cried, and they felt much pain
They hope that you will Remember them
Because they fought like strong, BRAVE men

Democratic Town Committee

The Committee enjoyed a very constructive, well-attended meeting in the East Room, Town Hall, last Thursday evening.

Our chairman didn't feel quite up to being present and our able vice chairman John Hogan was unable to be present also. He had a previous engagement at a dinner party being held in honor of one of the important retirees of his firm.

However, Treasurer Bill Dailey, always so dependable, did an excellent job as acting chairman and all matters at hand were discussed thoroughly and acted upon to the satisfaction of all present.

A very complimentary letter from Senator Ted Kennedy was read; letters from our State Committee Chairman Gerard Doherty were read, also. Chairman Doherty suggested the setting up of a Committee on Registration and the hope that more of our members will subscribe to one of the Party's magazines, either "The Democrat," the national magazine, or "Demofacts," which is published by the Democratic State Committee.

It was voted to donate $25 to the Harry S. Truman Memorial Library Fund, a million dollar fund which is being set up in honor of our popular former President's 80th birthday.

Voted, also, was the sum of $75, to be donated to the Winchester Scholarship Fund.

Several other business matters were disposed of as this will be our last meeting until the Fall.

An enjoyable social hour wound up the evening with Social Chairman Bee Wilson and her assistants, Helen Nadeau and Kay O'Brien, helping to serve the delicious lunch.

Since the meeting our chairman has received another letter from Senator Ted, thanking us heartily for our constant and constructive interest in the work he is doing in the Senate.

Apropos of the kind of comprehensive work in which he is engaged, and which work doesn't always achieve publicity, we know that he has had a deep interest in the "President's Commission on Registration and Voting Participation," which President Kennedy established on March 30, 1963. This is House Bill 3838 and we will hear much about it later. We have received a full report on it from Chairman Gerard Doherty. The Bill is expected to have come up for consideration on Tuesday, May 25 in the House.

We are in receipt of a fine letter from the President of our Senate Maurice A. Donahue. We hope to be able to accept his invitation to meet with him soon.

Especially For Older Citizens

Senior citizens can find out what services are available to them in the 49 cities and towns of Greater Boston through a new directory, recently published by United Community Services of Metropolitan Boston.

The new Directory of Activities and Services for the Elderly lists golden age clubs, social welfare agencies, educational opportunities and other organizations serving senior citizens. It is the first such listing of these services collected in one place and should fill a long-felt need, according to the Committee on Aging of United Community Services.

Included in the directory are listings of telephone numbers of emergency services, such as ambulance, medical, police, fire and Rescue, Inc., for each Greater Boston community.

Linotypers of The Future Met at Star

Especially interested in the main linotype machine at the Star were Cub Scout visitors from Den 4, Pack 524, who came for a tour last Wednesday, May 19.

Helping to get out the issue of the week were scouts Franklin J. Lane, Thomas Sullivan, Kevin L. Fredette, Michael J. Delano and Harold Beard.

Mrs. Herbert Arnold assisted Mrs. George Pacetti, den mother, in charge of the boys.

Top Infantry Badge Won By Lt. Callahan

First Lieutenant Robert T. Callahan, HHC, the son of Officer and Mrs. William Callahan of 20 Kendall Street was one of 17 officers and men of the 172nd Infantry Brigade (Mechanized), U.S. Army, Alaska, who won the Expert Infantryman's Badge this month.

One hundred and fifty volunteered for the grueling test of muscle and brain but only 17 earned the unpretentious narrow metal rectangle with a single old-fashioned "long rifle" in silver (on blue) which signifies the pinnacle of excellence and skill in the infantry field.

The Commanding General, U.S. Army, Alaska (USARAL), Major General George A. Carver, who personally presented each graduate's badge during the ceremony, called the E. I. B. awardees "—a group of men (who have shown) a high degree of professionalism in a hard and honored profession.

"Everyman who holds the Expert Infantryman's Badge has proven beyond question not only that he has mastered the skills of his trade; but that he has mastered himself—he has power of self-discipline—and self-discipline is both the most important and the hardest of any type of discipline," the general declared.

Lt. Callahan was graduated from Boston College in 1962 in the ROTC and has been in Alaska for over two years with his wife (Ann Doherty) and son, Robert Jr. He expects to be there another year at least.

Workshops . . . For Teachers!

On May 20, Winchester schools were dismissed early so that teachers could attend workshops in their respective schools. A similar program will take place again on June 10. This "released time" was used by the teachers and administrative personnel for discussion and decisions concerning matters of instruction and organization.

Consideration of procedures for the supervision of instruction and the criteria by which it is judged will be one of the topics under discussion.

Another goal will be the development of new patterns of instructional organization for better utilization of teacher time, better individual service to pupils, and better staff communication.

It is believed that although this means a shorter school day on these dates, the students will gain from the increased efficiency of organization and procedure.

These workshops will be established on a regular basis next year, Walter P. Gleason, assistant superintendent for curiculum and instruction, said this week.

Graduation Plans

The time for the high school graduation has been announced by W. Howard Niblock, principal, as 5:30 p.m. on June 6 at Manchester Field. In the event of rain, the exercises will be postponed and held on the next clear evening.

Invocation and benediction will be given by the Rev. James R. Scroggs, of the Second Congregational Church.

Diplomas will be awarded individually to the 340 graduates by Mrs. Robert Grenzeback, chairman of the school committee.

Scholarship awards will be made by Mrs. Robert Ingraham, chairman of the scholarship committee of the Winchester Scholarship Foundation.

Good Public Relations
SOMEHOW, we had always thought that public relations was a rather mysterious intangible, practiced by huge corporations who had echelons of bright young men on their staffs busy keeping the company "image" bright and shiny. Now, we discover that we have been practicing good public relations for many years simply by treating the people of this community who have sought our service in a fair and impartial manner.

Area Mental Health Assoc. Reports On Clinic, Elects

Highlights of the eighth annual meeting of the Mystic Valley Mental Health Association, parent chapter for the Winchester MHA, included the report of the burgeoning growth and needs of the association-sponsored Mystic Valley children's clinic and of the votes of its Board of Directors leading the group toward a broader program of community mental health planning. The meeting took place at the NCO Club, Hanscom Air Base in Bedford.

Clinic director and psychiatrist Dr. Norton Newman, told the story which on the one hand depicted satisfaction of many therapeutic services given to the children of the participating towns of Arlington, Bedford, Lexington and Woburn, as well as Winchester; but which on the other hand defined large needs in the way of more staff and more room to accommodate the accelerating demands upon the clinic.

Association president, Dr. Melvin Rosenthal of Lexington, succeeded at the meeting by the election of Mrs. Lewis F. Good, Jr., of Bedford, reported among other things the acceptance of the clinic with approval by the American Association of Child Psychiatric Clinics.

He also told of the story of the development by the board of long range plans to integrate the clinic services with those of a general hospital in connection with working toward a comprehensive community mental health service. The need of additional land for the five-town service was stressed and it mentioned that the board has already voted on the acquisition of land through which liaison may be set up with the Symmes Arlington Hospital.

In addition to these reports a stimulating program was presented by Mrs. Doris Epstein, supervisor of the new Case Aid Program at the Metropolitan State Hospital which is involving volunteers in well directed and guided person-to-person work with one sick patient each. The program, a large success, is oversubscribed at the moment. But Mrs. Epstein hopes to have room for more volunteers in the fall and will be interested to talk with any potential workers. She may be contacted through association headquarters at VO 2-7082.

Mrs. Joseph M. Keville of the Winchester Association, who has served the group as recording secretary, remains the Winchester member among the officers, this time to serve as corresponding secretary. James Carson of Woburn is vice president and Robert Bayliss of Lexington is treasurer.

Paul Whitney was elected to be the new Winchester director at large, joining Charles Murphy and Constance Trickett in this capacity. Mrs. James Wingate, Mrs. Barbara Powers and Neil Borden continue as delegate directors from the Winchester MHA and Mrs. John Sexton replaces Mrs. David Beal on the nomination committee from this town.

Rangerettes In Quincy Parade

Taleb Grotto, a group of benevolent South Shore Masons, were hosts last Friday night to Masonic, Rainbow and DeMolay units from ten South Shore communities. The ocasion was its annual parade of candidates, and Appreciation Night for Rainbow and DeMolay.

The Rainbow Rangerettes of Winchester Assembly No. 50 journeyed to Quincy to take part in the parade. Travelling with them were the following members of the advisory board: Don Hodgson, Ken Ralphs, Dick Christianson, Rick and Hope Davies, Hazel McGuire and Bill McClintock.

The parade consisted of bands, floats, antique cars, marching units and the candidates.

The girls were particularly happy at the parade's end, when the doors of the State Armory in Quincy were thrown open to all members of participating DeMolay and Rainbow units. Several hundred boys and girls danced to the rhythm of "The Mods," a band of five boys who sang, swang and rang the rafters. Equally well received were four girls similarly bent.

The Grotto picked up the tab for this fun night for the kids. This was their way of saying "thanks" to Rainbow and DeMolay.

AIRMAN JOHN A. ELLIS, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred B. Ellis of 2 Park Avenue, has been selected for technical training as an air policeman at Lackland AFB, Texas. Airman Ellis, a WHS graduate, who enlisted in the Air Force a short time ago, has just completed his basic military training.

Summer Farm Jobs for H. S. Students Planned

Attention High School Boys: If you need a summer job, try working on a farm.

That is the advice of Secretary of Labor Wirtz, Secretary of Agriculture Freeman, and Chairman Stan Musial of the President's Council on Physical Fitness.

The top government officials and some of the nation's outstanding athletes jointly announced an A-TEAM (Athletes in Temporary Employment as Agricultural Manpower) project designed to provide employment for high school boys who would like to work in the fruit groves and harvest fields during summer vacation.

Here's how Secretary Wirtz summarized the project purpose: "There are going to be hundreds of thousands of high school students looking for work this summer, and fruit and vegetable growers are going to be needing workers."

Veteran pitcher Warren Spahn, record-breaking football back Jim Brown, and 1960 Olympic decathlon champion Rafer Johnson are among those of an Advisory Committee who joined the government officials in announcing the project.

Other members of the Committee include Bob Mathias, Ara Parseghian, Mickey Mantle, Bob Richards, Joe Namath, Sandy Koufax, Red Auerbach, John Huarte, and Clifford B. Fagan.

"Farm Work Builds Men" is the slogan of those athletes who will boost the program in personal appearance throughout the country.

Secretary Wirtz said that the students — most of them sports-minded—will be recruited through their high schools and will work in "A-TEAMS" of 20 to 31 boys under the supervision of teachers and coaches. He hopes to recruit 15,000 to 25,000 students.

The project is a part of a large recruitment program Secretary Wirtz initiated to fill shortages of farm labor since the expiration last December 31 of a program for importing Mexican braceros.

Wirtz emphasized that "the boys' interests come first" in the A-TEAM project. He said they will be under responsible supervision, will be provided with good housing, and food and will earn $1.15 to $1.40 per hour.

The program is aimed at students on vacation, not school dropouts, the Secretary of Labor emphasized.

He said boys in the program will work within 350 miles of their homes.

High School students interested in summer farm work should get in touch with their local Employment Service offices or write to the Department of Labor, Farm Labor Service, Washington, D. C., 20210.

"The work is hard," Wirtz said, "but it's the kind of work this country grew up on, and it's a good way to invest a summer."

The program will start in 11 states — California, Arizona, New Mexico, Texas, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, Michigan, Florida, Massachusetts and Maine.

Town Is Urged To Go to May 30 "Operation Y"

The Senior High Youth Fellowship at the Crawford Memorial Methodist Church met with the "Operation Y" committee recently to plan the details on a YMCA program scheduled for next Sunday, May 30, at 7:30 p.m., in Gifford Hall at the church. All interested young people and adults are urged to attend. Children may attend if accompanied by parents.

Miss Wendy Newman, MYF president and host representative, will open the meeting and introduce Ken Tully, who will speak for the "Operation Y" committee. The meeting will then be turned over to Mr. Peter Post, executive secretary of Woburn YMCA, and to Mr. Eugene Turner, New England area associate secretary in charge of extensions. Two filmstrips will be used, one dealing with the history of the YMCA, and the other giving the purpose and scope of YMCA program possibilities, organizational procedures, and finance. A period of discussion will follow and time to answer your questions.

The "Operation Y" Committee consists of ten junior high school students. They are: Chick Knight, chairman; Carl Smiley, Ernie Crabtree, Ken Tully, Neal Benshimol, Leo Lauretano, Jeff True, David Schmink, Dan Strout and Tom Wolfe. These boys are looking for work for this summer in order to earn money for a YMCA fund which they hope to start as soon as possible. Some of the adults involved will be doing the same, including Mr. Crabtree, who as a member of the singing group, "The 2x4's," has suggested a concert in the fall to raise money for the fund.

Refreshments will be served by the young people at the close of the meeting.

Safety Standards For Tires Adopted

Registrar of Motor Vehicles Richard E. McLaughlin, Massachusetts representative on the nationwide Vehicle Equipment Safety Commission, today hailed issuance of the commission's first report, setting performance requirements for safety on new tires for passenger cars and station wagons.

"The VESC report means that in at least 37 states, uniform regulation of tires, and eventually of other items of vehicle equipment such as lights, brakes, etc., has become reality. Such uniform regulation should prove a significant factor in lowering highway deaths and injuries in the future," he said.

ACROSS THE COUNTER

A recent speaker said: "More changes have occurred in the insurance business during the past ten years than in the one hundred years preceding."

Insurance is DIFFERENT today. Here are a few of the changes: (1) Coverages have been consolidated to provide broad protection in one policy. This has reduced the number of policies required and brought lower rates as well. (2) The policies have been continually adapted to meet new conditions. They have been simplified for better understanding and modernized for better protection. (3) Safety standards have been strengthened and improved. (4) Loss settlements have been speeded up.

One other change might be noted. According to the president of one of the largest insurance companies: "The independent agent is more COMPETENT than in earlier decades." The reason is obvious—the rapid changes and improvements have made it necessary for an agent to spend much time in study and learning. As a result, most of the "part-time" agents have gone the way of the neighborhood grocery store.

We would like to offer YOU the diverse, attractive and complete insurance coverages available today — and personalized service as well. May we SERVE you?

Telephone Company Reminisces

THE DAYS OF "NUMBER, PLEASE" were reviewed and the touch-tone telephone, abbreviated dialing and other N. E. Telephone Company innovations scrutinized at the recent meeting of the Telephone Pioneers of America Life Member Club held under the gavel of retiring president Augustine W. Ottiano, right, of Pierrepont Road. From the left are Robert V. Jones, vice president and comptroller, N. E. Tel. and Tel.; Corrine Callaham, president-elect of the group; Marion Gillen, president East Council Telephone Pioneers of America; and Mr. Ottiano.

Ottiano Closes Year as Head Of Telephone Group

Augustine W. Ottiano of 27 Pierrepont Road, president of the East Council Telephone Pioneers of America Life Member Club, was in charge last week of the group's luncheon and meeting held at the Towne Lyne House in Lynnfield. About 95 retired telephone employees of the area attended.

Tht program featured Robert V. Jones of Boston, vice president and comptroller of the New England Tel. and Tel., who spoke of the differences of service needs to customers between times before and the present day.

Mr. Ottiano had a most successful year as president of the club and contributed many volunteer hours of service to the Eastern Massachusetts Association for Retarded Children at the Reading Occupational Center School facility helping train the retarded folks to learn to do things whith their hands which has helped greatly in making them useful citizens in the community in which they live.

After Mr. Ottiano rapped the gavel for the last time to close the luncheon meeting, the retired pioneers gathered around to exchange stories with their associates about the good old days of yesteryear. Everyone enjoyed the fellowship and agreed that this old-fashioned custom in American living is the greatest.

Mr. Ottiano was New England featherweight boxing champion in 1913 and 1914 and was employed 42 years in the plant department of the New England Telephone Company prior to his retirement in 1963.

His son, Dr. John William Ottiano, is associate professor at Glassboro University in Glassboro, New Jersey, in fine arts. Mr. Ottiano has a daughter, Jacqueline, who is presently employed as a clerk in the plant department in Malden.

Smugglers' Notch near Stowe, Vt., gained its name after Jefferson's Embargo Act of 1808 and the War of 1812, when cattle and other goods were smuggled into New England from Canada through this gap beside Mt. Mansfield, reports the Automobile Legal Association.

Enthusiastic Word To the Star From Reader Cossari

Mr. Salvatore Cossari, formerly of 7 Governors Avenue dropped in to the Star Office last Friday to tell how much he enjoyed reading the Star in Hawaii, where he had been visiting with his daughter, Mrs. Kenneth (Pauline) Sampson.

Mr. Cossari left Winchester last September, driving across the country to California and then flying on to Hawaii where he stayed with his daughter and visited many points of interest on the islands.

After his visit in Hawaii he returned to California and with Mrs. Cossari drove back across the country to Winchester where they will be staying with another daughter Mrs. Theresa Baldacci, of 32 Harvard Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Cossari will be leaving in September to return to California where they will make their permanent home.

Zonta Awards Scholarship

The Zonta Club of Medford, classified service club for executive women in business and the professions, which includes Winchester women members, will honor the four young women who are to receive the 1965 scholarship awards at a dinner on Tuesday, May 25.

The awards dinner, which is the highlight of the Zonta Club year, will be held at Rolling Green Restaurant, Andover, with a social hour from 6 to 7 p.m., followed by dinner. The mothers of the scholarship girls have also been invited as guests of the club.

Miss Helen Forsyth of 6 Stratford Road, is chairman of the Zonta Service Committee, which has had the difficult job of selecting the four award winners from the large number of applicants. Miss Forsyth will present the award winners and their mothers to the members and guests of the Medford Zonta Club.

Piano Pupils Of Miss Kenneally Present Musical

Rhythm, harmony and melody was beautifully expressed, as Winchester pupils of Luella Kenneally presented the first of a series of four recitals on May 16, to bring to a close the season term.

"Where there is music, there is happiness" was the theme of the day, and from the first to the last number this thought unfolded. From the lighter melodies of the beginners to the rich classics of the older pupils the serious devotion to art was apparent.

Davis Wins Famed Harvard Detur, Scholastic Prize

A Winchester college student has been named one of ninety-eight top scholars to be awarded the nation's oldest scholastic award, the prized "Detur" of Harvard College.

Stuart Arrowsmith Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Davis of 9 Marshall Road and a sophomore member of the Class of 1967 at Harvard, was one of the Harvard scholars honored with the Detur prize—a book award.

The Detur prize is provided by the Charity of Edward Hopkins, a fund that has been in existence since 1658. It honors "distinguished application to studies" and its name comes from the Latin "Detur Dignori" meaning "to the more worthy let it be given."

Since the award was established, the Detur has been given to such men as Henry David Thoreau, James Russell Lowell, Robert Frost, Walter Lippmann, and Justice Oliver Wendall Holmes.

The prize is awarded to students who have made all A's or seven A's and one B in class work, but a student may win it only once.

The awards are made during the spring of each year by the Masters of the Harvard houses.

Mr. Davis, a graduate of the Belmont Hill School and an editor of the Panel, is majoring in English at Harvard.

K of C Grand Knights' Joust This Saturday

Memorial week end is upon us and the Ye Olde 210 Inn is bustling in anticipation of the arrival of the Darkening Knight and his Squires-at-Arms, on Saturday, May 29th at 7 p.m.

What wondrous gifts will the knightly band bestow on their honored guests. Some of the Past Grand Knights who will be present will be: John O'Leary, Terrance Cullen, Joseph Cullen, Frank Dineen, Dana Kelly, Walter Prue, George Young, Henry Murray, Chet Thibeault, Charlie Haggerty, Al Pulio, and Al Barnard.

Will Ye Olde bill of fare of baked ham, yards of malt and barley, slake the thirst and assuage the hunger of all the brother knights and their ladies fair?

Ah! the gentry will be coming in droves to regale with the traveling minstrel troubadours, after enjoying the fine repast. The hall will then be cleared for the tournament jousting to the lute and fiddle of of Ken Thorpe's orchestra, until midnight, the witching hour. At the head (round) table viewing the jousting will be District Deputy Thomas Shanahan, the dinner committee and the remaining honored Past Grand Knights who are Charlie Craven, James Mawn, Everett Kimball, John Nowell, Vincent Ehrhard, Sam Vancell, Charlie Doucette, John Mulrenan, Jim Wharf, Richard Fiore, Frank Farley, and Ed McManus.

The jousting hall will hold only so many, so get ye ducats at the Council hall if ye haven't done so already.

Hark! already can be heard the pounding hoof beats of the Darkening Knight and his tidy band, riding to the final tournament of the Winchester Knights, 210, for this fraternal year.

So polish up that armor and bring your lady fair down.

Annual Meeting At Parkhurst

The Parkhurst Parents' Association held its final meeting of the year in the school auditorium on Wednesday, May 12. Mrs. Richard T. Nelson, president, conducted the meeting and gave a summary of the association's activities during the school year. After expressing her thanks to the executive board members, to Mr. Albert Sutula, Parkhurst principal, and to Parkhurst teachers and parents for their cooperation during the year, she called on Mrs. Donald J. Senna, nominating chairman, who proposed the following list of candidates for the executive board of 1965-1966:

Officers

President—Mrs. Ralph Swanson
Vice-pres.—Mrs. Douglas Parkhill
Recording secretary — Mrs. Alfonso Longo
Corr. sec.—Mrs. Alan Leland
Treas.—Mrs. Daniel Fairbanks

Committee Chairmen

Extra-curricular activities—Mrs. Anthony Martignetti
Luncheon—Mrs. William Speers
Safety—Mrs. Michael MacKenzie
Membership—Mrs. Frank Inserra
Room mothers — Mrs. Ken Friborg
Social—Mrs. Winston Clark
Ways and means — Mrs. Paul Fitzpatrick
Publicity—Mrs. Herbert Arnold
Nominating — Mrs. Vincent Errico

Members-at-Large

Mrs. David Deshler, Mrs. Alexander Samoiloff, Mrs. Charles Whitten

Nomination Committee

Mrs. J. Irving Rawding, Mrs. Louis Amoroso, Mrs. Henry Robinson, Mrs. James Bourne

This slate of officers was duly elected by the association, and Mrs. Nelson then introduced Mrs. Ralph Swanson, new president, who concluded the meeting.

The parents who were present were next privileged to hear and see some of the Parkhurst pupils take part in an exhibition of their skill in the fields of music and art. Mr. Fred Murray, instructor of band, had his fourth, fifth and sixth-grade musicians show how well they are able to perform as a band and how much they have progressed since the year's work began. Mrs. Virginia Diegelman, art supervisor, then presented a group consisting of two students chosen from each grade who took part in a live demonstration using various art techniques and materials ranging from vegetable printing and inner tube printing to charcoal drawing and water-color painting. Also on display were samples of art work from all the grades.

This fine program was thoroughly appreciated and enjoyed by all, and the pleasant afternoon ended with refreshments served by Mrs. Charles Whitten, social chairman, assisted by her committee members.

The "Dead End Kids" of motion picture fame a few decades ago would be called the "No Outlet Kids" these days, says the Automobile Legal Association, noting that many "Dead End" streets are now being labeled "No Outlet."

Scholarship Fund Surges Ahead In 20th-Year Drive

The Winchester Scholarship Foundation is surging ahead in its 20th anniversary year with expectations that the current drive will be the most successful in its history.

In an interview this week Mrs. Robert G. Ingraham, chairman of the scholarship committee, described the operation of this most vital part of the Foundation. Working with Mrs. Ingraham this year are Prof. Hartley Rogers, M.I.T., Mr. John McElwee, Mrs. Arthur Hills, and Mr. Howard Niblock principal of Winchester High School, acting ex officio.

This rotating committee of four members elects a new member each year as the retiring chairman steps down. "In this way," explained Mrs. Ingraham "our viewpoint is constantly being recharged with new ideas to maintain the proper objectivity which is such an integral part of our work."

Scholarship grants in the past have been awarded to students in various fields of endeavor such as secretarial, nursing, technical, hairdressing and cooking schools, not to mention state teaching colleges and liberal arts institutions as well.

"We cannot stress too strongly or too often," continued Mrs. Ingraham, "that the basis of scholarships is primarily awarded on financial need, rather than scholastic achievement alone. Our records must be thorough, but most definitely are purely confidential."

By way of explanation Mrs. Ingraham added that all records are burned after the awards are made at graduation.

"All interviews of candidates are made through their teachers at Winchester High School, and no candidate is interviewed personally by the committee," explained Mrs. Ingraham.

She wound up the interview with an earnest plea to private citizens and business organizations in town to contribute now and "Buy A Share in the Winchester Scholarship Foundation," through Charles Butler, treasurer, Winchester Trust Co.

Go Ahead... Go Cadillac!

Before you buy any car at any price, consider a Cadillac first of all. New or previously owned, a Cadillac is the one way to be sure your investment will buy the most and last the longest.

Whatever you have budgeted for your next car, your Cadillac dealer has a Cadillac to fit your plans. Naturally, if your choice were unrestricted, you would prefer a new 1965 Cadillac like the Sedan de Ville in front. Next best would be a late-model, previously-owned Cadillac such as the black 1963 Sedan de Ville, above. A well-maintained, one-owner used Cadillac is actually the only real rival of a new Cadillac. Because of the popularity of the 1965 model, your authorized dealer is the one logical place to go for the best selection of fine used Cadillacs.

It will give members a chance to practice up for the popular summer series which takes place in July and August. Our board-of-the-week is presented by member Paul Lorris:

There are very few bridge hands dealt which are colorless and void of interesting aspects. Truly great hands, chocked full of variances in bidding and play and demanding the most of communication and card sense . . . these are rare. It is sad that when they do come up, even in a competent field, they are handled properly less than 25% of the time, and an even sadder commentary is that they are usually dismissed without the respect due them, i.e. these are the hands which we must study and discuss to prove and to improve our communicative systems and card sense. We should give these hands a name—a fitting epithet would be "sex hands"; this stands for "self-examination hand" and this being self-examination week, let's look at one.

A Section's 18th board of May 12 looked like this:

North
♠ K J 6 5 4 3 2
♥ K 10 9 5
♣ J

West

East Dealer; North-South vulnerable.

Whether East should open 1C or 1D is purely academic and depends on who East is. What would you do assuming the bidding goes:

East	South	West	North
1D	pass	1H	?
1C	pass	1H	1S
1D	pass	1H	1S

It is this author's opinion that a neat and sound bidding sequence would go thusly:

1D	pass	1H	3S ("skip-bid")
4C	dble	4D	pass
5D	pass	pass	pass

If we examine the "whys" behind these bids we can see that East's opening 1D bid paves the way for a jump into 3C after a pretty standard 1H from West (a 1C opener is not only less descriptive, but puts West in an awkward position should he be weak and with club or diamond support).

The key to the hand is placed with North. Should his bid be 1S, 2S or 3S? I think we can simply do away with the 2S bid since it really tips the hand for E-W and does little in the way of interference. Although the 1S bid seems, at first, to be the best (the vulnerability is scarily unfavorable and the West 1H bid makes the heart King look big), nevertheless, North has to figure that E-W must hold a minimum of 22 HCP and what with distribution definitely over 30 points! This they do; East with 13 HCP for 18 total and West with 10 HCP for 14 total. North must firmly block communication and describe his hand to partner; 1S promises defensive tricks and leaves tp much E-W bidding space, 3S warns of the possibility of no defensive tricks and blocks nicely. With any normally expected break, 3S should make and with a fit, perhaps 4S is there if partner has more than he should.

I wish to here digress in order to make a very important point. Aists with good reason! It is called bidding mechanism exists and ex- "the skip-bid warning." Very few players seem to understand either why it does or how and when to use it. It was devised to guard against two very human errors. First, to warn and to prime both the opposition and partner that an unexpected jump is about to occur. Second, to guard against the transmission of information by the rapidity of the following call.

To quote an ACBL article: "It is unfair to expect your opponent to be ready for such a bid and to make up his mind at once what action he is going to take, if any. He is entitled to stop and think a moment or so; if he does, and passes, it is unfair to his partner because it puts him in a difficult position where he must decide what he would have done if his partner had passed without conveying information. The same thing can work the other way; if a player has a bust and passes in a flash over a preemptive bid, it can warn his partner not to compete unless he can do so entirely on his own hand." A player who is going to make any kind of jump bid announces, "I am about to make a skip bid" or simply "skip-bid," then, he should wait a moment or so to permit the opponents to adjust their thinking. Finally, when the bid is made, the left hand opponent must wait 10 seconds before bidding.

The use of the skip-bid warning will produce better bridge; there will be fewer insufficient bids; more time for plan of action for all; less likelihood of being unheard by partner; and the prevention of the unfair conveyance of intentional or unintentional information or misinformation.

To return from this digression. North should here announce, "I am about to make a skip-bid," pause and bid 3S. East, after waiting 10 seconds can then show his clubs and the balance of bidding proceeds normally. Over West's 4D bid North again has a problem; should he pass or in light of partner's double proceed into 4S. I really believe it depends on something which many people hate to admit, it depends on who your opponents are and knowledge of their "philosophies."

As in poker or chess, playing your opponents is an important aspect of playing the game. Here, against a good field and with a good partner (as oft is the case at Winchester), North should pass assuming that if game and partner have done an adequate job of scaring all but the timid from going on to 5D or perhaps, if they do go partner holds enough to double and set them, your hand being what it is.

East is at this point (following the 4D bid) in a bind and perhaps with this bidding should pass since North's 3S bid and South's double has thrown a damper on E-W communication. The 5D bid after this bidding sequence is almost a gamble. If North should step into 4S, a double by East is in order regardless of the bidding. I leave this for the reader to consider.

If E-W is in 5D, we can expect South opening the spade queen. East takes the ace, returns a low diamond to board's ace, cashes the heart ace sluffing a spade, returns to his hand by cashing the club ace, cross ruffs three clubs and two hearts ending on the board; he returns a heart, ruffing with the queen, cashes the trump king and surrenders the final two tricks for his 11 tricks.

In the course of doing all this, he does not have to fear an overruff in either clubs or hearts unless both remaining trumps sit in the overruffing hand and if this is the case then there is nothing he could do anyway. Since that occurrence is highly unlikely, when the board goes down he can see his 11 tricks. Trying to pull trump or any other line of play can only meet with disaster.

Much more important and interesting is the problem of North being in 4S (which of course gets doubled). Here is a situation calling for good card sense. East either opens the diamond king or queen and west must know enough to bang down the diamond ace and return the heart ace with full knowledge that his partner is at worst singleton. A low heart from west is then ruffed; east cashes the club ace for down one and can now sit back and play for more knowing that his trump ace sets it two anyway.

So you see "self examination," can be fun, and interesting too!

Children's Own School Meets For Dutch Dinner

A fund-raising dinner for the benefit of the Children's Own School, Winchester, was held recently at the Colonial Country Club in Lynnfield.

"Tulip Time Festival," the theme of the festivities, was highlighted by gay posters from the Dutch consulate which decorated the walls, by tulips arranged in brilliantly colored floral displays, and by a menu consisting of authentic Dutch dishes. The school feels very close to the people of the Netherlands since Amsterdam is the main source of Montessori information and the headquarters of Associaitone Montessori International is located in that city. All authentic Montessori materials are obtained from the Netherlands.

Last year Miss Dorothy S. Gove, director of Children's Own School, visited Holland to purchase materials for the children to work with, and to get better acquainted with the Dutch people. Some of the children's materials were on exhibit along with some literature concerning the Montessori method.

Members of the board of directors present at the dinner were: Miss Dorothy S. Gove, president; Sherman B. Russell, vice president; Frederick E. Tucker, treasurer.

Special guests included Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lochhard and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Paulakis of Cambridge, members of the Boston Montessori Association, and Mrs. Zike of the Pin Cushion Hill, Montessori School, Ashland.

Contributing to the success of the affair was the performance of a graceful Indonesian native dance by Mrs. Fink, secretary of the Boston Netherlands Association.

To conclude the affair, an auction was held, and was conducted by Mr. Frederick Von Mering, a member of the Parents' Committee.

The parents committee included Mrs. Richard Willes, Mrs. Peter Constantakes, Mrs. Anne Seavy, Mrs. Bertrum Christman, Mrs. Alfred Bloom, Mrs. Barry Saxe, Mrs. Allen Shepp and Mrs. Graham.

Arrangements And Election For Garden Club

At the home of Mrs. Hazen H. Ayer on Thursday, May 20, the annual meeting of the Winchester Garden Club was conducted by the president, Mrs. Alexander P. Aitken, who also graciously presided at the coffee urn during the social period preceding the meeting.

Mrs. Ayer's beautiful arrangement of deep-toned French lilacs, rose-colored tulips and soft pink carnations on the table were a source of delight, and her graceful arrangement of white dogwood in the livingroom gave further evidence of her artistry.

The following officers were re-elected for the coming year:

President, Mrs. Alexander P. Aitken

Vice President, Mrs. Roland V. Patrick

Recording Secretary, Mrs. Hazen H. Ayer

Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Philip Boone

After the annual meeting Mrs. Aitken presented the program chairman, Mrs. Chandler W. Symmes, whose program was "Member Participation With Flower Arrangements in Glass Containers." Mrs. Symmes started the program by showing a number of antique glass containers, then two appealing arrangements of her own, the first of lilies of the valley and the second showing the graceful sprays of the always fascinating bleeding heart.

Mrs. Aitken then showed an artistic arrangement of pink dogwood and blue iris in a deep blue glass vase. Mrs. Ayer's contribution to the program, in addition to her beautiful centerpiece and her white dogwood arrangement, was a charming combination of tulips, lilacs and bleeding heart. Mrs. Maurice T. Freeman's exotic cymbidium orchids came from her own greenhouse, while Mrs. Angelo Ghirardini's delightful little miniature bouquet of spring flowers was particularly pleasing. Mrs. Edward V. French had an unusual arrangement of a Jack-in-the-pulpit surrounded by ferns and yellow and white violets. Mrs. Dudley F. Kimball brought an extremely interesting tole candle holder with vases on each side filled with small spring flowers, and Mrs. W. Campbell Ross created a choice bridesmaid's bouquet with lavender and pink flowers in a fluted container. Mrs. Frank J. Robinson's white lilacs were lovely in their delicate beauty, and Mrs. Robert M. Stone's two small Waterford vases held pansies and violets.

Mrs. Philip P. Wadsworth had a small bouquet of lilies of the valley with the blue myrtle for accent, while Mrs. Harold M. Twombly's arrangement featured pink and white dogwood. Mrs. William W. Goodhue showed an artistic combination of lilacs, tulips and azalea, which are at the height of beauty at this season, and it was a joy to see so many of our spring flowers so charmingly arranged.

In contrast to the seasonal arrangements Mrs. Deran Hintlian took some leaves of sansevieria and some pine cones which had been flattened and painted yellow to simulate black-eyed-Susans.

As the regular meetings of the club year came to a close the members have one more delightful day in prospect on Thursday, June 3, when a fund-raising progressive luncheon will be served at the homes of Mrs. Royal Barry Wills, Mrs. Deran Hintlian and Mrs. Robert M. Stone.

Stigmatines Plan Four Retreats In Waltham

The Stigmatine Fathers plan four special retreats at the Espousal Shrine and Retreat House in Waltham during the month of June. Highlight of the month will be the Ecumenical Retreat for all Christians to be held over the weekend of June 18- 20. This retreat, open to men and women of all religious denominations will be conducted by Rev. Robert Cunnane of the Stigmatine Seminary in Wellesley, and Rev. Richard Pearson of the First Lutheran Church in Waltham. Last year a total of 60 Protestants and Catholics attended the Ecumenical weekend on a daily basis.

An engaged couples retreat will be sponsored over the weekend of June 4-6 for all those contemplating marriage in the near or distant future. The Espousal Retreat House is one of the few in the New England area to offer this preparation weekend for those planning to be married. Over the past few years some 500 couples have made more retreats.

Married couples are invited over the weekend of June 11-13. Without meals to prepare and children to care for, the couples get down to the business of inter-communication and dialogue on Christian concerns of the modern day as they affect the family.

As far as civic and church assistance goes, perhaps the people most neglected are widows and separated women. For the past four years retreats have been offered to these women to help them meet their problems in a realistic way. This year, the weekend of June 25-27 has been set aside so that these women can gather together to share their common concerns.

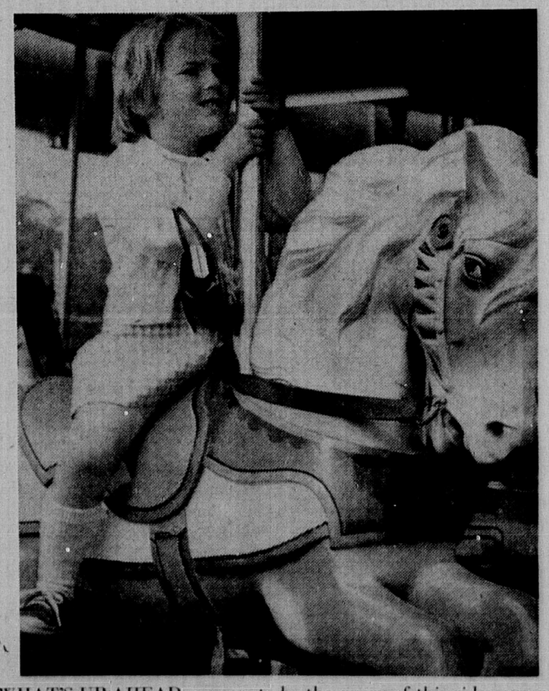
EXCITEMENT OF THE FAIR began to catch the town's younger citizens when the paraphernalia began to arrive on Thursday and started the job of setting up. Many could hardly wait for the magic opening hour Friday. And by Saturday night the big splurge was over: and sticky, stuffed and sated with commotion and fun, everyone went home ready to put it all aside until another May rolls around.

ANCHORS AWEIGH was the word for many a precious boatful of youngsters as they piloted their craft on the relatively safe course laid out Saturday on Manchester Field.

READY, SET, GO! And some came back for more and more as they took turns during the day joggling their insides horizontally on the tilt-a-whirl, or vertically on the ferris wheel.

COTTON CANDYMAN complete with one of the symbols of the fair Paul Segerstrom, seven, of 2 Maple Road. Lobster rolls and pizza were available, too, but the ubiquitous cotton candy is not to be missed at any age.



WHAT'S UP AHEAD appears to be the query of this rider on an unfamiliar steed. Young Miss Hicks, daughter of Selectman and Mrs. Edward Hicks, is giving her whole attention to the ride on the steed.

WHS Lacrosse Club Makes History; Sport Headed Up

Although the Winchester High School Lacrosse Club is the only Massachusetts high school team competing in this sport and although this is their second year of competition they're still real latecomers.

Chances are old Squaw Sachem and her Indian band used the same flatlands down by the Aberjona now known as Leonard Field, for some hot time competitions with neighboring tribes in the game of baggataway—the original name for the sport used by its originators, the North American Indians (Russian claims to the contrary notwithstanding).

To the French Canadian settlers is attributed the adoption and development of the game which is now the national game of Canada. Its name, too, stems from them as is their first observations of the stick used by the Indians they reportedly talked about it as la crosse—(or the bishop's crozier)—the thing familiar to them which it most resembled.

Lacrosse is a coming sport in this country and has caught on fast here in Winchester. Eugene Bouley of the Lynch faculty gets credit for the push which put it on the field last year. He also got soccer on its feet in WHS, niching for himself two large credits in the history of sports here.

But he couldn't have done it without the real response of enthusiasm which came from the student body, indicating that in each case the sport offered was filling a need.

More than 30 players have been getting the rugged workout that lacrosse demands on afternoons up at Leonard Field. More are expected for next year. Even last year at the time of its inception the club played five or six games and several outside scrimmages under Captain Randy Randlett. This year it has had a heavy schedule under Captain Charlie DuToit.

For the same reason that lacrosse has come fast in the college and prep schools, Henry Knowlton, athletic director here and his staff are anxious to get going and accepted as a regular varsity sport; it is top exercise and the best possible for football players—maximum running and dodging, demanding both ability and contact.

The Boston Lacrosse Club is so anxious to push the sport that it offers to any school ready to start a basic kit of equipment on loan. However, the equipment here, though makeshift, has been put together mostly by the individuals and the department. The boys have bought their own sticks; Mr. Knowlton has procured the helmets as a gift; they have worn their own gym shorts, but their jerseys are school property.

Transportation has been for the most part by parental car and the goal posts, erected half-way through the season just concluded, was put up by the Park Department.

Their schedule and results tells something of the history of the sport in this area. The prep schools have been at it longest and have strong, well organized teams. Against six of them the Sachem offspring came acropper this spring. They were beaten by St. Mark's and Rivers Schools, Lawrence, Tabor, Governor Dummer and Phillips Andover (JV's) Academies. But they won their last game against the Cambridge School of Weston last Wednesday.

And they distinguished themselves by beating both Brandeis and Tufts Freshmen.

Framingham High School is getting ready to field a team and may be scheduled for next year; Brookline and Melrose are also interested. But it is still likely that for the next few years the private schools and college freshmen will predominate on the WHS schedule.

The game, which the Indians played with any number from 10 to 1,000 on a team (some games represented a near tribal warfare and one famous one in Canada is said to have led to a major massacre of British troops) is played on Winchester fields with 10 players, defined, less specifically than in most sports, in three position categories.

Attackmen in the Lacrosse Club this year have included Hugh Fisher, Bob Letty, Dave Pratt, Mark Smith, Hugh Vaughn, Graham Chase, Stan Cruwys and Phil Villari. Midfielders have been Peter Thorpe, Sparky Cannon, Dick Wakefield, John Duffy, John Cousins, Peter Harvey, Dick Thuma, Tom Varley, Dave Greaves, Bruce Jordan and Pete Blaisdell.

Defensemen, in addition to Capt. DuToit, were Kevin Collins, Joe Tranfaglia, John Wisbach, Ed Murphy, Bob Pierce, Wayne Taylor, Gene Cancelliere and Steve Poole.

About 13 are seniors, many of whom hope that they have more competitive lacrosse ahead in colleges across the land.

Squaw Sachem, a real sport in her own way, would no doubt be pleased indeed at what has come to pass along the banks of the Aberjona.

James S. Wright ,35 Central Street, a freshman in the Mechanical Power Engineering Technology course at Wentworth Institute was elected recently to membership in the Tau Alpha Pi, national honor society.

Tracksters Top Lexington In Finale, 70-61

The Sachem track team ended its 1965 track season with a big win last Friday afternoon at Lexington. Tibor Saddler once again led the Sachem attack as he won the low and high hurdles along with the broad jump.

This was the last meet of the season for the defending Middlesex League champs, who ended with a 7-2 record in league play and an 8-2 record overall. They finished in second place, right behind Wakefield, the team they beat just two weeks ago at Winchester.

George Schiraga ran the two-mile in 9:49.9, the second-straight time he won the event in under ten minutes. The Sachems showed fine team balance in winning the important meet. They had trouble in the pole vault, an event which they usually sweep, getting only a third place.

The Sachems were scheduled for two more meets, the league meet yesterday, and the States this weekend. They stand a chance in the league meet.

Tracksters Over Stoneham 105-25

For the second straight meet the Winchester High track team broke the century mark. This time it was at the expense of Stoneham. The Sachems took a first place in every event except the shotput, that was won by Stoneham's best athlete Steve Freeland.

The big news of the day was the running of George Schiraga who broke the record in the two-mile event blazing around the track in 9:53.8. George became the first runner at Winchester to break the ten minute mark in this event. Coach Battino had high praise for this boy and stated that he really has come on during the last half of the season. Kelly threw the javelin over 186 feet and that was quite a toss.

Tibor Saddler won the high hurdles and the broad jump. Art Stafford and Steve Fahey continued to dominate the high jump. Bob Kuhn won the discus throwing it 141 feet. Saddler, Commito, Pywell and Doten teamed up to win the relay for the Sachems. Taking everything into consideration the Sachems had a field day against the Spartans.

WHS LACROSSE CLUB. Twenty-four of the stalwarts of the Lacrosse Club which ended a good stiff nine-game season last week appear above in a deceptively inactive pose with Coach Gene Bouley, whose enthusiasm for the sport helped give it its WHS start and may lead to making it a regular varsity endeavor at the high school. With Mr. Bouley in the back row are Cancelliere, Vigliotti, Vaughn, Fisher, Capt. Dutoit, Pratt, Wakefield, Tranfaglia and Taylor. Row two from left is Sawyer, Smith, Greaves, Nelson, Silvestri, Jordan, Fraser and Wisbach. In front row, Blaisdell, Cruwys, Thuma, Chase, Varley, Valleri and Duffy.

Collins Fires Three Hitter At Concord

Sophomore Brian Collins fired a brilliant three-hitter fanning 12 batters and escorted the Sachems to a 3-0 victory over Concord, defending Middlesex League champs. While going the full seven inning route Collins issued only two walks.

Kevin Wiggin doubled in lead batter Jack Kimball who had singled and Lee Sullivan singled in Wiggin for the first two Sachems runs. Both of these runs came in the second inning. With one out in the third Davis Blanchard tripled, Gilberti singled scoring Blanchard, Gilberti taking second on the wild throw to second and then Jack Kimball singled scoring Gilberti to make it 4-0 Winchester.

The other two Winchester runs came in the fifth and six innings. Lee Sullivan walked and catcher Bob Cuff tripled and knocked in Sullivan. In the sixth Jeff Schlener singled, took second on a fielder's choice, third on a wild pitch an dlater scored on Jack Kimball's single.

Bill Donovan, Concord's losing pitcher, didn't have any luck with the Sachems this time around. In the first meeting of the season the Sachems dropped a game to him, but this time it was Brian Collins who was in complete control of the game. The summaries:

Craig McLaughlin Wins Certificate In Swim Program

Craig D. McLaughlin, 8, son of Mrs. Curtis P. McLaughlin of 9 Charles Road, was one of eight physically handicapped children who received an American Red Cross certificate at the Boys' Club of Woburn on Saturday, May 22, at the conclusion of the winter swimming program provided by the Boys' Club in cooperation with the Easter Seal Society. Craig received a "beginner" certificate.

All 18 children from Woburn and surrounding communities who have been benefiting from free swimming lessons received "fish" or "frog patches" made by the Boston Girl Scouts as a volunteer service project.

Guest at the final lesson was John Starrett, 39, of Natick, a lifelong cerebral palsy sufferer, who always has walked with difficulty but who swam the English Channel last year in 12 hours and 45 minutes.

Teenage Winchester Girl Scouts who volunteered to help with the swimming program included Martha Broadhurst, Joyce Kell, Deborah Ericson, Nancy Millican, Lauren McClellan, Ann Rozelle, Barbara Gibson and Julie Shiang.

The Woburn swimming project is one of five similar cooperative projects for physically handicapped boys and girls supervised by the Easter Seal Society as part of its camping and community recreation program. Other free swimming programs have been conducted in Melrose, Norwood, Brockton and Worcester.

STAR SPORT SHORTS

Al Falvey, Jr.

Too bad the 1965 track season came to a close last week. The Sachem tracksters were beginning to look their best. Records were falling like timber in the north country, but that's the way it goes. Coach Battino must now look to next year to find out what talent he has returning.

As far as records are concerned, the 1965 Sachem tracksters broke quite a few of them and threatened many more. Here are a few that were broken: Chuck Swim set the pole vault mark; Bob Kuhn the discus record at 151ft., 9¼in.; Tibor Saddler the high and low hurdle records, beating his old records every time he ran; George Schiraga the two-mile; and Art Stafford the high jump record. Other tracksters kept threatening but fell short.

Though the Sachems did not win the Middlesex League championship they were, in our estimation, the best track team in the league. Records are sometimes deceiving. They lost two meets early in the season, but finished with five straight wins, including a win against Wakefield, the team that won the league crown. The Sachems inflicted the only loss the Warriors received, and that speaks for itself. If some of those key injuries hadn't come so early in the season, the Sachems would have been on top now, where we think they belong.

Sports Briefs: Saturday, June 5, is the date for the annual Kiwanis Fish Derby, to be held at Wedge Pond. There are prizes galore for the ones who catch the big fish. As usual there will be the parade. Contestants will meet at Town Hall at 9 a.m. and march through the town to Wedge Pond. The derby is slated to get under way at 10, and it will run until one in the afternoon. It has always been a favorite for both young and old.

Well, it's off and running again for another softball season at Leonard Field. The big game of the week was staged last night when the Sons met the Elks. The Sons have been the champs for the past four years and say they can do it again. Once again the Elks will try to take all the marbles. In the past they failed, but this year promise things will be a bit different. Winchester High will field a team this year. The younger group call themselves the Sachems. There is some speed on this club, but they will need a steady pitcher. This promises to be a great year for the big ball.

Maybe it's just a bad streak, but it certainly has the Red Sox worried. Dick Radatz just isn't himself. In the past the hitters have been blown down by the Monster, but this year things are different. The Senators were the first to give Radatz an indication of what was going to happen this year when they teed off on him the first week of the season. After that it has just been all bad for Mr. Radatz. One thing is for sure: it is still nice to have him in a Red Sox uniform rather than in a Yankee one. If the Bronx Bombers ever get hold of him, watch out. It should be just a matter of time before he breaks out of his slump. Let's hope the Sox don't jump the gun and trade him off for some sore-armed pitcher.

Riding by the Winchester Country Club this week we noticed how green the grass is. The course really looks in fine shape, and this should be another good year at the course. This is the right time of year for golf; the afternoons are not too hot. Many of the players are taking advantage of the situation. While on the subject of golf, that driving range of Buddy Leroux's on the Woburn-Winchester line is getting a lot of use by local residents who are not wasting any time getting their driving in shape.

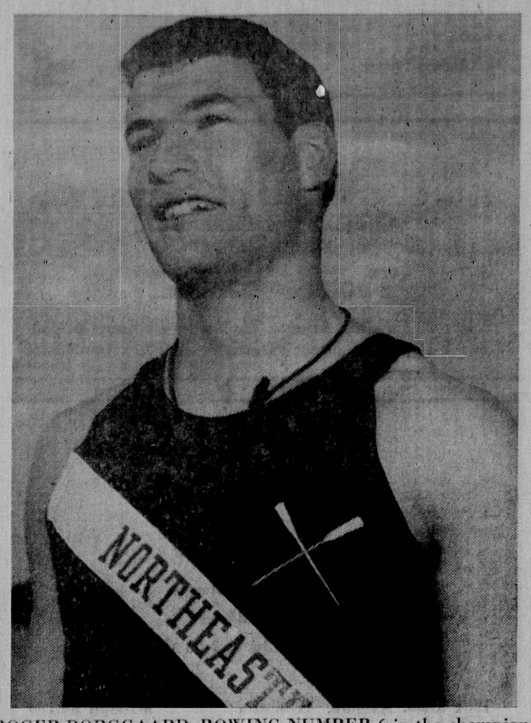
Pulls For Northeastern



ROGER BORGGAARD, ROWING NUMBER 6 in the championship Northeastern University crew, will be a top factor in the boat's chances in the national championships next month at Syracuse. Roger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Borggaard of Franklin Road, is a sophomore with a strong rowing career still ahead of him.

Borggaard Pulls For Northeastern First-Year Champs

When Northeastern University inaugurated crew as a varsity sport this year, veteran crew coach Ernie Arless began combing the student body for potential candidates.

Arlett, former Harvard and Rutgers coach, had to start from scratch in his search for talent since Northeastern had never had a crew, and experienced rowers were as scarce as hen's teeth. But he put together a varsity, junior varsity and freshman boat and, in less than a year has molded his team into the number-one small-college crew in the East.

One of the most promising candidates uncovered by Arlett is a sophomore who was a former football and track standout at Winchester High.

Roger Borggaard, a husky 6'4" and 205 pounds, gave up playing football and throwing the shot put in favor of rowing on the Charles River. The only sophomore in the varsity boat, Borggaard rows in the number-six seat and promises to be among the top rowers in the next couple of years.

The rangy athlete, who graduated from Winchester High in 1963, played end and center on the football team and was a weight man for the track team.

In his senior year, during which Winchester's track team went through the season undefeated in dual meets, Roger was one of the top weight men with throws of 155 feet in the javelin and 43 feet in the shot put.

During his freshman year at Northeastern, Borggaard decided to concentrate on his studies in business administration. Then, at the beginning of his sophomore year, he heard of Northeastern's newest varsity sport and decided to try out for the crew.

"It was the first time I had ever rowed," admits Borggaard, "and I didn't even know if I could make the, team. But my size and strength helped a lot, and after a while I got the hang of it."

He spent last fall and winter in the gym working out with weights and running three miles every day. Coach Arlett demanded that all candidates for the crew stay in shape year round.

Shortly after the crew got out on the river in early spring, Borggaard had established himself in the varsity boat, and the crew began working out for their upcoming races.

Since that time, Northeastern has defeated such teams as Georgetown, Marietta, Fordham, Drexel, St. John's, Holy Cross, Wesleyan, Trinity and LaSalle, as well as winning the President's Cup in New York and the Dad Vail Regatta in Philadelphia.

The Dad Vail Championship in Philadelphia, emblematic of Eastern small-college supremacy, was the crew's best performance, according to Borggaard.

"We came from way behind in that race," he said. "We were so far behind everyone else early in the race that when I turned around to see where they were, I couldn't even see them.

"We had already beaten the crew that was in first place (Marietta) during the regular season, so we knew we could catch them. We went past them in our final sprint in the last 50 yards of the race."

The come-from-behind victory in Philadelphia earned the Northeastern crew an invitation to the National Championships in Syracuse, New York, in June.

And with sophomores like Borggaard around, the future for the Northeastern crew is a promising one.

Sportswoman Of Year

KAY LENTINE smiles her appreciation and pleasure as she receives from Venerable Arthur Dunbar the SOI Women's Bowling Sportsmanship Trophy.

The seventh annual bowling banquet of the Winchester Women's Lodge, Order of Sons of Italy In America, was held Saturday evening May 8,

The evening began at 6:30 with a cocktail hour followed by a roast beef dinner. Dinner music was provided for the pleasure of the bowlers and their guests, by Tony Oliverier. During dinner, members of the Sports Committee presented all bowlers and their guests a small remembrance of the evening.

Following dinner, Chairlady Rose DeTeso introduced the headtable and welcomed all to the banquet. The subsequent presentation of the awards and guest speakers made the program a most interesting one.

The highlight of the evening is the presentation of the Sportsmanship Award, one of the highest honors in the field of sports. Each year a bowler who possesses all the qualities of a sportsman receives this award. Venerable of the Mens Lodge, Arthur Dunbar, presented the award to a very proud receiver. To a standing ovation and with a tear in her eye, Kay Lentine received the award most graciously.

The mystery reporter was exposed and to the amazement of all it was Ginger Maggio. Chairlady DeTeso extended her appreciation and thanks to her committee and to all the bowlers for their cooperation throughout the year.

The remainder of the evening was filled with dancing and fun with everyone leaving with another bowling banquet to remember.

An Apology

We owe the Ponies managing staff a big apology. We goofed. Two weeks ago we listed Vandy French as the man behind the lineup of the Ponies. We bow long and low as we hasten to correct our error. John Pierce is the manager of the Ponies and a better field general would be hard to come by. Those Ponies were running so fast we just could not see the manager's colors. Sorry, John, our glasses were fogged!

AMERICAN LEAGUE

The Mets

Sponsored by Boodakian Rugs

The Mets are getting ready to come into the home stretch at top speed. They want that first-half championship and they want it badly. Manager Tom Magoun is ready to get into the act and help in every way that he can. "This is a great team," he said. "It has plenty of depth and it is a well balanced club. This is not a one-man operation but rather a team effort. We all depend on each other to do the job as well as it can be done. I guess that is about all there is to it."

Coach Bob Belly is a soft-spoken guy but his voice booms loud and clear when he talks about the Mets. "This is the youngest team in the league since its organization and it takes time to build. But this year I think the club has come of age." Bob explained. "They are not perfect in every department but they sure are trying hard to reach that goal. And nobody can ask for more than that."

The Mets don't make any bones about it. They try to fortify each position with more than one player. Catching is well cared for on this club by Paul Doyle and Steve Mulloy. Paul takes care of an outfield spot when he is not behind the plate and Steve is one of the team's five moundsmen when he gets the nod. Both boys handle the bat like it was a member of their family with wonderful results.

First base has plenty of workers. Dennis Rotondi is the ace of the pitching staff but he also covers first base when the lineup points that way. Dennis is another of the better hitters on the club. Then there is Dave Deininger who does some good work around the initial sack and also plays a lot of left field for the Mets.

Steve Hodgson and Jim Mardulier split the second base assignment. Both boys are strong on defense and Jim has one of the hottest bats on the team. If its strength down the middle you want - the Mets have it.

Third base has two protectors also. Bob McGoldrick and Chris Osgood are ready and able to handle this chore. Chris is a heavy sticker and Bob is fast getting his eye on the ball. Bob Kelly handles the shortstop position and does a great job there. Bob is another of the club's pitchers and is not doing so badly at that job either. Jay McGoldrick is the utility man for the shortstop post but he is also available for pitching duties when needed. There is hardly a team in the league that can boast of infield material like this outfit possesses.

The outfield men are plentiful and good glove men all around. Tom James is one of the best. Tom also plays first base if needed and is ready to take his turn on the mound. When Tom is not in centerfield there is no cause to worry for Bruce Jones is ready to hop to the job and the efficiency is not disturbed in the slightest.

Mark Hodgson plays left field and has Dave Deininger as his alternate. Both boys are good glove men and have speed to spare. John Miller works in right field and Paul McCormack is also a good man in that spot. With every position covered by two men who can handle the positions as these boys can do it, the Mets have nothing to do but concentrate on winning. And they are doing that job with plenty of zip so far this season.

Don't let these fellows fool you, they are out to win the whole bundle and they don't mind saying so right out loud.

The Panthers

Sponsored by A. J. Tambone, Inc.

"We got off to a slow start this season but we hope to begin to tee off on the rest of the league real soon." Manager Bob Hewes makes the statement with authority for he knows that his club can do it. Coach Paul McCarthy smiles and quietly says, "When this team explodes it will make a noise that will be heard all around the league."

There is no doubt that the Panthers have what it takes and they know how to use it. Bill Hewes is the catcher and it would be hard to come up with a better man. Dave Detra usually plays in center field but he can also catch when he is needed and Dave is one of the best all around men in the league. Both of these boys hit the ball well as opposing pitchers can testify.

Greg Sullivan is the first baseman and that is that. He fields well and he hits well and no manager can look for more than that. Jeff Wilber does everything that there is to do around second base. Third base is worked on by Amos Miner and Vaughn Mullen. And Ken Abbott does everything right in shortstop. All of these boys are excellent glove men and the Panther infield is about as fine as can be found in the league.

Besides Dave Detra in center field, there is Steve Kelly to handle one side and Mike Lawton to work on the other. Steve is a hitter and makes his presence known every time he comes to the plate. Harold Leach works with Peter Martini and Mike McLaughlin to make up another outfield trio that is good and Zane McNeill is about as fine as they come as a utility outfielder.

Perhaps the ace of the pitching staff is Chris McCarthy who really picks off the corners of the plate. His accuracy is above average and there is no doubt that he is an asset to this club. Steve Neergaard is the answer to a manager's dream as a moundsman. Both Chris and Steve have carried the pitching load up to now but the managerial brain trust is getting ready to unveil one of the other team members in a new role as another twirler.

The Panthers have been resting a bit up to now but don't let the interlude fool you for they are about ready to spring and then it will be every man for himself.

The Whippets

Sponsored by W. Allan Wilde & Son

Manager Enar Carlson is proud of his team and he does not mind saying so. "This is one of the finest group of boys that I have ever worked with," he said, "and they are doing everything that they can to improve with each game." Coach Leo Pollacchi ready to add his praise to that of the manager. "I could not ask for a better gang," he asserted, "they are always in there trying to win and they never seem to quit."

The Whippets don't intend to quit until the final game of the year. They intend to keep the pressure on their opponents in every inning and then let the best team pick up the marbles.

In the catching department the Whippets are well fortified. John MacIsaac handles most of the games but Dick Phillips is learning the ropes fast. John can also play an outfield position and Dick has been used at second base as well as in the outer garden.

Bob Carlson is at first base and nobody would need anyone else for that spot while Bob is around. But the Whippets never take any chances so they have Make Kisil ready to move in whenever the strategy calls for it. Dick Bianco works around second base and Joe Saylor is also ready for second base chores. Jim Palermo plays short and sometimes Lee Pollacchi works that position. Jim is one of the men that Manager Carlson hopes to mold into a pitcher. Lee Pollacchi is already a pitcher and probably the ace of the staff. Lee also does an outfield bit if he is needed but he is always needed at the bat and his hits prove it.

Mike Kisil is another pitcher who can throw with the best of them and his bat is far from silent. Then there is Dave Sarapina who plays a lot of third base for this club. With boys like these working hard the Whippet infield is about as good as you could desire.

Outfielders are ready to team up in any combination that the managerial staff chooses. Jason Bates, Jim Kimball and Dennis Lawton make up a trio that is hard to beat. Brian Marks, Pete Monson and Pete Rigney make up another set of fielders who are good glove men. Then there is Dick Bianco, John MacIsaac, Dick Phillips and Lee Pollacchi ready to work in the field if they are needed and the Whippets are well stocked with outfield material.

Looking over the roster it is easy to see why the Whippet's manager is proud of his team. These boys have the ability to upset the rest of the league once they start to work at it. When these Whippets put on the steam the other teams may be choking from the dust.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

The Dodgers

Sponsored by the Kiwanis

The Dodgers have been having a tough time getting in the groove but Manager Woody Boynton is not worried about it. "This club is solid and once they hit their stride they will be tough to stop," was his comment. Coach Alden Cheever is firm in his confidence in the Dodgers. "Nobody is counting the Dodgers out of this race yet," he asserted, "and if they are wise they will not take this team lightly. They may get a surprise."

There is no doubt that the Dodgers have strength. Their pitching is about as good as any team could muster. Jim Beck is one of the best moundsmen in the league and the Dodgers have Dan Doucette and Joe Hawkins to add to the pitching list. Beck handles short when not on the mound and Hawkins can play first base or an outfield post when he is not tossing them in.

Bill Brink does everything well on third base and Dennis Hall can work second base to perfection. Dennis is also an outfielder when needed. Bill Logan and Tom Melaragni are both utility men who can play either infield or outfield. These boys keep the team at full strength no matter what position they are working.

Dave Leland handles the catching chores but could work infield if needed and Kevin Pierce is another infielder who is ready to plug the gap at any post. These boys keep the Dodger inner defense as tight as a drum no matter which combination works the lineup.

Wayne Erickson does all of his work in center field and he is a champ right there. Ed Pierce handles an outfield position with ease and Steve Troiano is more than willing to complete the trio. Gary Walsh is another good outfielder who can also be used for infield duty whenever necessary but he would rather play a garden spot. Bob Whitney and Greg Johnson complete the outfield complement and all of these boys are speedy and efficient.

The Dodgers can handle the ball well on the field and they are beginning to sharpen up their batting eyes now. It looks like these fellows mean business from here on in.

The Greyhounds

Sponsored by Leslie Ford Motors

The Greyhounds live up to their name when it comes to speed and determination. At least that is the opinion of Manager Bill Bond. "This team is going to explode in one of these games and then watch them take off for the league lead," he said. Coach Ed Porter shares the same thought. "I know that these boys have the stuff," he commented, "and once they hit their stride they are going to be tough to slow down."

There is no question of the Greyhounds' ability. When you have an all around player like Larry Wright on your club you start off with a lead right there. Larry owns the first base territory and is a real fancy Dan around the bag. Second base duties are in Paul Resteghini's capable hands and the third base job is covered by Jim Murphy, one of the most promising prospects in the league. Rupert Stanley moves around in shortstop like a vacuum cleaner on ground balls. An infield like that is hard to match in any league.

Ed Porter handles the catching assignment with all the skill of a major leaguer. Ed works his pitchers well and is a real field general. Between Steve Barrow, Ralph Dietze and G. Green, the Greyhounds have a real pitching staff. These boys have accuracy and speed which is about all that any manager could want.

Phil Toomajian is one of the finest centerfielders to be found and Larry McHugh is another center gardener who can patrol the outfield with the best of them. Paul Christersen usually works left field and can split the job with Tim Porter if needed. Both boys are good glove men and have speed to burn. Dave Walters and Joe Campbell are two more outfielders that the Greyhounds are proud to have on their club. And Jim Burnham can work in any outfield position where he is needed.

It looks like the rabbit for these Greyhounds is the league lead and they are in hot pursuit of it. It might be a good idea for the rest of the league to keep them in sight for they intend to get away fast from here on in.

The Lions

Sponsored by Renton's Market

Maybe the roar of the Lions was not too loud at the start of the season but they intend to make their voices heard for the rest of the games. Manager Fred McGrath knows that his club is starting slow but he is unconcerned. "They are beginning to get in the groove now," he said, "and as they start to roll it will be all down hill for the rest of the season."

The Lions sport two coaches, Al Ungaretti and Dick Kramer and both of them are true believers. "This team is ready to swing into high gear," they both agree, "and they don't intend to look back at the other clubs that will be following."

Denny Smith, the Lion's official scorekeeper and chief rooter says, "I have sharpened some pencils and I am ready to keep marking the runs as they cross the plate."

With Al Ungaretti behind the plate, the Lions have all they need in that department. Al is an all around ball player and the answer to a manager's dream. And with pitchers like Dick Kramer and Charlie Donahue, the Lions are all set as far as batteries are concerned. Dick is one of the better hitters on the club also.

Charlie Patti is a utility infielder who is always ready to get on the job when he is needed. Mike Smith is a heavy hitter who can handle first base with plenty of know-how. Joe Penta works second base like he has had it for years and Ralph Jacobs owns the third base job. Ralph is a big sticker and he is shadowed by his brother Dick. Dick Jacobs is as fine a shortstop as one could have on a team. With an infield lineup like that it is no wonder that the managerial staff is happy.

Mike Corf, Mike Kennedy and Mike Sheehy make up the "Mike" outfield and they are death on the fly balls that come out to the garden. Tom Queen, Roger McGrath, and Bob Lindmark comprise another outfield trio that would be hard to better. And Paul Kenny is an outfielder who can play any of the three positions with ease. Without a good outfield, no team can stay in contention for long but the Lions haven't a worry on that score. These boys are just plain good.

So when the opposition hears a noise that sounds like thunder, don't look up for it will be the Lions roaring that will be heard. And when they get that close it is too close for comfort.

Sachems Lose To Melrose 1-0

In what turned out to be the battle of Murphys, Pete Murphy of Melrose bested Don Murphy of Winchester 1-0 in a tight pitcher's duel last Thursday at Manchester Field.

The only hit that the Sachems were able to muster was a fifth inning single by first sacker Jeff Schlener. Other than that the Sachems were completely buffaloed by the pitching of Melrose ace Pete Murphy.

This was a far different game from the first one these two teams played, a total of thirteen runs were scored in the first game of the season between the clubs, but the scoring in this game was limited to the second inning. Ambrogne tripled and Wirtanen singled him in for what turned out to be the winning run.

Sachem's Don Murphy scattered eight hits and was effective in the clutch coming through with the big out in key situations. If the Sachems had given Don a few runs to work with he might have picked up his third victory of the season. The summaries:

WHS Nine Beats Stoneham 5-3

A four run fifth inning and the effective three hit pitching of Brian Collins gave Winchester a 5-3 win over Stoneham Monday. Collins gave up two runs in the first and after that he was unbeatable giving them just one hit and one run the rest of the game.

In the Sachem's fifth, Lee Sullivan walked, Kevin Wiggin singled and Bob Cuff then hit a ground rule double that scored them. Bob Gilberti singled, scoring Cuff and the Sachems tied the game at 3-3. With the bases still loaded after three straight walks, Davis Blanchard then made the fourth walk and the Sachems went ahead to stay.

It was Collins' third victory against two losses. The Sachems now have an overall record of six wins and eight losses. The Sachems played their last game yesterday at Wakefield.

The schedule of games will continue next Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at Ginn Field, and Sunday at 1:30 at West Side Field.

St. Mary's Schola Singers

St. Mary's Schola Wins Trophy

Triumphant smiles gladdened every Schola boys' face as the annual C.Y.O. Music Festival came to the end of its competing on Sunday evening, May 16.

As runner-up in the Elementary School Choral Groups, they were in competition with six parishes in the Archdiocese. Mrs. James Daschbach was the accompanist for the group.

The competition was held at Sacred Heart Auditorium in Roslindale. The Schola was topped by only a few points by the choral group from St. Agnes, Arlington. Presentation of the trophies was made by Monsignor John P. Carroll, Archdiocesan director of the C.Y.O.

Under the direction of Sister St. Patricia, C.S.J., the boys presented the following program, conducted by Lawrence Penta:

"Freddy and His Fiddle" from the Song of Norway

"Atcheson, Topeka and the Santa Fe" by Mercen and Warren

"With a Hey and a Hi and a Ho, Ho, Ho," by Curtis and Miznn

The school administration congratulates the Schola with an earnest wish that this is but the beginning of many more successes.

Summer Program For Children In Hub Environment

Winchester children, their parents and friends, are invited to join Roxbury children in an exciting summer program of art, music, and excursions in and out of Boston.

Miss Nancy Curtis, director of the Roxbury Basic Reading Program, has issued the invitation to children ages 4 through 12 from Winchester and Lexington to join in this special summer section of the program.

The morning will begin with music and art classes, followed by rides and walking trips to museums, Children's Theater, the wharf, the Public Gardens and Arboretum, the zoo, as well as hikes and picnics. Children will meet Tuesday and Thursday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. during July and August at the Eliot Congregational Church in Roxbury.

In announcing the program Miss Curtis said, "This program is open to families who are interested in fostering friendship between the races in the Greater Boston area. We have chosen a program which will permit natural and sustained contact between children, rather than the 'one visit' type of arrangement attempted in the past. The success of the program will depend on the interest, imagination, involvement, and cooperation of all the parents and children."

There are many levels at which one can participate: car-drivers are needed with or without children; excursion leaders, classroom helpers, even babysitters to remain in Winchester to release a mother who would like to participate with an older child.

In addition many tutors are needed for the reading part of the program on Monday, Wednesday and Friday. College students, housewives, working men and women can qualify for a special training program to be held in June for Remedial reading tutors. Also needed are teachers of art, music, drama, piano and dance.

The program will be flexible enough to allow participation once or twice a week, for one or two months. There has been considerable interest from all parts of the Winchester community including Lexington.

All interested persons may call Mrs. Alvin James Hendler, local coordinator, at 729-7627, for additional information. Applications for enrollment should be in by the first week in June.

Recreation Committee Public Hearing Draws Substantial Audience, Interest And Comment

More than a hundred interested citizens turned out in response to the town Recreation Committee's announced public hearing on its recommendations for more recreational facilities in Winchester last week.

The committee presented its recommendations for a multiple recreational complex to be built here over a ten to fifteen year period by private subscription and institutional financing at the Wednesday, May 26, evening meeting in the high school auditorium.

The committee was impressed with the size and enthusiasm of the attending audience, according to Richard W. Freeman, chairman of the Recreation Committee, and plans to analyze and evaluate the many suggestions offered by members of the assembly—both on the recommended recreational complex and on other aspects of recreation in Winchester.

The hearing began at 8 p.m. with a review of the history of recreation in Winchester by Mr. Freeman, including the development of present public and private facilities, and the many various attempts to obtain more here in the town.

Mrs. A. R. Gunner Brink, a member of the committee, explained what the present committee had accomplished since it was appointed in 1961. She detailed the operation of the experimental pilot program set up by the committee in 1962 to provide a "gathering place" for students in the high school.

In depicting the success of this program, Mrs. Brink noted that both the total number of youth utilizing the Saturday night "REC," as well as the average nightly attendance, had climbed steadily each year since its inception.

The total number of youths registered had risen 48 percent in the three year period and the average nightly attendance rose 58 percent in the same time period.

Curently, more than 1,000 youths are registered and the average nightly attendance this year is 273.

Mrs. Brink also stated that there is a lack of suitable space in the McCall gymnasium for promoting the variety of recreational activities which the committee feels are warranted.

A brochure was distributed prior to the start of the hearing which gave the basic outline of a Community Center concept along with plans of a suggested arrangement of facilities which might be included in such a Center. A scale model was also on display at the hearing.

John F. Sexton outlined the recommendations of the committee:

1) That a Community Recreation Center be built with private capital raised by a town-wide subscription. This will prevent any further burden on the tax rate.

2) That the Center eventually be comprised of:

a) Utility Core

b) Recreation Center Building—to include adequate space and facilities for a youth center and adult charitable functions.

c) Swimming Pool Building—to include an Olympic size swimming pool (designed to also meet official AAU specifications for school team sports), a separate diving pool for use with ten meter diving boards, a wading pool for children and perhaps a hydrotherapy treatment area for elder citizens.

d) Arts and Crafts Building—including a small theatre for drama and opera group rehearsals.

e) Shop Building

Dominican Assist By CPO O'Malley

U.S. Navy Chief Petty Officer Robert J. O'Malley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick J. O'Malley of Brockton and formerly of Winchester, is a member of the Military Air Transport Service (MATS) component assigned to airlift supplies to the Dominican Republic and evacuate American citizens from that troubled country.

Chief O'Malley is an aircraft loadmaster in a naval unit at Norfolk, Virginia, which supports the MATS mission of providing global airlift of U.S. military forces and equipment.

MATS crews flew more than 1,000 missions during the first six days of the effort by the Organization of American States to restore peace.

The chief is a graduate of Winchester High School. His wife, Joyce, is the daughter of R. H. Foster of Wnchester.

Artists Ready For Sidewalk Showing

Just a few days remain before local artists gather to show their work at the annual Winchester Artist's Sidewalk Show.

The warm spring weather anticipates the carnival atmosphere of the event when the fence along Manchester Field is hung with a rich variety of paintings and drawings. As it was last year, the children's show promises to be a colorful and interesting display.

Organized by Mrs. Jule Lambeck, the children's show will contain the artistic creations of Winchester school children. The rules for hanging pictures in this part of the Sidewalk Show are slightly different from the rules that apply to adults.

Adult artists are invited to show their works for a very minimal hanging charge. This small fee entitles each artist to hang as many pictures as he wishes.

Sales of art work are made through the sponsoring committee, and a 15 percent commission helps to support the Winchester Art Association's Art Scholarship Fund.

Winchester children pay no hanging fee, but are limited to one entry per pre-school child and 3 per school-age child. Their work is not generally for sale, although interested buyers may contact the parents of a child artist to discuss purchase of a picture. The organizing committee will assist any interested buyers in making contact with the artist's parents.

All pictures should be mounted on a firm backing to avoid wind damage. Further information on the children's part of the Sidewalk Show can be obtained from Mrs. Lambeck at 729-4612.

The show will begin at 10 a.m., Saturday, June 5. Artists will begin hanging their works at 9 a.m., but may continue to hang pictures any time during the day. In case of rain, the show will be held the following Saturday, June 12.

Additional information is available from Mr. or Mrs. Vincent Visconti at 729-4658.

Kiwanis Fish Derby At Wedge Saturday

This is the week for fishing poles.

Last week's parade featured rifles and the week before a Jug Band. But this is the week to get dad or mom up early and pick up the old fishing pole, net and some bait and get down to the Town Hall for the annual Fishing Derby Parade Saturday at 9 a.m. then on to Wedge Pond for the Derby.

There are still a couple of days to sign up and if you didn't get a blank at school, get one at the Sports Shop and have your parent sign it and return it there. A parent or guardian is needed at the pond, too. But one will do for any number in one family.

The Derby itself starts at 10 and goes through to 1 p.m. You'll need lots of worms, the only accepted bait, so get out the shovel and start digging. After yesterday's rain, today should be a good one to get going on this necessary pre-Derby chore.

The 12-year-old Kiwanis-sponsored Fish Derby becomes more popular every year and is something not to be missed if you are old enough to hold a rod and are not further along in school than the eighth grade. There will be about thirty prizes to be awarded. Judges will be at a table where each catch is assessed. And there are about 30 prizes to be given to as many boys and girls although they will not be awarded until later, at a Kiwanis Little League game.

Start digging—see you Saturday!

COMMUNITY CENTER COMPLEX. The Town Recreation Committee had this scale model constructed to show an "ideal" community center type complex housing recreational facilities of many orders, and displayed it at the En Ka Street Fair parade and at their public hearing on recreation in Winchester last week. Model drew considerable interest at both events.

Seniors Wind Up Last Week At WHS

The Class of 1965 climaxes its high school career with a week of rehearsals and class activities, culminating in graduation exercises at Manchester Field on June 6 at 5:30 p.m.

W. Howard Niblock, prncipal of the high school, noted that the time of the ceremony is earlier than in previous years to allow for the individual awarding of the diplomas to 340 graduates.

The invocation and benediction will be given by the Rev. James R. Scroggs of the Second Congregational Church. Mrs. Robert Grenzeback, chairman of the School Committee, will award the diplomas, scholarships will be announced by Mrs. Robert Ingraham, chairman of the Scholarship Committee of the Winchester Scholarship Foundation.

The senior week activities are under the direction of Thomas A. Morse, senior adviser and assistant principal of the high school. Rehearsals began a week ago to acquaint the students with their assigned seats.

Class Night took place last evening in the school under the supervision of faculty member Elizabeth Hull, assisted by Coach Henry Knowlton and Miss Janice Collins. Joseph Lynch served as chairman of the affair.

The prom committee has been working to make tonight a success. Janice and Judith Carucci are chairmen of a hard-working committee of seniors. The group has been under the direction of Miss Martha Carlson, art teacher at WHS.

Local Interest Is On Miss Volpe At Miss U.S.A. Contest

TV-viewers here of the "Miss U.S.A." contest in Miami Beach tomorrow night will see a pert and pretty "Miss Massachusetts" competing against 49 other lovely girls for the national title—and additional local interest will focus on the event due to the fact that three Winchester men were among the nine judges who selected the state titleholder, and Gov. Volpe of Winchester crowned her.

The 19-year-old Mary Lou Volpe, holder of the "Miss Quincy" title for 1964 and 1965, hails from Braintree, and is not related to the Governor. In fact, when Mary Lou was crowned by Gov. Volpe last Thursday night at the "Miss Massachusetts" Pageant at the Hotel Somerset in Boston, she said it was the first time she had ever seen the Governor.

Among the nine "Miss Massachusetts" contest judges reviewing the crop of 84 community titleholders for the selected pageant winner were three well-known Winchester men: Judge Francis P. Cullen of 78 Bacon Street, judge of the Woburn District Court; James J. Dobbins of 94 Church Street, Boston Traveler and Boston Sunday Herald editorial cartoonist, many-time winner of Freedoms Foundations awards for his cartoons, and the author of Dobbin's Diary of the New Frontier; and Robert A. Ferrarini of 50A Lake Street, New England manager for Alitalia Air Lines.

School Department Speaks Out On The Bus Transit Issue

"One of the mental reservations that appears to be keeping some citizens from giving an unqualified vote of yes for the new school at the Turkey Ridge site is the question of transportation of students.

$5 Million High School Building Project Decision Pending, Debate Growing

The special Town Meeting called to decide whether the town should construct a new $5 million modern high school complex on the west side at a site on Turkey Ridge as a solution to the overcrowded secondary school problem picks up again this evening in the high school auditorium at 7:45 after dissolving in mid-debate with no action taken on Monday, May 24.

The long-awaited secondary school building decision almost came to a crucial vote at the first session of the special Town Meeting last week, but when the meeting was adjourned to tonight the whole issue was left hanging—with both proponents of the new school at the western site and opponents claiming theirs was the near victory in the first round.

This evening both the number of speakers and the loudness of their arguments are expected to enlarge the debate to new and more emphatic proportions. Some observers predict a late decision this evening on the $5 million Permanent Building Committee proposal for a new campus-style high school; others believe the special Town Meeting will carry on to another session for this important issue.

Planning Board Speaks Out On School Choices

In a written communication to the Star this week, the Planning Board has gone on record as formally opposing the Permanent Building Committee's secondary school subcommittee recommendation to construct a new $5 million high school at a Turkey Ridge site on the western outskirts of town.

The Planning Board's statement, issued Tuesday afternoon, read:

"Winchester has reached the cross-roads of decision - a decision which can affect the entire future of the community. The urgent need for enlarged high school facilities has brought us to the brink of action which will end several years of planning.

"The Secondary School Building Committee has given much thought to the problem. It has concluded that the Town should construct a campus-type high school in the western outskirts of the community. The area chosen is available from the point of view that it is undeveloped. There is ample room to provide all that could be imagined for such a school. Considering only the educational opportunities afforded by such a new, modern school plant, it is quite easy and palatable to follow the lead of this Committee. At this point, nobody is inconvenienced. Nobody is displaced. Nobody is unsettled. The chances would seem good that the Town will buy this proposition. It seems to provide a ready answer to the immediate problem.

"The Planning Board is aware of the urgency of the situation. It is fully cognizant of all that ideal facilities can do to help our school system turn out educated people. It is, however, compelled to take a hard look at the realities in so far as they effect the long-range development of all components of the Town. It cannot allow the exigency of the moment to affect its thinking.

"We are and must be concerned with the questions of centrality, traffic patterns and commercialization. To the extent that these issues are ignored, the character of the community will change.

"If the high school is placed in the western outskirts of the Town, a large majority of the school population will be permanently inconvenienced by the remoteness of the school. Traffic patterns will be seriously and permanently affected to the detriment of large segments of the Town. Commercial pressures will grow along new lines of traffic density. Such permanent changes should be avoided if at all possible. We fear the consequences.

"The Secondary School Building Committee has admitted that centrality will be sacrificed, that Turkey Ridge is a poor site for a high school from the point of view of location. It says, however, that there is no other feasible place to go for the kind of building it wishes to construct.

"The Building Committee has stated that adequate facilities could be provided near the center of town. If this is true, then the Planning Board believes that positive thinking should be directed towards the Center. Any practical solution involving the area of the center of the Town will displace the homes of some people. This is hard and regrettable, but for the greater good of the entire town for generations to come we should be prepared to make such a sacrifice.

"If it is thought that a high school campus is necessary to meet the educational specifications of the School Committee, then the area between Lake Street and Lynch Junior High School would provide an ideal site. This site would provide centrality without change in traffic patterns and without any increase or dislocation

AUSTIN BROADHURST

"We remain convinced that the right educational answer for the present and future Winchester is a new high school and on a new site, the recommended Turkey Ridge site—and we fully recognize the disadvantages of the location, but it does provide space for playing fields, parking, and future expansion as well as the necessary building needed now—the only alternative site would involve the taking of homes, which we don't think the town wants to do because of the attendant costs and family dislocations. Any thought to further additions onto the present WHS will inevitably result in a continuation of our present problem, where the staff is constantly fighting the building rather than having the building help the educational program; also, if the town develops beyond present growth projections, the town's problems here would be greater.

PLANNING BOARD

JOSEPH C. GRAY

"I think the whole issue depends basically on whether the campus-style of high school they propose is necessary for the high quality of education they want here in Winchester. If it isn't necessary, I think they should come back to the center of town, and even at the present high school site if nowhere else. If thetown is convinced that a campus style high school is necessary, and if the town is equally convinced that a new high school must be located in or near the center, then the Middlesex Street area is the one recommended for study by the Planning Board. We think they should work out a location other than the Turkey Ridge site, anyway.

SCHOOL COMMITTEE

MRS. ROBERT J. GRENZEBACK

"The community must now make a long-range decision and decide whether it will accept substandard educational plan facilities and still expect a quality educational system, or whether it is going to provide a superior educational plant that will both enable and facilitate a superior public school system to operate as such. A new high school is desirable because of the educational needs of today and tomorrow. How can we fulfill the educational requirements of the present and future young Winchester citizens without an educational plant that is flexible enough to cope with the constantly changing and improving modern teaching methods? The present facility in the center would suffice as a good junior high school, but it does not and cannot be the same for a high school—and that is why we need the new high school at the Turkey Ridge site.

BOARD OF SELECTMEN

EDWARD E. HICKS

"I am opposed to the PBC-recommended Turkey Ridge site, as is the majority of the board, and favor keeping the high school in the center. Admittedly, the use of the older buildings may not be as good educationally as building a new building, but we think they would be satisfactory with either the Marshall Plan or some variation of it. If we do get a center high school solution, we'll probably end up having to build another junior high school, so I do think we should take the Turkey Ridge site so it would be available for a junior high school there when it is needed. It's not just the problem of busing that turns the board against Turkey Ridge for the high school—it's also that to dump 1500 high schoolers into a part of the west side will change the whole character of that area and the town itself. Also, the Selectmen tend to disagree with some of the PBC's comparative plan figures; while recognizing that they are estimates made by experts and capable men, they still don't seem comparable.

FINANCE COMMITTEE

CHARLES T. DOUCETTE, JR.

"The Finance Committee feels that the PBC has done an excellent job in its study and recommendations, and we're of the opinion that the town should go up there and build a new school on this site. The majority of the Finance Committee is in favor of the recommendations of the PBC: the costs, we're convinced, are reasonably good estimates on the various alternative programs; and, assuming the costs are pretty close, if you're going to spend $5 million to build school classroom space, why now build a new school and get the best value for the money spent? Even with the disadvantages of the site location, we're mainly in favor of a new higs school and at this location."

In case you are curious about the Pentagon, you should be because that is where about half of your tax dollars are spent.

The headquarters of the Department of Defense is a fabulous place and has been since it was opened two decades ago. Most visitors to Washington see the world's largest office building from the outside but comparatively few venture inside.

Not everybody who visits the Pentagon gets lost, although many do. The story about the Western Union messenger who was lost in the building so long that he emerged a Lieutenant Colonel is definitely not true.

However, there is an authentic report about a workman who got lost in the ceiling while installing pneumatic tubes. He stepped in the wrong place, crashed through the ceiling and landed on a conference table on the floor below, while a top secret meeting was in progress. After proving he was not a Russian spy, he was escorted back to the rafters whence he came.

The Pentagon is loaded with Generals and Admirals, of course, but most of the 27,000 people who work there are civilians. The boss is also a civilian, Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara.

Statistics Are Staggering

The Pentagon is only six stories high, including the basement. Each floor is identical in plan, resembling a monster cartwheel, with five lettered rings connecting with ten numbered corridors. Visitors are given a map to guide them. Room 4B629, for example, is on the fourth floor, off Ring B, on the sixth corridor.

Each floor is decorated in a different color and there are many signs to tell a stranger where he is and how to escape. That can be quite a trip, since there are 17 miles of hallways. It doesn't pay to just wander about, trusting to find an exit.

There are 18 parking lots serving the Pentagon and that is not enough. There is space for 9,600 cars but more parking permits than that are issued because some people are always out sick, away on business or vacation. Stickers to park are for areas, not for individual spaces, but even those with a permit cannot always find a hole to fill.

About 200 policemen issue an average of 1,400 tickets a month, most for parking in the wrong place. Even government cars are ticketed and the driver assessed $3. Naturally, the choicest parking spots are allocated on a basis of rank and salary.

Generals, Admirals and top civilians need only cross the road from lot to office. Lowly clerks and buck privates are encouraged to take the bus or join a car pool by being assigned a parking area as far away as three-quarters of a mile.

Bus service is available right in the bowels of the building and at rush hour the basement terminal is one of the busiest places in town. There is also a special subterranean entrance for taxicabs.

There is a visitors' parking lot adjacent to the building but you have to be a convincing talker to merit a place there. Your correspondent once fought this battle and won and has been feeling smug ever since.

Cleaning a Major Problem

There are 6.5 million square feet of floor space in the Pentagon. You can imagine what a task it is to keep the place clean. It takes nearly 400 people and the annual budget for cleaning, heating, air conditioning and general maintenance is $6.2 million.

Cleaning has been reduced almost to a science. There are various squads of specialists. Some people are "high cleaners" who concentrate on areas over eight feet above the floor. There are "lampists" who clean and repair the light fixtures, all 90,000 of them, on a once-a-year schedule.

There are rug specialists who do nothing but vacuum carpets and a venetian blind crew that take the fixtures to a special laundry in the basement. The more prosaic tasks are done by "zone cleaners," mostly women who are assigned 21,000 square feet per night.

The General Services Administration, Uncle Sam's housekeeper, has developed a special fleet of vehicles for meeting the special problems of the vast Pentagon. Electric "widgets" are used to transport workers in the halls, "lampists" use bicycles, and the supervisor has a motor scooter. There are also powered sweepers for cleaning and buffing the floor and an outdoor version for picking up debris on the 67 acres of parking lots.

There are areas in the Pentagon which are off limits to all those without top security clearance. These areas are cleaned only upon invitation, and the crews are watched while they work. Few of the cleaning personnel have security clearance because investigations are so expensive.

Navy Taking School Enlistees

Donald J. Chmura, MMC, USN, the local Navy Recruiter, announced that high school seniors may enlist in the Navy as early as March and report for active duty after graduation. Under the 120 Day Delay Program, the Navy has been authorized to enlist qualified young men and give them up to 120 days to report for active duty.

Young men enlisting in this program gain several advantages. The delay time prior to reporting to active duty counts toward completion of military obligation, builds up longevity for pay purposes, and affords four months' seniority prior to entering recruit training. No attendance at drills or meetings is required during the waiting period.

Anyone desiring further information on this program, or any other program offered by the Navy, is invited to drop by and see Chief Chmura MMC or Chief Sazonick TMCS, the local Navy Recruiters at the Medford City Hall, or call for an appointment at EX5-6066.

WCC Evening With Volpe

Special honors to their illustrious co-member were tendered Tuesday night when 250 stag members of the Winchester Country Club gathered for dinner at "An Evening with John Volpe," held at the club.

"One of the nicest parties ever held there," was the report of many members of the informal get-together, climaxed with a few chosen words by elected club officials and by a few special gifts including a green WCC jacket and tie.

TV Plays Cupid For Winchester Soldier and Wife

Today it may all begin to seem like a dream.

But beginning a week ago yesterday and culminating in the noontime Channel 4 Mike Douglas broadcast yesterday, TV lights, make-up, telegrams and jets became an intimate part of the life of Mrs. Howard J. Murphy of 69 Sheridan Circle, to say nothing of that of her husband, Sgt. Murphy.

It happened this way: Staff Sgt. Howard Murphy, a regular Air Force soldier of 20 years service, has been in Viet Nam for just a year. Mrs. Murphy has been in the habit of tape recording family and neighborhood news and events, especially conversation from the couple's two children Joseph 9, and Claire, 7, and sending them out across the Pacific.

Recently Mrs. Murphy taped the Douglas show on a day when Mike was in Boston for the Prudential opening and also had Pat O'Brien on his show. She sent it along to her husband whose immediate response was "Send more like this - everyone here enjoyed it. Keep them coming." Mrs. Murphy sat down and wrote a note to show headquarters in Cleveland to ask them why they couldn't send some shows themselves. And then it started.

She began getting phone calls from the studio asking her to come out and be on the show. At first she demurred, then she accepted. There were more calls, more arrangements and last Wednesday she flew out, entirely at the show's expense, and was prepared for the lights by the make-up staff. During the show she was being interviewed about letters and tapes, the waiting and the distance. "Be a lot better if he could walk in and hand you a letter," said Mike Douglas, suddenly. And in walked the sergeant.

On his side the calls had gone through headquarters the plans made and everything fixed so that he could come back "stateside" a week ahead of his scheduled return and be there to greet his wife.

Sgt. Murphy has just started a 40-day leave and will be around here before he is off with the Air Force again. This time instead of Viet Nam he will be down at Maguire Air Force Base, New Jersey and will be able to not only look at television direct and clear, but to have his family by his side while he's doing it.

Editorials:

The Hanging Issue:
A Wise School Decision Must Be Made

The special Town Meeting reconvenes tonight to try and wrestle its way through the proposed new high school problem to a solution that is both good and right for the town. What to do? How to vote? The two main considerations should be: what should the town do to provide the best educational plant facility as a return on a heavy financial investment; and what can the town be reasonably asked to support for an educational plant capital investment.

The two considerations are not necessarily compatible in the same solution. It should be quite obvious that the construction of a new high school with adequate space and flexibilty programmed and designed into it would provide the very best educational answer to the secondary school problem here in Winchester. It should be equally obvious that to build a whole new high school will end up—one way or another—as being the most expensive of alternative types of solutions. The question as far as the decision-making process is concerned then falls on whether when you are talking about a $5 million investment in capital plant facilities, a few thousand or even as much as a million dollars one way or the other is worth haggling over when you are discussing a final and best solution to a problem.

Regardless of whether individual readers are for or against the Turkey Ridge site specifically, it is most important to point out here that if the town is going to spend as much as $5 million on either the existing or a new high school—the answer should be a vote for a new modern facility that will be the best investment . . . otherwise the town will be cheating itself in a silly waste of dollars in an attempt to be "economical" by being niggardly with pennies.

Throughout the discussion of this issue the Star has maintained: If the town is going to tackle the secondary school problem and attempt to solve it—do it right, solve the whole problem, not only for today but for tomorrow . . . otherwise the money spent today will be wasted for tomorrow someone else will have to spend more to correct what we don't do right today—as when the town has previously "faced" the secondary school high school problem!

The problem has been recognized, it has been studied, and now a very capable committee has recommended a certain solution as the best answer. The recommendations cannot be thrust aside lightly; as they may very well be the solution the town really should have and needs. But, no one likes the site. Maybe there is no other suitable site; maybe the town will have to take this bitter lemon aspect of the recommended solution and accept it. As bad as the Turkey Ridge site location may be, it is far better to build a new high school there than to build another mistake onto the present high school building—that has put us into our present dilemma (along with the town's procrastination to accept the facts of reality and plan and build for the future!); and very well could put us into another secondary school building problem and dilemma again in the future.

If Winchester is going to solve its secondary school building space problem, as indeed it must, then the wise and best answer for the town is to build a new high school. If no other site is available, as we are told, then it must go on Turkey Ridge and it's as simple as that.

Freedoms Endangered

There is something different and special about the way of American life, and/or the way Americans live, and that very noticeable yet intangible thing that is distinctive in this country and among our countrymen is—freedom.

While freedom is a wonderful and beautiful concept, thing, feeling—or whatever—it is also dangerous in some ways. The most dangerous aspect of freedom is that it by necessity entails that the bearer or holder by his own free choice provide for his own protection. Here in this nation we have been fortunate that our federal, state and local governments have for the most part been both benevolent and distant from our personal lives and freedoms. Yet this is changing; and rapidly so.

Each year now since the Korean War the Federal Government has been becoming more and more involved with the so-called "personal liberties." One reason for this is that on the international scene in the Cold War, Americans, who were saying that Communism didn't allow for personal freedom and liberty, were faced with the reality that everyone here did not enjoy "freedom, liberty and equality." At any rate, since the beginning of the 1960's, the pace has quickened and almost any kind of freedom one associates with having as being an American has come under question, attack, or even attempts to suppress from some quarters.

Almost every day now, as millions of unsuspecting or unattentive Americans wake up to begin a new day, something is happening somewhere relative to the "handling" of their freedoms—be it in the courts, in legislatures, or executive branches of all levels of government. For example, all of a sudden this year proprietors of businesses doing business with the public find that they are no longer able to call their property entirely "their own" since if they refuse equal treatment to all they can be charged with discrimination. Discrimination may not be good, or the American way, but unless Americans are more watchful and careful their traditional property rights will erode away to nothing.

Further, while it may be right that the majority shouldn't impose its way upon the minority in forms of intimidation and discrimination; nevertheless, it may sometimes be as equally wrong to deprive the majority of its rights—such as in the school prayer ban—as it would be to protect the minority's rights.

In another instance, it may be noted, there are more and more attempts now to muffle, censor and inhibit the press. This year in Massachusetts alone there were 44 bills filed by representatives to curtail news media in their news gathering functions for dissemination of public information to the public. So far 34 have been killed, either because of their unconstitutionality or their obvious unreasonableness—such as the one which would make it illegal to print a Representaive's voting record or how he voted on certain issues so the public wouldn't know how he represented them. Nevertheless, the press must constantly be on guard to protect its rights, here in Winchester too, as elsewhere in the state and nation.

Similarly, the people must be ever on guard in maintaining that their rights are not stolen, either in whole or piecemeal. And it must be a continuous vigil—this is the most important demand freedom makes upon those who are free: for freedom to persist and thrive it must be guarded, both jealously and fully.

At Last---a Solution to the Parking Problem

f) Field House—to include an artificial ice rink for hockey and recreational skating and curling lanes, with provision for indoor tennis, volleyball, roller skating or other similar use.

4) That the first phase of construction consist of completing the Utility Core, Recreation Center and Indoor Swimming Pool.

5) That the Center be operated by a non-profit organization which would be set up consisting of interested Winchester residents.

6) That the Center be programmed and constructed to provide recreational opportunities for all residents of Winchester.

7) That a minimal fee be charged for use of the Center to help defray annual operating expenses.

8) That the Center be located as near the center of town as possible.

Mr. Freeman said the Recreation Committee has proposed a Community Center Complex for use by all age groups in Winchester. This concept, which will be by and for the residents of Winchester, is most important. It ties together the numerous efforts of past groups interested in recreation; and correlates the desire for this type of program with efforts which citizens of this community are willing to support with time, talent and financial assistance.

A total plan was offered which could be completed over a number of years as interest and funds became available, thus giving immediate relief to present needs but providing for additional facilities and programming as future interests may warrant.

Mr. Freeman also urged that anyone interested in working toward the completion of this project contact him or one of the other members of the committee.

Selectman William R. Kimball moderated the final portion of the hearing, which was devoted to a question and suggestion period. Specific thoughts offered by members of the audience included:

Mrs. William Spaulding's statement that the committee should make every effort to keep any necessary fees at the lowest possible level.

Mr. Meurling's hope that the committee would be planning an interim program of broader scope than it is currently operating until such a time as a Community Center became a reality.

Mrs. Haff felt that necessary facilities could be provided through the auspices of the YMCA organization.

Mr. Malthaner said that the townspeople should enthusiastically support the committee and its recommendations.

Mr. Niblock stated that such a Community Center could bring the people of Winchester closer together, or otherwise the town might tend to become more disjointed and divided in the future than it now is.

Mr. Niblock also noted the results of a recent student-attitude survey which indicated that the students in Winchester feel the town is not actively supplying solutions to their needs.

Dr. Storer, via a letter to Mr. Freeman, stated that there is a great need for a meeting place for all ages. "Winchester is more than an eating and sleeping place. It is a town of people with varying needs that are not being met.—The library, the bridge, the ice cream parlor are not adequate or suitable for the informal type of gathering our young people enjoy. They are not ready to work or study directly after school hours."

Several persons stated that the entire project needs considerable publicity now to obtain the necessary support to carry it on to completion.

Captain Galuffo Instructor At Fire Seminar

Three Winchester Fire Captains, David Dalton, Mike Connolly, and Ernest Howard, are planning to attend a two day seminar next week on firefighting subjects sponsored by the Massachusetts Institute of Fire Department Instructors.

A fourth member of the local department and a member of the MIFDI, Captain Peter Galuffo, will also be attending the June 12 and 13 seminar at Cushing Memorial Hospital in Framingham as an instructor. He will be teaching a course in basic firefighter training, including ladder evolutions, hose line evolutions, and salvage operations.

Earlier this year Captain Galuffo gave a lecture to the full Massachusetts Institute of Fire Instructors at their February 24 meeting at the Motel 128 in Dedham on Fire Training for Hospitals.

Captain Galuffo was also responsible for developing an emergency evacuation plan for the Home for Aged People in Winchester at 110 Mt. Vernon Street, which has been acclaimed by home staffers, state fire officials, and Winchester Fire Chief Frank Amcio.

School Dept.

"Forty-three per cent of the students in the present high school in the center are not pedestrians.

"Other towns giving quality education to their young people have been using extensive bus programs successfully.

"School buses do not impair education; in our case, they would aid it.

"A question in many minds concerning the transportation habits of the present high school population was answered by a survey taken last week by W. Howard Niblock, principal of the school.

"Of the 911 students polled, 398 of them come in four-wheeled vehicles. That is, at present, 43 per cent of the high school pupils are driving, being driven or carried by bus to the high school now located in the center of town. The breakdown of the figures showed that 89 drive themselves, 201 are frequently driven in private cars, and 108 come by bus.

"With a rise of population in the present building, the percentage of 'students on wheels' will increase.

"The figure mentioned by the building committee in connection with busing to a new high school at Turkey Ridge is two-thirds of the enrollment, or 67 per cent.

"A check on the school bus situation at present in the town reveals that Winchester now buses pupils to Lynch Junior High School, Winchester Senior High School, St. Mary's School and Maryeliff Academy (according to law), as well as to Parkhurst School and Vinson-Owen. Six buses are now in use and make multiple runs. Seventeen would be needed if the high school were relocated; fewer would be needed if staggered scheduling was used.

"Other communities have been busing substantial numbers of senior high school students successfully for years. Wellesley transports 900 of its 1291 high schoolers, or 70 per cent. Natick transports approximately 50 per cent of its senior high pupils. Lexington quotes a figure silghtly under 50 per cent, and Wayland buses 85 per cent of its high school population. All systems provide high-quality education.

"Most of these schools plan extra runs after school hours, as Winchester contemplates doing next year for Lynch and the senior high. In the case of the new high school, the bus schedule would be arranged to meet the needs of students remaining after school for an hour, and for a longer period as well, at little or no extra cost.

"The central thread of the secondary school discussion concerns the educational welfare of the students. All other factors should be considered in the light of this primary tenet.

"Busing will not impair the education of students. Consider the students be transported to a new, forward-looking educational plant, or shall one-half of them walk to a static, eventually obsolescent one?

"The cost of busing under the new high school plan has been mentioned often, and most voters find no quarrel here. The maximum cost of school bus operation to the town will be $35,000, or $8,000 more than would be paid if the high school stayed in the center. The remainder of the total contract cost would be assumed by the state.

"Another minor item is the length of the trip. Compared to many school busing operations in other towns, the Winchester trip is minimal.

"The administration of the school department, in being questioned about transportation to the new high school, stated that Winchester schools already have bus organization, are geared to handle it, and can run 17 buses as successfully as they have run 6."

Statement . . .

Winchester

School Committee

"The School Committee remains convinced that the only sound solution to Winchester's secondary school needs involves the construction of a new senior high school. The Committee also is unanimous in support of the Turkey Ridge site as the best, if not the only, satisfactory location available for the new school. Problems of "bussing" students to the new high school are being overemphasized in the light of successful experience both locally and nationally in the transportation of substantial numbers of pupils to and from school."

Seniors

After graduation, members of this year's class will be heading in several directions. Eight students are entering the armed services, 30 are going to work, 170 will go on to 4-year colleges and universities, and 132 are seeking further education at junior colleges, business schools, technical institutes, and preparatory schools.

Planning

of commercial pressures. It would provide ample playing fields which could be used in conjunction with those of the Lynch Junior High School. The educational environment of the area would be enhanced without detriment to the Town. The only objection to this site is the number of houses at present in the area.

"We are not convinced, however, that the campus-type high school envisioned by the School Committee is necessary. How can the citizens of Winchester evaluate any specific building or site until they know what educational facilities are proposed? How can we possibly determine what kind of a building should be constructed and where it should be placed until we have more concrete information about how the educational specifications for the high school will produce the education for our children that we are looking for?

"We are faced with three possible actions. (1) We can build a campus-type school in the residential outskirts of Town. (2) We can build a campus-type school in the environment of the center of the Town. (3) We can build a school in the environment of the present high school. We question whether these choices have been objectively explored and fully publicized.

"If the campus envisioned by the Committee is not basic to Winchester's educational product, the Planning Board believes that an adequate facility can be planned and built in the environment of the present high school. The Board is certain that centrality is the most important planning factor in the choice of a site.

"The entire future of the Town should not be jeopardized for expediency or even for the temporary convenience of a few citizens. What we do today will affect all the people of Winchester for generations to come. We should be guided by plain, hard, sober thinking; unaffected by oratory, emotionalism or politics.

"We urge that more serious consideration be given to the center of Town as a location for the High School."

Star Employee Rescues A Man In Woburn Fire

A twenty-one-year old Winchester Star employee was one of two young men who risked their lives to rescue a 68-year-old man from his flaming two and a half story wooden house on Main Street in Woburn last Thursday afternoon.

After rescuing the dazed occupant of the home, the two men returned to the blazing house a second time to try and save a woman and baby that were said to be on the second floor. They smashed in the door leading to the second landing but were driven back by heavy smoke. Later they learned the woman and child were not at home during the time of the fire.

William Taylor, 21, son of Mrs. Eben Taylor of 6 Harvard Street extension in Woburn, and the advertising manager of the Winchester Star, was returning to work after lunch at about 1 p.m. on Thursday, May 27, when he and a friend, Alfred Spolidoro, 22, also of Woburn, saw smoke coming from the wooden house at 718 Main Street, near Brentwood Road.

They stopped their car and dashed up to the front entrance of the house, only to find the doors locked. They shouted and banged on the doors until finally they heard someone moving about—but still no one came to the door.

Smoke continuously poured out of the house, so the two men smashed in the door and discovered Michael Catone, 68, of 718 Main Street, in the living room, reluctant to leave.

They took Mr. Catone bodily from the burning building and, once outside, were informed that a woman and her baby were still upstairs.

Mr. Taylor and his friend tried to get to the second floor to help the woman and baby but were unable to get past the smoke at the top of the landing after breaking down a second door.

They ran to the fire alarm box across the street, but were not able to open the older type box.

Then they hurried to the nearby Marshall home and sent an emergency call to the Woburn Fire Department.

The Woburn Fire Department rang a second alarm when they arrived on the scene, and the Winchester and Burlington Fire Departments sent men and equipment to cover the Woburn Fire House while more Woburn men and engines went to fight the fire.

Woburn Fire Chief Callahan commended the two young men for their actions in risking their own lives to rescue someone completely unkown to themselves, and for repeating their endeavor when they learned someone else might have been trapped in the burning building.

JOURNEY TO THE JADE SEA

by John Hillaby

John Hillaby, an English newspaper reporter, has written a very funny book, but I'm not at all sure he meant it to be funny. Completely dead-pan, he undertook a foot safari with a string of ailing camels through the deserts of Kenya to Lake Rudolph (the Jade Sea) just because he felt like it and there must have been some very unfunny moments along the way—most of which he has forgotten, ignored or mentions in lower-case type.

He was accompanied on this trek by three regular "boys" and various hangers-on at odd intervals. The "boys" didn't know their way with any exactitude, couldn't read maps, were mean to the camels (who where mean right back). Hillaby knew nothing about guns, but was responsible for game and food; he traveled with 12 pairs of sneakers, worn in rotation, ragged shorts, a bush hat and two pairs of sunglasses, often worn simultaneously. He should have been bitten by mambas, maimed by rhinos, overcome by heat exhaustion or suffocated by sandstorms. He wasn't. Any old-timers who remember Kipling's Explorer will find a less grim analogy here. Hillaby's invincible innocence—or ignorance—seems to have protected him in circumstances which would have laid a regular guide or bushman low. He was terribly annoyed when a prim and proper game warden, sent for his protection against enemies never seen, intruded on his privacy with all sorts of safe and sane dictums which he tactfully flouted.

Hillaby did find the Jade Sea and caught fish so enormous and so numerous that the "boys" had to be taught how to disengage them and throw them back alive—a ritual difficult for them to understand. He did meet and minister to many sorts of natives, among them some utterly beautiful girls, as attested to by pictures—namely a Lolita and a Malaya (a trade, not racial name). He did suffer from occasional dyspepsia from the esoteric diet he brought down, but he had a lovely, lovely time of it.

"Let no one imagine that business worries or a broken heart drove me into the desert; boredom certainly had a lot to do with it and that boredom had been wholly replaced with a reservoir of self-confidence, based on a brief affair with a lake. Anything that reminded me of that lake was a pleasure."

Mr. Hillaby apparently left some daughters and presumably a wife at home. But so strong was the spell of Lake Rudolph and isolation that at the end of a five-month's trip, he still couldn't face going home, but had to wander around Nairobi to get used "to chronic boredom and the slow corruption of respectable life." Let's hope his family gave him a cheerful welcome when he felt up to facing home. Would you?

Letters To The Editor

Only signed letters to the editor of the Star will be considered for publication in these columns. Letters should be brief.

Not to Overlook Logic & Reason, Tho Unacceptable

Editor of the Star:

May I say a kind word on behalf of the efforts put forth at the last Town Meeting by a man whom I have never met and have never heard speak before.

I listened carefully and heard every word he said and I thought he made a tremendously effective, logical, dispassionate presentation of an unpopular subject; an alternate site at the highly touted Turkey Hill site.

I would like to say for the record that Mr. Chapman's suggestion was in not "dastardly dangerous or stupid," and it deserved much better than to be dismissed with invective on the one hand, or a deprecatory gesture on the other.

Two things were wrong with it however, and both of them were fatal:

(1) The timing was very bad "too little and too late."

(2) The cruel necessity of displacing half a hundred families (where would they go? where could they rebuild?)

Sentiment says that these good people must not be dispossessed against their will. (If they all wanted to sell, at a reasonable price, and go to Florida, would it then be a "dastardly" proposal?)

But sentiment is not logic and logic was with Mr. Chapman irrefutably. He did find us an ample central location. He did eliminate the bussing problem, the long range aspects of his suggestion were in the town's interest. It was logical on all counts—how then can it be called "stupid?"

Tempers flare at a time like this and we all say things with more vehemence than we intend—I think that was the case here on all sides.

Yours truly,
C. S. Borggaard

Idea of Taking Homes for School Here Is Attacked

Editor of the Star:

What kind of people are we to even consider taking people's homes by eminent domain when there is empty land available—homes which people love and work hard to keep up—decent, clean, attractive homes—homes people are proud of and happy to live in?

Drive up Main Street, turn left at Wedge Pond, and take the second right. Drive up Middlesex Street—one of the most attractive streets in Winchester. Is this what we want destroyed? Imagine how these people feel! How would we feel? Isn't there enough destruction in this world without deliberately adding to it?

But why destroy these homes? Why not move them to another location? Thirty years ago in Oakland, California, it cost one family $1,000 to move their 8-room house only 3 blocks. Imagine the cost today to move any house even half a block.

Where do our real values lie? Do we want to destroy people's homes and add insult to injury by giving only the assessed amount in payment or do we want to use the open land we have and enable people to keep their homes, their dignity and self-respect?

When another building program is proposed, each one of us can ask ourselves," Will my home be taken next?"

Sincerely,
Gwen Dexter

Alternate Site For New School Blasted Sharply

Editor of the Star:

I have been besought by persons from all parts of our Town to write a short note on the burning question concerning a new High School for Winchester. I shall be as brief as possible.

The suggestion put forth by the new member of the Planning Board that we take several Town buildings and 60 houses on Middlesex Street to set the school down there: I had heard of this hair-brained scheme a week before Town Meeting and recognized it for what it was, (and is!) a ruse to throw a scare into the Town Meeting Members in Precinct 6: "Vote for the Turkey Ridge site or we will turn you out of your nice, comfortable homes and send you packing, we don't care where!"

Then, when Town Meeting Members in Precinct 6 (this after the Town Meeting was over), were called on the 'phone and asked to call 10 other members and sell them the Turkey Ridge scheme (with intimations of soon-to-be lost homes lurking in the background) our suspicions were confirmed; they'd scare us into voting their way by whatever scheme they could cook up.

Now the Turkey Ridge site. Away out on the edge of Town, very distant from Precincts 1, 2, and 6; I haven't heard from one person who favors it.

Even if it should fail to get a two-thirds vote at Town Meeting, and allowing for the emasculation of the referendum which has been perpetrated, it should be put on a referendum, I don't think it would pass.

There are too many young couples in town, trying hard to keep up payments on taxes and mortgages, who will not vote to build a 5 to 7 million dollar school to which the pupils of only one precinct can reach without hurrying to board busses.

Sincerely,
Elizabeth C. McDonald

What Is The Answer?

Editor of the Star:

Recently, we had a boy to do some cleaning up around our grounds. When he finished, he had filled four rubbish barrels with junk, most of which was beer bottles, beer cans, and broken liquor bottles.

One time I saw a car with four boys in it, (the light went on when the door was opened), stop across the street to dump a large bag of bottles. Perhaps that has influenced my conclusion that the cans and bottles are evidence that youngsters who are not allowed to drink at home, are doing it in cars and dumping the evidence. I cannot think of any reason why adults would be bringing their empties to our corner.

If my conclusion is correct, this is an exceedingly serious problem for which some one should find an answer. Personally, I feel young ones would be infinitely better off, and less of a community hazard, having a beer at home under supervision. Parents who do not approve of that, perhaps should be doing more checking on what their offspring do when they are out driving around.

What is the answer?

Sincerely,
Annabelle N. Morse

WHS Senior Speaks out On New High School

Editor of the Star:

As a senior at Winchester High School I am very concerned with the problem of our school facilities. Last Monday night, May 24, a Town Meeting was held to determine which plan the town should adopt for the enlargement of senior and junior high school facilities. It is a well-known fact that he present facilities are inadequate for the number of students now attending our secondary schools, A new high school is definitely needed to maintain, insure, and strengthen the quality of the public school system of Winchester.

The construction of a new high school on the Turkey Ridge site is the only solution to the problem. Five other plans have been submitted, with various alterations to the original plans, but none of them will help the education of the children of our town as much as the New High School Plan.

Five major arguments were presented against the Turkey Ridge site Monday evening. Of the five arguments, not one seemed plausible to me, as well as to many others. One argument was based on the traffic problem that would be caused by the transportation of students to an area far out on the West Side. Many cars and buses would be needed to help the students arrive to school on time, and almost eighty per cent of these cars and buses would have to cross Route 3 at the peak of morning traffic. Yet all the students living on the west side of Cambridge Street cross it now without any problems. This argument has little merit and should not be considered.

The distance to the new school site from many parts of the town is also a major argument. One member of the Town Meeting stated that from one point in the town the round trip distance to the Turkey Ridge site is over nine miles. The solution to this problem is buses. At a cost of $8,000 a year more than the town is already spending, transportation for the students of the new school can be obtained. Parents brag to their children about the nine miles they used to walk to school, one way, but they protest about their children having a fifteen minute bus ride to what could be the best public high school in the state. The distance to the school is another obscure factor.

The cost to the town of the new school and its effect on the tax rate discouraged many Town Meeting Members, but the estimates revealed at the Town Meeting show that the New High School Plan would be the least expensive of the five plans.

Many of us hate to see the high school moved out of the center of town. But what can be done? There are no undeveloped sites anywhere near the center. In the past few years the Ginn Estate, which would have been virtually a gift to the town, and the Beggs and Cobb have been passed by, two mistakes which would have saved the town a lot of time and trouble, The Planning Board suggested the Lake Street - Canal Street Plan which would locate the new high school between Lake and Canal Streets. Fifty-one single houses and eight double houses, as well as the town barns, would have to be demolished. The location is very enviable, but the razing of fifty-nine houses is highly impractical.

The most ridiculous argument brought before the members of the Town Meeting was the loss of profit to the merchants if the fifteen hundred high school students were moved to the outskirts of town. An estimated ten dollars a week per student (?) would be lost business to the merchants, who, in my opinion, would rather see the kids away from their stores every day after school.

Look back over the five major arguments. How can the people say that they will let traffic problems, a fifteen-minute bus ride, or the decentralization of the high school interfere with the education their children should receive? Winchester public schools have a fine reputation and fine teachers, but does the town want to lose this reputation because the children might not like, or rather enjoy, a fifteen-minute bus ride? I hope not. The New High School Plan on the Turkey Ridge site is the only solution to our problem and, for the sake of the town and its reputation, a few stubborn people should not stop the progress of the town in its education facilities.

Respectfully yours,
Paul Douglas Suocek

It Looked Good

Editor of the Star:

Without a doubt every citizen of the town who had occasion to visit Wildwood Cemetery, during the Memorial Day week-end, certainly must agree that a vote of thanks is due Superintendent Harold Moran and his fine crew of courteous, efficient and thoughtful employees for the splendid job they did to make the cemetery a place of beauty.

These conscientious town employees worked untiringly to keep the cemetery up to the high standards of the town.

Sincerely,

School Choices: A Matter Of Coordination?

Editor of the Star:

The sudden suggestion by the Planning Board that a new high school be built in the Lake Street-Main Street area raises a serious question, entirely aside from the merits of the proposal itself. It has been generally known, for at least half a year, that the Permanent Building Committee was considering construction of a new school at Turkey Ridge, among other possibilities. Why was not this new suggestion revealed in time for the same careful evaluation as the other plans received from the Permanent Building Committee?

Certainly the Town deserves better coordination of the work of its Boards and Committees in a matter involving the education of our children and the expenditure of several million dollars.

Very truly yours,
Abraham S. Goldin

Look Ahead

As this article is published, subsequent to Armed Forces Week, Marines are defending far-flung outposts in Viet Nam and in Santo Domingo for the preservation of freedom. Twenty years ago they were smashing the last island stronghold of the Japanese in the Pacific—80,000 of them were fighting for Okinawa in a battle that began on Easter Sunday.

The history of that last conflict of the war in the Pacific is now written. We know the Marines were victorious—just as we know they have always been victorious.

A chain is only as strong as its weakest link, though! In a like manner, the Marine Corps is only as successful as the caliber of men who volunteer, and who meet the rigid prerequisites for enlistment. Can you meet the requirements for service as a United States Marine? To find out, contact your local Marine representatives: Sgt. Porretta or Corporal Hill, at the Post Office Bldg., Union Square, Somerville, or call MO 6-4855.

Democratic Town Committee

Since the Democratic notes appeared in last week's issue of the Star there have been many calls to our chairman to explain further the details of Mass. House Bill 3838.

According to a communication from State Chairman Gerard F. Doherty, this bill was to have been considered by the House on Tuesday, May 25. We have seen no account of such a procedure in the news releases, nor have we heard anything on radio or TV. Therefore, we have decided that the bill was held up by other important matters. We will continue to watch for it, however, and will report any progress which emanates from the State House.

In substance, the bill, designated as "Door to Door Voter Registration," is described as the most effective method of achieving the most complete participation by the greatest number of people in the whole elective process.

Its main provisions are:

1. The chairman of each Town and Ward Committee, of each political party, will in the even numbered years, appoint deputy registrars of voters from lists of enrolled members of the political party.

2. Lists to be submitted by June 1st by the chairman of the Town Committee.

3. Deputy registration officers may visit every building in their respective towns; examine persons relative to their qualifications for voting and they may register any persons they find to be qualified.

4. Deputy registration officers shall be appointed for a term of 2 years.

5. They will be paid by the Town.

6. All appointments of deputy registration officers shall be made no later than July 15th in even numbered years.

7. In the performance of their duties, deputy registrars shall have the powers and be subject to all the obligations and penalties of registrars of voters.

Good Public Relations

SOMEHOW, we had always thought that public relations was a rather mysterious intangible, practiced by huge corporations who had echelons of bright young men on their staffs busy keeping the company "image" bright and shiny. Now, we discover that we have been practicing good public relations for many years simply by treating the people of this community who have sought our service in a fair and impartial manner.

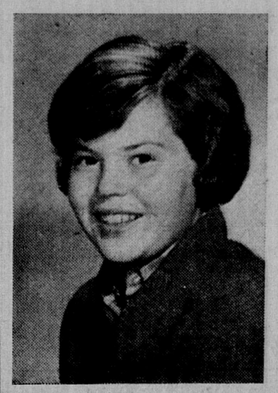
Two Chosen By Legion Aux. For Girls' State

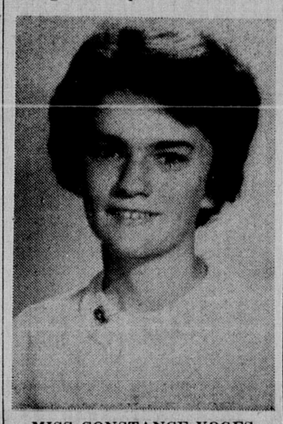
Miss Caroline Root, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Darrell A. Root of 14 Winthrop Street, is the delegate chosen to represent the American Legion Auxiliary, Unit 97, of Winchester at the 21st annual Massachusetts Girls State, to convene at Bridgewater State College, June 11 to 18.



MISS CAROLINE ROOT

Miss Constance Voges, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor E. Voges of 2 Wedge Pond Road, has been chosen alternate in the event Miss Root is unable to attend.

The purpose of Girls State is to bring to the girls of Massachusetts a knowledge of the fundamental principles of American government through actual practice.



MISS CONSTANCE VOGES

They run for various government offices, hold rallies, debates and elections. There is an inaugural ball after elections, and usually the Governor of the state does the honors, unless he has a previous engagement, in which case the Lt. Governor takes over. One day of the week is set aside for a mock trial, when a woman judge of the Superior Court, and possibly two women attorneys preside, while the girls of Girls State take active part in the trial.

Girls State isn't all work, as there is a swimming pool and a physical education director on hand, tennis courts, etc. Also, if the girls are musically inclined, they take along their musical instruments for the get-togethers, and talent night. Caroline or Connie will have the opportunity to meet girls from all over the commonwealth at Girls State, and while there will be competing against them for points that may win her the trip to Girls Nation in Washington for a week at a later date.

Both Caroline and Constance can be proud of their achievements which played a major part in their having been chosen to represent the Winchester unit of the American Legion, because it is a distinct privilege to receive this honor.

Drownproofing, A New Technique For Water Safety; Clinic At Boys Club

Are you and your children insured against drowning? Over 7,000 people drown each year in the United States. Ninety-three per cent of these people could have saved themseives if they had learned a simple, yet revolutionary concept of personal water safety skills called "Drownproofing," developed by Fred Lanoue, swimming coach at Georgia Institute of Technology (Georgia Tech).

Alvin W. Malthear, assistant professor of physical education and head swimming coach at Tufts College, who resides at 189 High Street in Winchester, will conduct a free demonstration and clinic on this new and amazing water safety technique at the Arlington Boys' Club on Wednesday evening, June 9 at 7:30 p.m.

Co-sponsors of the clinic are the Boys' Club of Arlington and the Thompson School P.T.A. Arlington, acting on the initiative and efforts of Gerald J. Lahaie of 168 Mystic Valley Parkway, Arlington. Mr. Lahaie, himself a non-swimmer, was recently introduced to Mr. Lanoue's new book entitled "Drownproofing" and published by Prentice-Hall.

After three one-hour water sessions with Coach Malthaner, Mr. Lahaie found himself able to swim a quarter of a mile and stay afloat a half hour, and more rested at the end of this feat than when he began. Astounded by his own rapid progress Mr. Lahaie began his efforts to bring this wonderful method to the community.

"Most people who drown," points out Coach Malthaner, "do so because for some reason - usually unexpected - they are thrust into water conditions for which they are unprepared.

"Most frequently a boat sinks from under a non-swimmer, or a poor swimmer is stranded by having been swept away from shallow water by currents, fallen into the water or ventured too far from terra firma. The saving factor," he continues, "is not the perfection of the individual's stroke techniques as they are usually considered, i.e., side stroke, crawl, etc. Rather," says Malthaner, quoting Lanoue, with whom he has had considerable personal experience in teaching Drownproofing. "one's ability to control panic, get sufficient air without gaging or choking, conserve energy in order to stay afloat for hours in open water and make reasonable progress through the water when necessary are the factors which will save the life of one who suddenly finds himself or herself in extreme circumstances in the water."

Now no one need fear the water — regardless of age, sex, or physical "shape," or ability to swim. Anyone who can hold his breath for six to ten seconds and put his face under water for that period of time (even if, at first, it is learned in the wash basin!) can be virtually insured against the tragedy of drowning and the fear thereof.

In his book Mr. Lanoue says, "Swimming is merely a method of getting from 'here to there' in the water. But Drownproofing is a set of simple skills and attitude that will keep you alive in deep water—even if cramped, accidentally injured or with heavy clothes on. Once Drownproofed one can stay afloat indefinitely—even in rough and/or fresh water, until you begin starving!"

What about sinkers? Lanoue was one and this actually led to his development of Drownproofing. Poor floaters can also learn to stay afloat indefinitely under any conditions without fatigue.

For covering long distances under extreme circumstances the Drownproof Travel Stroke can be learned, even by "non-swimmers."

Lanoue's method has gained world-wide renown. As the first aquatic director of the U. S. Peace Corps, Lanoue developed the Peace Corps Aquatic Program around Drownproofing. The U. S. Navy has given careful consideration to it and many YMCAs, colleges, prep schools and several public systems are including it in their programs.

In Coach Malthaner's demonstration of Drownproofing at the Boys' Club of Arlington on June 9th he will illustrate, with the assistance of his young daughters, the basic principles of Drownproofing. To dramatize the fact that even with the loss of the use of one's limbs, as in the case of a handicapped person or one injured when falling into the water, it is still possible to stay afloat, one of the girls will be tied hand and foot and yet remain afloat in the deep water during all her father's talk. A younger girl will demonstrate the resting position and the travel stroke.

Later in the program volunteer members of the Boys' Club who are non-swimmers and who Prof. Malthaner has never met will help demonstrate how readily the basic Drownproofing techniques are learned, although he emphasizes that a series of six to twenty-four lessons may be required for a given individual to become completely Drownproofed.

After the demonstration all those who are over 21 years of age and have their own suits and towels with them will be invited to try the several Drownproofing techniques.

Miss Stephanie Null has been chosen as vice-president of the Athletic and Recreation Association at Mount Holyoke College for 1965-1966. Miss Null is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Null of 2 Thornberry Road. A sophomore, she is a graduate of Winchester High School.

TV Personality Visits Parkhurst

Parkhurst School second graders in Mrs. Jeanette Eaton's class received a treat last week.

Present at the rear of the classroom as the children watched their "Bookworm" program on Channel Two's 21-Inch Classroom was Mrs. Louise McNamara, the narrator and associate director of the program.

When she appeared on the screen, the youngsters kept looking back at the visitor and then at the screen as if they couldn't believe their eyes.

The TV program aims at stimulating reading. Before the story of "Andy and the Lion" came on the screen, Mrs. McNamara, or Louise Greep, as she is known professionally, gave a short talk on the use of the public library and the advantages in owning a library card. After the program, Mrs. Eaton asked all Winchester library card holders to raise their hands. Mrs. McNamara was impressed that every child but one boy had a card, and he had just moved to town.

Mrs. Eaton used the reading program to aid in creative writing. Each child in the class had prepared a booklet of "Bookworm Stories," complete with a table of contents, a picture of the young author and a biography, and the stories highlighted with illustrations.

Mrs. McNamara passed back the booklets to all the pupils, identifying the owners by their photos on the first page.

Many of the younsters showed a flair for self-expression. Sarah Burrows, a seven-year-old, had this to say on page 3 about "Happiness:"

"Happiness is just getting out of bed on a sunshiny morning. It is hearing the birds chirping nice little tunes. It is nice when it is spring. Then the flowers blossom.

"Happiness is swishing my feet in the water. Happiness means sitting on a bank and fishing. Happiness is taking care of a baby bird that has fallen out of its nest . . . I like to swing on a windy day and let the wind push me high."

PYRAMID BUILDING by fifth graders was only one of 12 aspects of the elementary school physical education program put on last week at the Lincoln School by the classes of Mrs. Gale Montgomery, supervisor. Mothers' Association member guests also saw grades one to six perform in everything from polkas and ball handling, through marching drills and rope-jumping up to advanced tumbling.

Charlie Whistles And The Fish Come Swimming

"Anybody who says there's no good fishing near here just hasn't looked. Even on a bicycle you can get to some real excellent fishing."

Thus spoke someone who ought to know, Winchester's newly created fishing pro, Charlie Koch, proprietor of the Winchester Sport Shop and former resident.

Most fishermen are happy to sport a fishing license on their jackets; but Charlie now sports in addition a handsome black and orange insignia which reads "Certified Fishing Pro" and which means that he passed an extensive oral test with representatives of the Cortland Line Company in Cortland, New York.

"You can't fake with a fly rod," says Charlie. "You've got to lay it down where it's supposed to be." And, by the same token, he reported that you couldn't get through the pro test without really knowing your stuff.

Teaching fishing is nothing new to Charlie, who once pulled in a 672 pound tuna off Gloucester. Neither is fishing.

Big or little the fish have been fighting off Charlie's attempts to put them on the other end of his line since he was a small boy, heaven knows how many years ago, and used to fish the Charles River with his grandfather.

He has taught surf casting on the Cape and is just as interested in the procedure of going after the trout and salmon all over the north country. He is called upon often to give a boost to a scout troop, as he did just last week with Harry Boodakian's troop which was preparing for a venture up in the Rangeleys. The professional rating is just a gloss. The important thing is that Charlie likes to teach fishing and enjoys even the by-product instruction he gives out at the shop when youngsters come in after anything from a one cent hook to a custom streamer or from a $1.95 rod to a $150 one.

Charlie is just back from a couple of weeks fishing up at Grand Lake Stream in Maine where he goes annually with Dr. E. T. Blanche, Dr. Warren Haley and Louis Holtzer of Methuen, Dr. Blanche's father-in-law. It was the group's eighth trip. And legend has it that when the downstream fish around here get wind that the foursome is making preparations to get on the road a special underwater communication system gets underway by which word is passed upstream along the sandy bottoms and up at Grand Lake a regular alarm goes out under the water waves.

But to return to fishing around here. Within 20 miles, says Charlie you can get fine bass and pickerel fishing. Beginning with the Aberjona you can find them also in Horn Pond, Wedge Pond, the Mystic Lakes, the Ipswich River in North Reading, Vine Brook in Burlington and the Shawsheen River.

What are you waiting for?

Al Falvey, Jr.

Last week the Sachems won the Middlesex League track meet at Melrose defeating the other eight teams in the league. Winchester had 54 points. The only team that was close to the Sachems was Wakefield with 50 points.

Tibor Saddler won the high hurdles with a near-record time of 14.7. George Schiraga won the two-mile; but the big surprise was the showing of Fahey and Lynch, who came in fourth and fifth in this event for the home team. L. Kelly won the javelin with a toss of 185ft., 10in., which was a new record for the event. Another big surprise was the showing of John Doherty and Bob Kuhn. They finished one and two in the discus.

This was certainly a great finish for the track team, with many of the runners showing promise for the future. According to Coach Battino, this was his most gratifying win, something he has always wanted to win, but which has always eluded him. He was one happy man when the Sachems brought him the league title. All he could say was that it was certainly a great victory for the team.

The end of the school sports season is just about at hand, with most sport schedules now completed. Once again the Sachem track team had the best record. Football, baseball and hockey had average years. Coach Battino's track team brought the best single honor to the high school when it won the Middlesex League track meet.

Even though the team finished the season with an 8-2 record, it was the best team in the Middlesex League. They proved it by copping the league meet at Melrose. Saturday the track team finished third in the state meet, with a first place going to Larry Kelly, who broke the javelin record of 174ft, 8½in. made by John Jessick of Norwood in 1961. Larry made a toss of 183ft., 3¾in. George Schiraga ran against one of the best two-milers in the country, Art Dulong of Randolph, who ran the distance in just a shade over 9 minutes. Some day he will run the two-mile in under 9 minutes. George Schiraga holds the record at Winchester High with a 9:53.8.

Coach Battino has many fine prospects for the future. The freshmen won the Middlesex League track meet at Belmont. Jeff Hughes was the only first-place finisher for the frosh as he won the 100-yard dash. He looks like a real speedster. The team had solid second-place finishes, with David Carpenter in the 220, Andy Sklodowski in the 440, John Pirani in the high jump, and John Butler, Dick Sheehy and Danny Mears finishing in a tie pole vaulting. Coach Battino may have some stars in the making at the junior high.

The Sachems finished the baseball season with an 8-6 record. One thing that impressed Bill Colella was the showing of the sophomores. Leading hitter was first-baseman Jeff Schlener with a .420 batting average. Only a sophomore, he should be a very solid ball player for the next two years. Brian Collins with a 3-3 record was the teams best pitcher. He is also a sophomore. Kevin Barry also looked good on the mound, although he had arm trouble late in the season. According to Coach Colella, Barry and Collins will be tough in their junior and senior years. David Blanchard, playing his first full year at short, did a fine job. Too bad he is a senior. Bill Chase, batting leadoff and playing third base, played well. He will be back next year. The 1966 baseball season looks promising for the Sachems. Unlike this year's team, which had to start from scratch, there is a good nucleus of experienced ball players.

Sports Briefs: Yankton College won the Tri-State Conference title in baseball, thanks to the efforts of John Peckham of Winchester. Fireballing, right-hander Peckham pitched five-hit ball and went two-for-three at the plate to pace Yankton to a win in the championship game.

He has been a stalwart on the Yankton pitching staff all season. John will do the pitching for the Wakefield town team this summer.

Dick Radatz has finally begun to pitch the way he should, with five solid games in a row behind him to silence those who were saying he was all washed up.

Golden In looks like the dog of the future at Wonderland. She is a speedy pup and is unbeaten in the Revere course. Last week she set a new course record of 38.81 for the Revere course route. Owner Larry Nave put his ace in the kennel series over the 7/16-mile course. She is a strong finisher and proved it Monday night when she came from last to win the race by a length.

Her 38.81 last week cracked a record which had been set by Canadian Pacific at Revere in 1957.

The kennel series continues this Saturday night with the 5/16ths and 9/16ths events, followed by the half-mile on June 11.

Augie Cennerazzo of Grandma's Teeth rolled both high single and high triple of the night, 147-404. Larry Cullen of the North Enders was second with a 375. Bill Sipp came in third with a 344.

My congratulations Augie for making the 400 Club.

The results of the roll-off finds that Grandma's Teeth are the champs of this 1964-65 year. Congratulations G. T. Sorry North Enders, you put up a good fight. This ends our bowling season. I hope that you all have a nice summer and hope to see you again next year.

Winchester Little League

By Charlie Lucier

AMERICAN LEAGUE

THE CARDINALS
Sponsored by Ruth C. Porter Realtors

The Cardinals have been getting plenty of breaks all season—and all of them have been bad. It is always sad to sing of what might have been and that is the story on the Cards. Manager Jim Stewart sums it up when he says, "Many of our games were so close that they could have fallen either way. They just didn't fall on our side. But that does not mean that the team has given up the battle. We have the second half to go and maybe our Cards will all be trumps."

Coach Otis Jason marvels at the spirit of the team. "These boys keep going with each game showing the same kind of effort that they did when the season began. I expect them to pull a surprise on the rest of the league in the second half."

There is a wealth of baseball ability on the Cardinals and it is surprising that none of the lucky charms have been shining on them. They have a good share of the hitters in the league and their pitching has been fairly good but the runs have been too few for a club like this.

Three catchers show up in the Cards roster. Carl Croft is one of the best in the business and Carl can handle the first base job as well. Dave Swiedler does the same jobs that Carl Croft handles. Dave is a great backstop and can do all of the necessary things around first base. Dave is one of the hot batsmen of the club and was featured in the start of a triple play in one of the Cardinal games. Dave was playing first at the time and he picked up a batted ball, tagged the runner who was about to get going for second, touched the base and then threw to third where Jim Mulcare put it on the man coming in from second base to complete the triple play.

The third catcher is Dave Craven who is improving with each game. Dave is a hard worker who keeps trying all the time and is bound to be an asset to the team.

Dana Peterson is a first baseman who hits the ball with authority. Dana is one of the Cards' better pitchers as well, which makes him a busy guy. Mike Quigley plays second when he is scheduled there and moves into shortstop when he is needed at that post. Mike's bat is always needed and he gets the hits to fulfill the need.

Lou Gentile is one of the men upon whom the Cards depend a great deal. Lou is an all around player who can work an infield job or an outfield position with equal ability. But Lou's main asset to the Cards is his pitching arm. He is one of the best hurlers in the league and his hitting is something to watch also.

Third base is fully covered by insurance in the form of Jim Mulcare. Jim is an outstanding fielder and his work on third has helped to cut down many a potential scorer. Bob Carroll is the remaining infielder. Bob is ready to jump into any of the infield spots and he carries a hard hitting average at the bat.

Center field belongs to Bill Stites. Bill is one of the best defensive men on the club and he bats with the best of them too. Bill Campbell is another good outfielder who is always ready to work hard for the Cardinals. Mark Carlson plays an outfield position when needed and he is also one of the team's staff of pitchers. Mark's name is listed as a hitter as well.

Bill Kane and Dave O'Leary are two additional outfielders who leave no doubt that they are willing and able to cover all of the ground in their territory. Peter Wakefield and Bruce Walz round out the squad as outfielders. Both boys are good glove men and can handle any outfield spot with a high degree of efficiency. Bruce Walz is also one of the Cards' good pitching staff and can do a credible job on the mound when he gets the nod.

The Cards are not ready to fold. Let there be no doubt on that score. A team like this one is bound to make it big and these boys are out to do everything they can to explode in the second half.

THE BADGERS
Sponsored by Mahoney's Rocky Ledge Farm

The Badgers are truly an amazing club. "We were not given an outside chance to win this year," says Manager Loren Keene, "but the boys had other ideas. They have been working like beavers to outdo themselves as Badgers." Coach Dave Gray is willing to go out on a limb for this team. "It would not surprise me to see them ride home in front of the pack," was Dave's prediction.

But probably the inspiration for the club comes from pretty Mrs. Claire Keene, the manager's wife, the team's leading cheerer, the scorekeeper and head of the consolation department for strikeout victims and small on-field hurts. "I am having the time of my life," was Mrs. Keene's comment. "The boys are wonderful and I am really enjoying myself immensely."

Whatever the reason, the Badgers have pushed themselves up to the higher rungs of the league by sheer will power and determination on the field. One of the big guns this season has been Hank Clark, who handles the catching assignment and wields a big bat at the plate. Mark Capobianco can do a whale of a job on first base and also works an outfield post if he is needed there.

Pete Hallisey and Dan Harrington split the second base job between them and both boys give the club strength down the middle. Paul Curran works the hot corner and has a smoking bat at the plate. And Scott Kelley does everything right in shortstop. An infielder like this is plenty of reason for the Badgers to be up with the leaders.

Outfield men are numerous and first class with this team. Dick Falzano and Kevin Kelley work the centerfield spot and Keith Leonard is also available for duty there. Any of these three can switch to other outfield jobs and keep the team at the peak of performance. Larry D'Onofrio, Peter Pirani and Peter Segerstrom can carry the outfield load on their capable shoulders and Ron Wilkinson is ready to hop into the outfield when the lineup has his name listed. Probably no team in the league has better defensive players than these boys and they are all good reasons for the Badgers wins.

Dave Gray and Tony Guarente do the mound duty for the outfit. Both boys are strong in the pitching department, with good control and plenty of speed. Strangely enough these are two of the heavy hitters on the club also.

Watching the Badgers during a game makes it easy to see why they are out to cop the flag this year. These boys keep working as hard as they can to walk away with the winning share and they keep nibbling at the scoreboard in every inning.

THE JAGUARS
Sponsored by Randall's Ice Cream Shop

Manager Charles Miller is proud of his team and rightly so. "The boys have been doing their best to play the game better every week," was Manager Miller's comment, "and I am proud of every one of them. This club is not ready to throw in the towel by any manner of means and will prove it in the games to come."

Working with Charlie is a former Little Leaguer, Ted Sullivan, who is helping where he can to coach the Jaguars to the top of the heap. "This team can do it," he said, "they have the ability and they have the desire to win."

Pitching is one of the Jaguar strong points. Gary Cadigan is the ace of the staff and a real good one at that. Gary also puts in his time at shortstop to good advantage when he is needed there. Chipper Whitman is another moundsman who is showing up well and his control is getting better with each inning pitched. Charlie Harvey rounds out the tossing staff and is proving to be as fast as any moundsman in the league.

Charlie Hill plays a lot of first base for the Jags and can also cavort in right field to advantage. Splitting the first base duties with Charlie is Bill Fowle, whose bat is getting hotter and hotter. Both boys have all the ability that is needed for the job and the managerial staff is well satisfied with their work.

Phil O'Connell has second base tied to his shoe strings. They just don't come any smoother in that position. Wayne Kell and Paul Miller divide the third base job between them. The Jaguars have the cream of the crop in these two boys. All of them are hitters as well as good defensive fielders.

Chris Kinton does most of the shortstop work and a finer player would be hard to discover. With Jim Phillips behind the plate handling the pitchers and working at the plate smashing out long hits, the Jaguars are set as far as infield workers are concerned.

John Fitzgerald usually holds down the center field spot with Bob Cadigan in right and Scott Atkinson in left. This trio is about as fast and sharp as any outfield in the league. Then the Jaguars can come up with Sal Arria in center with Fred Labedz ready to take over either of the other two outfield positions. All of these outfielders are good glove men and nothing gets by them that can be caught.

The Jaguars began slowly but they are starting to move and the sleek way that they work their way up on the opposition means trouble for everybody concerned.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

THE YANKEES
Sponsored by the Rotary Club

The Yankees have been having their troubles thus far this season, but, like their counterparts in the major league, watch out for them once they start to roll. Manager Dave Deshler recognizes all of the problems that go with a first year boss but he is confident that his team can pull out of their slump.

"We have the players and they have the ability to come out on top," Dave explained. "We've been just a shade off form on occasion but this club will begin to jell in any one of the upcoming games. And from that point on they will be in there swinging with both hands."

Yankee coaches, Arky Amico and Bob Wild are sure that things will begin to look up at any moment. "A club like this does not stay down long," they both agreed, "and once they hit their stride there will be no stopping them."

Looking over the Yankee roster it is easy to see why the managerial staff has so much faith in these boys. Dick Maggio is the number one pitcher on this club and a real good one he is. Dick also takes his turn at third base and can do a credible job there too. Ed Fitzgerald is next in line on the mound and Ed hops into the outfield when he is needed there. Ed's bat is one of the club's big guns. These boys have plenty of speed and good throwing accuracy on the mound.

Dick Cantillon is one of the best centerfielders in the busineess when he is playing out there. Dick is a good hitter and Mike is learning the art of smashing the ball with every game.

Steve Deshler can step into shortstop or play second with equal dexterity. One of the hardest hitters on the club, Steve is a valuable man to have around at any time. Gene Freda also plays both second and short and either of these players give the Yankees all the strength they need down the middle of the diamond. Larry Spang is another second baseman who can handle himself well at that spot and Mark Stevenson is ready to take over an infield job anywhere his manager needs him. John Strain is one of the best infield prospects that any team could boast. John is young but he is learning fast and he will be heard from in this league.

Eric Strout usually plays third base and does a whale of a job there. Eric sometimes sits one out when Dick Maggio works the hot corner but they don't come any better than Eric around that side of the field. Catching is no problem for the Yanks as they have Phil Coss and Jim Grenier to do the job well. Jim is a heavy hitter and a real "pro" behind the plate and Phil is practically a double when he dons the mask.

Bruce Hill works right field to perfection and Bob Wolfe plays left field as it should be done. Bob is a slugger and has the hits to prove it. Frank Stitham works any of the outfield posts and is always ready to take over when his name is called.

This team is not asking for any sympathy. All they need is a few breaks to fall in their favor and they will do the rest. They have been known to make the breaks for themselves in the past so it might be well to keep a good eye on them in the future.

THE BEARS
Sponsored by the Winchester Drug Company

"We are fighting hard to get up to the top of the standings, and I think that we have a good chance of making it." That was Vandy French speaking for the Bears. Vandy is handling the team this year and he is more than enthusiastic about the club. "This team is working as hard as they can to improve their playing and I am really proud of the job that they are doing," he said.

All of the catching is handled by Bill Burnham on this club and he does a great job in that position. Bill is about as good a receiver as there is and his hitting is one of the team's bright spots.

Charlie Nurnberger usually works around first base and there is no further need for any worries on that score. Blair Joyce covers second base like a blanket and Brad Gay or Tom Sullivan handle the third base assignment. Dick Phillips is another second baseman that can be called into the game at any time. Tom Holland works in shortstop and all of these boys are great on defense. Any combination of these boys can field an inner circle of top flight players, all of them heavy hitters as well.

The Bears have solved their pitching problems with three good boys. Tom Sullivan is probably the ace of the staff but he is closely followed by Brad Gay and Ed Cataldo. All three pitchers are fast and accurate on the mound.

As to the outfields, Pete Yanulis in left, Carl Ciampo in center and Frank Castiglione in right make up one of the best outfield trios anybody could ask for. Then Art Carr can team up with Kevin Fredette and Gene Leonard for another outfield group that can stand up to the best of them. As if that were not enough, the Bears have Phil Gouzoule to work with Ed Cataldo if the managerial nod goes their way and with boys like these there is no question of power in the Bears lineup.

The warnings are out to the rest of the league right now. If these Bears get close, watch out for that Bear hug for these fellows are not trying to be friendly—they mean business.

Assisted by Mrs. Charles Larkin, the scouts enjoyed a feast of hot dogs, hamburgers, potato salad, potato chips, relishes and delicious homemade desserts made by the mother of the girls.

Games were played, led by Miss Judy Pedersen and Miss Patty Jewell, and towards the end of the evening, Miss Paula Larkin presented Mrs. Goldhammer with a bouquet of flowers as a small token of appreciation from the scouts for her excellent leadership throughout the year.

Mrs. Goldhammer then introduced Mrs. Arthur Rand, the new leader for the 1965-66 season. Mrs. Rand spoke briefly to the girls about plans that have already been formulated for the coming year. With Mrs. Goldhammer assisting Mrs. Rand, it looks like a very exciting and enjoyable year.

The members of the troop are: Dorothy Amoroso, Holly Ardizzone, Sylvia Collier, Ellen Dettinger, Carol Duffy, Janet Duffy, Susan Goldhammer, Carol Gountanis, Karen Hansen, Wendy Irving, Robin Jewell, Paula Larkin, Anne Longo, Patrice Longo, Melanie Mobbs, Joanne Moulton, Joanne Parker, Betsy Rand, Gail Robinson, Elinor Smyly, Karen Suneson.

In regards to this year Mrs. Goldhammer and Mrs. Larkin would sincerely like to thank all the mothers for 100% cooperation. It has been a wonderful year and would not have been possible without the help of the mothers. Have a nice summer, girls and we will see you in the fall.

Troop 524 Plans Into Summer

Boy Scout Troop 524 is making active plans for participation in the Musket District Camporee to be held at the Sheepfold area in the Middlesex Fells Reservation on June 4, 5 and 6.

On June 19, 20 and 21 assistant scoutmasters Donald Thayer and Albert Moulton will conduct a hiking trip on the Presidential Range of the White Mountains for those scouts who have qualified for the trip by participation in troop activities and by advancing in rank.

Troop 524 will also have a week of camping as a troop at Parker Mountain Scout Camp, July 25 to 31, with many scouts planning additional weeks at scout camp in July or August as members of provisional troops. These summer activities will provide excellent opportunities for advancement in the "outdoor" skills, as well as all the other boys' camp benefits.

The Troop, based at the Parkhurst School, had a very successful Court of Honor and Parents' Night on May 5 with scoutmaster William Krupsky assisted by Donald Thayer, assistant scoutmaster, speaking to the parents about the troop program and awarding the second class badge to 16 scouts who have earned that rank.

Also, recently, Scout Albert Thayer has earned and been awarded his Life Scout badge, and several scouts have earned merit badges; Eugene Cancelliere, Camping; Dana Hanson, Camping; Scott Moulton, Camping and Cooking; David Cincotta, Camping and Citizenship in the Home; and Jack Eames, Safety.

Scouts David Cincotta and Albert Thayer have been awarded a week at Parker Mountain Scout Camp this summer by the Robinson Whitten Memorial Campership Committee. This is awarded annually to Winchester scouts whose scout activities and achievements in the previous year have qualified them. These scouts have also been selected by the Troop to attend the Junior Leaders Training Course at Parker Mountain this coming August.

Parents Meet At Washington

"Education is in a state of flux on the one hand, and faced with the problems of an exploding school population on the other," stated Dr. Harry V. Gilson, superintendent of schools, at the final meeting of the Washington School Mothers' Association last Wednesday evening.

As guest speaker, Dr. Gilson touched on a few highlights of education in Winchester, and the changes which have come about over the past few years with such bewildering speed. Many changes are apparent in the school program. Science has become a separate and important subject area. Changes in materials, and in gadgetry are evident; instruction is on the threshold of change—away from the concept of education as we have known it.

Concluding his talk, Dr. Gilson said, "Each civilization dictates its own development. Education must keep pace with the demands of our time. Education is in the race between civilization and disaster."

Mrs. Hugh Ferber, association president, introduced Dr. Gilson at the conclusion of the business meeting, at which time the various board members read their annual reports. Miss Leonor M. Rich, school principal, explained briefly the Washington School budget, to the interest of the mothers. Mrs. David F. Edwards spoke in behalf of the Girl Scouts, stressing the great need for the continued interest and support of the mothers. Mrs. William W. Tunnicliffe, nominating chairman, read the new slate of officers for next year. The meeting was adjourned by the incoming president, Mrs. Robert T. Grainger.

The auditorium was attractively decorated with an art display of the children's work, arranged through the efforts of Mrs. Virginia F. Diegelman and Miss Josephine A. Murray, art supervisors. Flower-bedecked card tables were scattered around the room, at which the mothers enjoyed coffee and small individual fruit-topped cheese cakes, prepared by the room mothers.

School bags—new colors—red or blue waterproof. We also have the dark green color. Be smart and buy one of the new colors. Priced at $1.49 at the Winchester Star.

Channel 2 on Low Income Housing

Pros and cons of recent proposals made by the Massachusetts Commission on Low Housing are debated on Channel 2's "Inside Massachusetts," Wednesday, June 9, at 8 p.m.

Discussing the commission's findings, and the pending legislation which has resulted from this study are Malcolm Peabody, Jr., chairman of the commission; Alan Gartner, executive secretary of Boston CORE (Congress of Racial Equality); Sylvan A. Goodman, president of the Rental Housing Association for the Greater Boston Real Estate Board; and John J. Sirois, executive director of the Lawrence Redevelopment Authority.

Thomas A. Sullivan of the Citizens Advisory Committee on Community Development, will moderate.

Lynch Debaters, Dramatics Club

The public is invited to attend a joint presentation by the Lynch Junior High School dramatics club and the Lynch debating society on Friday, June 4, at 7:30 p.m. in the school cafetorium.

The dramatics group will present "Pyramus and Thisbe" from the Shakespearean play, "A Midsummer Night's Dream." The principals in the play are Glen Johnson as Pyramus, Jan McCarthy as Quince, and Lisa Johns as Thisbe.

The debaters will consider the question "Resolved: That the United States should intervene wherever Communism threatens to take over a nation."

Baccalaureate At Methodist Church

Sunday is the day, observed annually at the Crawford Memorial Methodist Church, to recognize and honor the young people of the church who are being graduated this month from Winchester High School or preparatory schools.

The Reverend H. Newton Clay will preach a baccalaureate sermon on the subject, "Climb Every Mountain."

The Rhythmic Choir, which has been organized within the last year, will take part in the service, interpreting the hymn, "For the Beauty of the Earth." This choir will be wearing new robes that are being presented to the church by the Senior Methodist Youth Fellowship. Its members are: Pamela Woods, Janice Leighton, Sheryl Fletcher, Ruth Morse, Marilyn Haff, Gary Oleson and William Chase.

This year's graduates to be honored are John Ellis, Gail Grinnell, Jean Hutchings, Linda Knight, Edward MacKenzie, Daniel Mellen, Royal Morse, III, Barbra Morton, Eric Natwig, Wendy Newman, Steven Poole, Arthur Stafford, Barry Weeks and Winthrop Knox, III. Mr. Knox is being graduated from Kent's Hill School, a Methodist-related preparatory School in Readfield, Maine.

Scout Camping Programs Boast Variety, Depth

More scouts than ever in the history of the Minuteman Council will attend camp this summer, according to council headquarters. Over 2,000 boys, representing 84 Boy Scout troops from the 19 communities served by the council will attend camp under the leadership of more than two hundred volunteers. Another 700 will attend as provisional campers.

The following Winchester units will be represented this year: Troop 509, James O. Keller, scoutmaster, George Washington School; and Troop 524, William Krupsky, scoutmaster, Parkhurst Parents Association.

Special camping opportunities being offered at the Minuteman Council camp, Parker Mountain, include the Junior Leader Training Camp under the direction of Walter P. Weidman, district executive of the Musket District (Arlington, Stoneham, Winchester, Woburn). This year is designed to train the top boy leaders of individual troops to carry on a year-round program under the guidance of troop leadership.

The Aquatic Camp is designed for older scouts and explorers and includes eight days chock-full of aqua-fun in, on and under the water. William R. Stewart, Jr., of Malden, a student at Tufts University and captain of its swim team, will direct.

In addition to the special opportunities at camp, 27 young men from the council will travel to Philmont Scout Ranch, the world's largest camp, located in Cimarron, New Mexico, for a thrilling 12 days of camping adventure. Wayne Taft of Arlington and Robert Brett of Watertown will be in charge.

Anthony N. Toto of Burlington, assistant scout executive, will serve as director of Parker Mountain Scout Reservation, which is located in Barnstead, N. H.; and Thomas Butterfield of Winchester will be one of his 28 staff members.

What Red Cross Can Mean to You

BLOOD for a family member because you gave a pint through the Massachusetts Regional Blood Program within the past year—

SATISFACTION as a volunteer in working with servicemen or veterans at Chelsea Naval or Bedford V.A. Hospitals—

REASSURANCE acquired in a First Aid course in knowing what to do in an emergency before the doctor comes—

ABILITY to handle the first newborn through taking an Expectant Parents' course—

SECURITY in the water by learning to swim under the experienced guidance of a Red Cross Water Safety instructor—

TRANSPORTATION to a hospital or clinic by a friendly Red Cross driver—

RAPID COMMUNICATION to a son or husband in the service through the efforts of a local volunteer working with the Red Cross Field Director at a military installation—

PLEASURE in filling a Friendship box to be sent to a boy or girl in a disaster area — or making holiday favors for the enjoyment of veterans at the Bedford V. A. Hospital—

These are some of the things that Red Cross can mean to you. Why not find out from your local Red Cross how you can help and be helped. Visit your Red Cross Chapter at 84 Washington Street, between the Public Library and the Town Hall.

ACROSS THE COUNTER

Burglary is the fastest-growing crime in the United States, but it is hard to get the inside story. There's no listing for "Burglars" in the Yellow Pages. And they hold no conventions. Nevertheless, sixty burglars gathered together not long ago in a state prison and gave their "professional" views.

These "experts" were asked what determines the homes they select to burglariz. The unanimous opinion: Carelessness on the part of the homeowners!

One inmate said "despite all the warnings about shutting off deliveries while you're on vacation, many pepole refuse to be warned.

"Don't take my word for it," he adds. "Just drive down nearly any street in town and see if you don't notice several houses with papers piled on the porch, or the milk bottles still full, left out."

The group agreed that a "barking dog often changed their burglary plans. And they advised "dead-bolt" type of locks for outside doors. When leaving your home for the evening, they suggested turning on a living room lamp instead of just an outside light. And they added that you should not hide a key near the door.

But on the theory that "the best offense is a good defense" we offer this suggestion: Good insurance coverage! May we talk to you about it?

It would take several chapters to cover the subject being tackled in today's editorial. Since there is not even unanimity in the Root family, the title should probably be:

'A RADICAL BIFURCATION'

There has been considerable discussion in the club recently about the use of the psychic bid. Steve Root, one of the members who uses it gives us his approach to the problem this week with a few comments at the end from a Root who doesn't psyche.

There are two general types of bridge players,—relaxed and aggressive. The relaxed players bid the cards when it is "their" hand, and let the opponents bid the cards when it is the opponent's hand. The aggressive players bid the cards when it is their hand, but they also strive to obstruct the opponents when it is the opponent's hand. Such well-known obstruction tactics include pre-emptive bidding, weak two bids, weak no trumps, etc. In each case, the aggressive bidder describes his hand quite accurately, but it is the unknown strength of his partner's hand that worries the opponents. Furthermore, the opponents are forced to bid in high, unfamiliar territory, where they may make mistakes or judgment errors.

Psychic bidding, which is essentially saying what you don't have, is another form of obstruction bidding. Of all the forms of obstruction bidding, the relaxed players resent this one the most because they feel that the aggressive players are trying to trick them. This is not true. It is not the main function of the psyche to fool the opposition, because in the large majority of cases, the opposition learns early in the auction that the psyche has occurred. Like other obstructive bids, the function of the psyche is to force the bidding into unfamiliar territory, and to worry the opponents about the strength of partner's hand. Consider the following example.

North is the dealer with no-one vulnerable.

North
♥ Q 6 3 2
♦ 7 4 2
♣ 9 6 5 4

West
♠ K 9 5 2
♥ K 8 4
♦ 10 9 5 3
♣ A 8

East
♠ A J 7 4 3
♥ A 7
♦ K J 6
♣ Q J 2

South
♠ Q 10
♥ J 10 9 5
♦ A Q 8
♣ K 10 7 3

North, 1 Spade; East, Pass; South, 2 Clubs; West, Pass; North, Pass; East, 2 Spades; South, Pass; West, ? ? ?

North has the "classic" psyche hand—terrible. (Note: some people psyche their long suit with a poor hand, not their short one.) East, with his spade length and moderately strong hand, suspects a psyche and passes to await developments. South suspects nothing (unless East's pass is long and anguished) and makes his normal bid. West, also suspecting nothing, passes, North passes, and now the whole table knows that North has psyched and has a poor hand. East now bids his spade suit. (West should not take this as a cue bid in view of East's earlier pass.) South bows out gracefully, and West gets the problem.

Now, looking at all four hands, we can see that four spades, making five, is the normal result, but this is by no means clear to West. For all he knows, East may be keeping the bidding open with ten points in case West has the good hand. West may or may not guess right and bid three spades (East, of course, goes to four); but the psyche has "worked" in that it has forced the bidding into unfamiliar territory and caused the opponents to worry about the South hand. It is this fear of the South hand, which could easily contain 16 points and 4 spades, that makes a direct bid of three spades by East quite risky.

I personally approve of East's initial pass, but I'm sure this is not a unanimous view. In general, a no trump overcall may leave a psyche unexposed, so that it is harder to reach a possible four spade contract, especially if partner has only three spades. A double may cause partner to bid hearts with enthusiasm. Let us consider a few possible bidding sequences with this particular hand:

North, 1 spade; East, 1 no trump; South, Pass; West, 3 no trump (end)

South is almost sure his partner has psyched, so he passes. The final three no trump contract is worth very few match points to East-West, because everybody is in four spades, making more.

North, 1 spade; East, 1 no trump; South, Pass; West, 2 clubs; North, Pass; East 2 spades; South, Pass; West, 4 spades (end)

An auction conducted with the nagging doubt that maybe North didn't psyche after all.

North, 1 spade; East, Double; South, Redouble; West 1 no trump; North, pass; East, 3 spades; South, Pass; West, 4 spades (end)

West, with ten points, is virtually sure that someone psyched, so he shows his ten points with one no trump. East's three spade bid is nice with an open-minded partner, but if it backfires...

North, 1 spade; East, Double; South, Redouble; West, Pass; North, Pass (serenely); East ? ? ?

Mmmm! If North has psyched, a pass equals a top. If North's bid is real, a pass equals a bottom, because East won't come within a yard of setting one spade. A tough guess.

In conclusion, I feel that psychic bidding is in many ways similar to other obstructive bidding. All attempt to give the opponents additional bidding problems at the expense of giving the partnership additional bidding problems. To those, like myself, who feel that bridge is a challenge to one's problem solving ability, obstructive bidding must then be an integral part of the game.

Now for the other side of the coin with Mother Miggs giving her point of view.

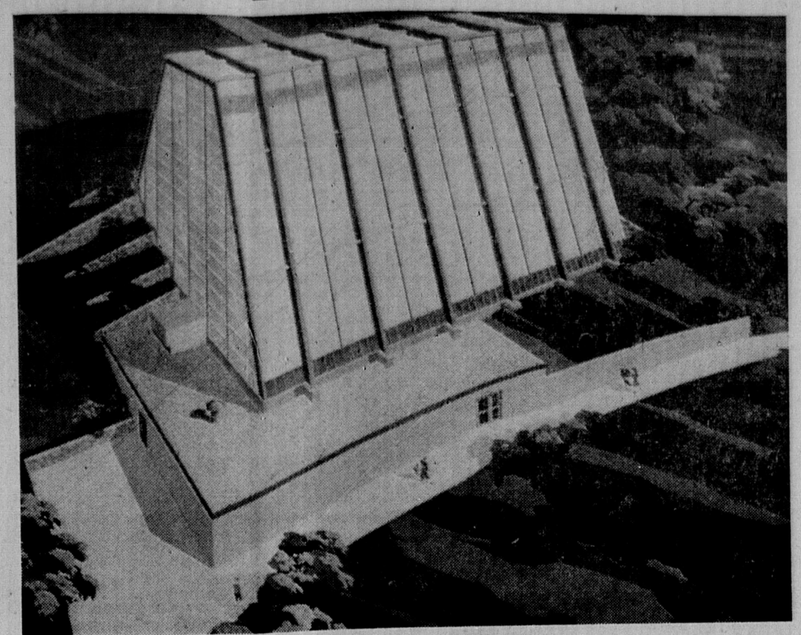
First of all, I do not use psychic bids myself; to do so would run counter to my basic bridge philosophy which is to make life as easy for my partner as possible. In the long run, I believe a partner who trusts you is more valuable than one who is always wondering if you've psyched or not.

In East's shoes in this hand, I would step in with the double, South would redouble, my partner, being sure of my strong hand, can read North for a psyche, and will pass. (Or, if my partner, West, bids, North's pass then may mean a psyche or a minimum opener to South, which inhibits a double from South later.) In this sequence, the psyche has garnered a bottom for North-South. Again, the risking of a bottom for a possible top does not appeal. I feel opportunities for tops present themselves, and it's avoiding the bottoms that brings home the bacon.

Although not sympathetic to the psychic style personally, I would defend vehemently the right of bridge players to psyche. There is plenty of room in the game for all styles of play, and I believe that defending successfully against psyches sharpens one's partnership understanding and develops better bridge players.

Furthermore I enjoy playing with partners who psyche. One of my favorite ones feels the psychic bid gives more flexibility in developing one's own decision in each hand against the more limiting "book" response. He admits, however, that the flexibility can rapidly degenerate into quicksand under unwary footsteps. Observing the psyche in the hands of a skilled bidder can add a new dimension to standard bidding. In short, I learn from good psychic bidders as well as the more orthodox variety.

The New Look



"NOTHING LIKE IT IN THE COUNTRY" is the zoo architect's description of an 80-foot-high aviary with translucent walls planned by the Metropolitan District Commission at Middlesex Fells Zoo in Stoneham, as shown in this artist's conception. The unique bird exhibit, included in premilinary plans for the zoo's third phase, features a scenic waterfall, exotic plantings and an escalator system carrying spectators along a 60-foot slope where colorful birds in flight can be viewed at various levels. The structure will dominate zoo facilities being reconstructed in a $2 million program.

Reading Drive On For Tavern Fund

Parker Tavern Days, the climax of a fund-raising drive for an addition to Reading's oldest building, will be celebrated in Reading this Friday and Saturday. Principal events will be an auction, a band and barber shop concert, an art exhibit, a bake sale, and a parade and drill exhibition.

On Friday evening at 7, on the Library lawn, there will be a concert by the Reading High School Band and singing by the Chordsmen, a local barbershop group.

All day Saturday the Reading Art Association will hold its annual outdoor art exhibit.

At 1 p.m. a parade will start from the Parker Tavern on Washington Street and go to the Reading Common. At the end of the parade three drill companies will give an exhibition.

The auction and bake sale will begin at 2 p.m. in the municipal Parking lot adjacent to the Town Hall.

The reason behind the addition to the 270-year-old Tavern is for the custodian and his family.

At present about $5,000 of the $8,000 necessary for the custodian's ell has been raised.

Want to Pilot A Helicopter?

Enlisted men of the National Guard now have an opportunity for training as helicopter pilots, according to an announcement recently by Major General Richard J. Quigley, commanding general of the 26th (Yankee) Infantry Division.

Qualified enlisted men who have completed their six-months active duty training program may be selected for a 40-week active duty training course at the Army Aviation School, and on successful completion of the intensive course, they will be appointed warrant officers in their home-town National Guard organizations serving as observers and transport pilots during weekend and summer training.

While emphasizing the increasing importance of helicopter operations in National Guard training, General Quigley also pointed out that rotary wing pilots trained at Army schools are also in great demand by many civilian corporations and airlines.

National Guard 6-Month Program May Be Cut

Draft age men should enlist soon in their home town National Guard units in order to fulfill their military obligation through the six-month resreve enlistment program, it was stated today by Maj. Gen. Joseph M. Ambrose, The Adjutant General of Massachusetts.

The greatly stepped up draft calls for April, May and June are expected to fill up Army training centers in the months ahead, with a corresponding decrease in future quotas for six-month trainees.

Noting last week's Pentagon decision to continue the draft for at least two more years, General Ambrose pointed out that National Guardsmen are exempt from induction if they enlist prior to issuance of their induction notices; and that the short initial active duty training required of National Guard enlistees, averaging six months in duration, enables them to continue their employment or higher education while fulfilling their reserve military obligation.

Nearly all units of the Massachusetts Army and Air National Guard are approximately at full strength, according to General Ambrose, with some already closed to enlistments. However, the Adjutant General stated that there are presently several vacancies in National Guard units stationed at New Bedford, Middleboro, Milford, Southbridge, Hingham, Fitchburg, Leominster, Pittsfield, Wakefield, Charlestown, Boston's Commonwealth Armory, and the Missile Battalion headquarters at Natick Supply Depot.

Troop 505 Camps Out Overnight

The fifth and sixth grade members of Junior Girl Scout Troop 505 enjoyed an overnight camping experience at Camp Joy on May 15th.

Mrs. Emmons Ellis, troop leader, was assisted by Mrs. Roy Goodfellow, Mrs. Calvin P. Allyn and Mrs. Joseph Cavallo.

The scouts arrived at Camp Joy in time for a picnic lunch by Cranberry pool. After lunch they went on a nature hike. At supper time the girls cooked their own spaghetti dinners outdoors, and in the evening they participated in a Scouts Own Ceremony presenting songs, skits, and poems about girl scouting all over the world. After the ceremony the girls bedded down for the night in the Girl Scout Cabin.

Sunday morning the campers prepared their own breakfasts of bacon, scrambled eggs, cereal, jelly donuts, juice and milk. After this hearty repast the scouts "broke camp."

Graduations: A Note on Stories

Graduation stories are coming into the Star in increasing volume these days. Its editors look forward to printing every possible one, as a diploma is cause to pride for the whole town, not just the families of the students.

The very volume, however, makes it impossible to contact families in most instances, and the Star must rely on information sent in from schools and colleges. This makes for inequitable treatment in most cases: i.e., Jane Jones graduating from Gadzook College gets a photo and quite a write-up, whereas Joe Jones, getting his degree from Omala University, gets just a line (and it is often the largest and best-known colleges which send in the least).

Another problem is that whereas on Jane Jones a photo has come in, on Sally Smith, aslo graduating from Gadzook, none has arrived. As often as not this accrues from the fact that the student didn't bother to answer the request of the college public relations offices, but sometimes the colleges are at fault. In either case the Star usually prints those it has received, albeit incomplete in number.

Especially relative to a large university at a distance it is natural for a parent to presume that his son or daughter is the only Winchester student there if he personally knows of no other. Yet many people move here in a year, and it it very possible that Sally Smith, about to get her A.B. at Omala University, doesn't know another student from her home town who is a graduate at an Omala graduate school removed from her campus. This situation, which has happened in the past, is the thing that has led the Star to wait a while and give the school administration a chance to get its story in before resorting to using a story from the family.

The Star will do its best and asks the patience and indulgence of the town's proud parents.

MMM Lawn Party This Saturday

Opening at 9 a.m. the annual Lawn Party and sale to benefit the Medical Missionaries of Mary will be held on the lovely convent grounds, 1 Arlington Street, this Saturday, June 5.

Guests will be welcomed to the spacious grounds opposite the Country Club by the Superior, Mother M. Helena, M.M.M., native of Tipperary and veteran of many years' mission work in Tanzania, and by Sister M. Marcella Duffy, M.M.M., M.D., doctor in charge of leprosy work in Abakaliki, East Nigeria. Dr. Duffy, who has visited many medical centers in the U. S. A., returns shortly after the party to Ireland, where she will join Sister M. Andre Brow, of Braintree, and Sister M. de la Salette, of Meath, on their return to their mission posts in Nigeria.

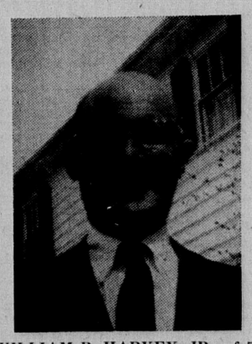
Hundreds of the supporters of the leprosy settlement in Nigeria from all over Massachusetts will greet Sister Marcella and discuss the changing needs of the Occupational Therapy Center in Abakaliki. This center, built and operated by Sister Anne Marie, M.M.M., O.T.R., of Lynn, is now being modernized, since electrical power has for the first time been installed. Power equipment donated by various groups and individuals in Eastern Massachusetts is now on its way to this rehabilitation project for thousands of leprosy patients in Eastern Nigeria.

Pottery kilns, welding equipment, printing press and accessories will provide every modern facility for the patients to train in useful and essential jobs when they return to their normal life in the emerging world of modern Africa.

Sister Doctor Duffy, who has worked several years in the area and is completely familiar with both medical and retraining projects at the Abakaliki Center, will carry with her complete installation instructions to guide the sisters in setting up their newer facilities.

Funds donated by supporters of this work, and funds received from the M.M.M. lawn party, are the chief sources of support for this and many similar works, which the sisters conduct for all patients, regardless of race, color or creed. Today, after 28 years in operation, there are 28 mission stations stretched across Africa, and one maternity hospital in Formosa. Among the local sisters whose labors will benefit are: Sister M. Denise Donovan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Donovan of Arlington, who will be in charge of the cake department; and Sister M. Paula Smith of Medford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Smith. Patrons of the lawn party and in charge of booths are Mr. and Mrs. John Urban, and Mr. John Urban, Jr., family of Sister M. Julie, present secretary general of the Medical Missionaries of Mary, stationed at the Motherhouse in Ireland.

Among the many Winchester friends and supporters of the lawn party are: Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Collins, and Mr. Paul Collins; the Misses Sylvester; Mrs. Kathleen Stewart; and Mr. Francis Hurley, Mr. Patrick Doherty, of the men's committee. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kenny of Somerville, parents of Sister M. Bernadette, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Delery of Medford will be supervising various sections of the booths for the sisters.



WILLIAM B. HARVEY, JR., of 55 Yale Street, is one of 60 teachers of Spanish chosen from nearly 460 applicants throughout the United States who will participate in the National Defense Education Act Institute for Secondary School Teachers of Spanish, June 14 through August 14. The first two weeks will be spent on the Wichita State University campus, Wichita, Kansas, and the remaining seven weeks in Puebla, Mexico.

Fruit and Flower Mission Invites Participation

Tuesday, June 8th, will be the start of the annual Fruit and Flower Mission in which all the churches in town join.

The mission was started in 1869 by a Milton teacher who interested her suburban friends in sharing the beauty of their gardens with the sick and elderly of Boston Settlement Houses. Since that time, practically every surrounding town has taken part in this kindly gesture to cheer the old, the sick and the lonely. Winchester has been part of this pleasant custom since the early 1900's.

If you would like to take part in this pleasant custom, please bring your contribution, especially, right now, fresh fruit, flowers and plants, to the Winchester train station any or every Tuesday from June 8 through September 28 at 8 p.m. There volunteers from all the churches will pack the items to go on the 9 a.m. train. Any contribution no matter how small, is very welcome. Come join with us in making this a bountiful summer for those less fortunate.

Special thanks go to Forester's Flowers and Renton's Market for their invaluable cooperation in this program.

Chairmen for this year are as follows: overall chairman, Mrs. A. S. Goldin, Unitarian; asst. chairman, Mrs. Herbert Rondeau; Baptist, Mrs. V. Errico; Christian Science, Mrs. Herbert Preble; St. Mary's, Mrs. Thomas Kuhn; First Congregational, Mrs. Howard Irwin; Epiphany, Mrs. William Hopkins; Second Congregational, Miss Laura Tolman, Mrs. Rony Snyder, and Methodist, Mrs. Harold Bergquist.

Rear Admiral McCormick Leads Naval Task Group Recovering Gemini Craft

One Winchester resident was a lot closer to the end of the thrilling four day Gemini space flight than the nearest TV or radio set at drop-down time Monday afternoon.

REAR ADMIRAL WILLIAM M. McCORMICK

Bobbing in Atlantic waters east of the Bahamas and steaming westward to the prime splash-down target area aboard a naval vessel participating in the effort to recover the historic space vehicle and its two astronauts, Rear Admiral William M. McCormick of 26 Lakeview Road, commander of the primary recovery fleet in the Western Atlantic, ordered a final check of his equipment and scanned the skies for signs of the returning space capsule.

Leading the U.S. Navy's recovery unit Adm. McCormick, commander of Carrier Division 14, which is embarked on the U.S.S. Wasp was on board the flagship of the recovery task group about 50 miles from the spot where the space craft landed shortly after 1 p.m.

Helicopters from the Wasp were hovering over the bobbing spacecraft within minutes after the astronauts landed.

A little over a half hour later the astronauts were airborne for the quick trip to the Wasp and a wild and cheering welcome by sailors on the deck of the Boston-based aircraft carrier.

Another hour an a half and the Gemini capsule was recovered by the Wasp.

Adm. McCormick welcomed the space pilots aboard the Wasp and invited them to dinner. He was reported to comment: "They said very little except that they were dammed glad to be aboard. They're remarkable young men and it's a marvelous historical achievement, a fine professional performance."

Telephone Office Picketed Here By A Striking Union

Eight telephone company workers at the Winchester central office of the New England Telephone Company returned to work early Wednesday morning after staying out of work and picketing the Main and Hemingway Street facility as part of a two-day New England-wide strike of some 12,000 International Brotherhood of Telephone Workers union members.

"The pickets in Winchester were quiet and peaceful, and there were no incidents of any kind reported," said Emile Coulon, local Telephone Company manager, on Tuesday afternoon.

Management and office personnel were not involved in the strike, Mr. Coulon noted, and added that they were attempting to maintain complete customer service as far as was humanly possible under the condition.

The strikers, mostly repairmen, maintenance and installation men, and linemen and testmen, went on strike in protest against the telephone company's suspension of a union official.

Pickets appeared at 6 a.m. on Monday morning at the local central office and Main and Hemingway Streets, and continued with four or five men participating at any given time until Wednesday morning.

Lockers Ransacked, Money Is Stolen In Local Country Club Theft On Saturday

Several Winchester Country Club lockers were ransacked and about $390 in cash was taken in a Saturday afternoon theft at the local private club on Cambridge Street at the Arlington town line.

According to Police Officers Henry Cogan, Jr., and Albert Duffy, currently investigating the larceny, a lone young man was seen to enter the clubhouse through the pro-shop near the golf course at about 2:30 on Saturday afternoon, walk through the back locker room, the beverage counter area, and upstairs to a second locker room area before leaving. The three persons who saw the young man assumed by his dress and apparent knowledge of his way around the club that he was someone's guest, but police are seeking his identity for questioning on the incident.

Reported missing in the theft was $390 in cash from four upstairs and three downstairs lockers at the Country Club. No other valuables were reported missing to police.

Town Rejects Turkey Ridge WHS Site; Votes To Obtain A 'Center' Solution

Proposed WHS Site: Wrong Investment?

BUILDING COMMITTEE SAID TURKEY RIDGE IS BEST AVAILABLE OPEN SITE

MODERATOR CHADWICK

". . . The town will feel it is better served by a clear cut vote on this proposal—this site, either accept it or reject it."

The proposed Turkey Ridge site on the west side of town for a new modern high school fell to defeat last Thursday night as the special Town Meeting—while voting in favor of it by a 91-89 three vote plurality—lacked the necessary two-thirds majority for land taking and bond borrowing approval.

The Town Meeting instead voted to appropriate $20,000 for the Permanent Building Committee to investigate other sites more centrally located and accessible, and return with another recommendation and plans at a later date.

The meeting was long and tense, developed dramatically and politically, and saw frequent clashes between individuals, committees and groups. Tragically, near the end, Mr. Dana J. Kelly, a former School Committee chairman who had taken the rostrum to speak out against the taking of any homes, such as at the Mystic Avenue area where he lived, collapsed while returning to his seat and died shortly thereafter.

Many observers at the meeting, and some not there, later commented on their "relief" and "joy" that the Turkey Ridge site was not accepted as the solution to the town's secondary school problem: it seemed almost like a personal thing to some people; and it appeared as though they just could not comprehend having a high school inconveniently way up on the west side far away from the center of town.

Other observers at the historic decision-making meeting commented "fatalistically" and "depressively" on the view that here Winchester was following its old course of not accepting good advice but seeking a cheaper and easy way out of the problem: it seemed almost like they were trying to fight a battle of principal, and it appeared as though they just could not comprehend the defeat of this clearly correct and wise proposal.

The second session of the special Town Meeting was opened with a prayer offered by the Rev. Frank MacFarlane, chaplain of Marycliff Academy.

Town Moderator Harrison Chadwick then read the motion before the meeting, explaining that the appropriating of $10,000 from tax revenue and $190,000 by municipal bond borrowing for the acquisition and preparing of land for a secondary school on Turkey Ridge was involved, and that a two-thirds majority vote was necessary for passage of the article.

ASKS DECISION

"It is my personal belief that the town will feel it is better served by a clear cut vote on this proposal—this site, either accept it or reject it," Moderator Chadwick observed and urged as he started the meeting.

BUILDING COMMITTEE

Arthur Schmidt, chairman of the Permanent Building Committee, said he hoped Thursday would be a night of decision, for "The PBC has brought to you what is in its judgment the best solution — the realistic conclusion to the space problem at the secondary school level: to build a new high school on Turkey Ridge."

The criteria he said he thought the issue should be judged by providing enough of the right kind of space that would result in the best type of educational environment, that would leave at a minimum the number of building projects to be undertaken by the town at this time and that would not disrupt the present WHS during the school year.

"I think the Town Meeting has decided that the town needs a new high school," Mr. Schmidt calculated, saying that this left the site as the unanswered question. "The human cost (referring to homeland takings) as well as monetary cost," he said, "dictates that the town use undeveloped land."

"Everyone is aware of the seriousness of the choice before you tonight," the chairman of the PBC said, "but the majority of the committee believes a new high school on Turkey Ridge is best for the town."

Mr. Schmidt then read the names of the ten members of the PBC and listed their occupations to show their qualifications as advisors to the recommendation before the meeting.

"You may bemoan the lack of sites now that were previously years ago available to you," Mr. Schmidt warned. "We cannot undo history—but we can learn from it. Let us build for the coming 50 years, and not just for the coming five!" he concluded.

PLANNING BOARD

Joseph Gray, chairman of the Planning Board, said the board was firmly opposed to building a new high school on the Turkey Ridge site because it would create traffic problems and the only streets leading to it are a few steep hill roads, because they did not feel a basic town facility should be taken out of the center area away from the central location, and because they feared commercial pressures for mobile and eventually permanent "hot dog stands with paper cups and the smells and looks of litter spread in a residential area."

FINANCE COMMITTEE

Charles Doucette, chairman of the Finance Committee, said his committee recommended — though not unanimously—approval of the PBC proposal for a new high school on Turkey Ridge because of all the alternatives, and bearing in mind the estimated cost differentials, it was "the one that would best serve the community. This proposal will provide the best answer for the education of the town's youth in the future," he concluded.

LIKE MARK TWAIN

Between 1949 and 1961 there were no less than eight school buildings or additions constructed in this town, Earl Littleton, a member of the Planning Board, told the meeting. "The reason is that the School Committee has never faced up to its responsibility for planning ahead adequately," he charged.

"It's like what Mark Twain said about the weather," Mr. Littleton admonished—admitting that he was a member of the School Committee from about 1952 to 1958—for "they talked about it but never did anything about it."

"The Planning Board is still waiting to hear from the School Committee on what the complete school facilities needed by the town at full capacity development will be," Mr. Littleton noted. "I give you this information," he added, "because the Planning Board has been criticized again and again for not working with other groups — and here the Planning Board has not received any information or help from the School Committee.

"Furthermore, I dislike the scare tactics used by members of one woman's group that have telephoned people and told them if they didn't get the new high school on Turkey Ridge their children would get an inferior education," he said.

A petition was circulated around town, Mr. Littleton pointed out. "But," he said, "the question isn't how many persons signed the petition; it's how many didn't sign the petition."

"I think it is about time the School Committee got up and told us what the complete school building program is going to be," Mr. Littleton urged.

"We're not really talking only about a $5 million high school project here," Mr. Littleton said, "we're also concerned with about a total of an $11 million program that includes the replacing and building of new elementary schools as well."

Mr. Littleton questioned whether the School Committee's plan to use McCall for fifth and sixth elementary grades was a good plan for Winchester because it represented a sharp deviation from the neighborhood school concept practiced here.

Mr. Littleton then asked what the PBC approach to the high school location problem had been. "They didn't get far in getting MDC land; we know what happened with the Beggs & Cobb land, but did they refuse to consider the Tufts Road site?" he asked.

He suggested it might be possible to put a new high school on town-owned Tufts Road property, and relocate the new elementary school planned to the other end of Swanton Street.

"The real problem here is whether we build remotely or centrally," Mr. Littleton said. "And don't call the Lake Street proposal of last week poor planning," he said. "It's good plannning," he stressed, saying, "if you don't like the plan that's something else again, but as far as planning is concerned it's good planning."

"But I would like you to consider that we use the facilities we have here in the center," he said. He proposed that the town retire the old junior high school part of the high school and build a new high school area onto it by going up Main Street to Mystic Avenue. This would mean, he interpreted, taking about 18 homes to get an area of 6.3 acres with a total valuation of $261,000 (against a possible future valuation of over $1 million on house lots in the Turkey Ridge area).

By taking the existing facility and expanding it, Mr. Littleton proposed, the students would be kept near the presently enlarging Library, would have better police and fire department protection, and would be nearer doctors in the center.

"While the Planning Board does not have the funds to do the engineering and estimating work the the PBC did on its proposal; "I estimate this plan could save you $2 million over the proposed Turkey Ridge plan!" Mr. Littleton said.

Mr. Littleton's address to the Town Meeting was followed by a lot of applause by the audience.

BUSSING

Lawrence Beckley, a member of the school committee, showed a slide illustrating how bussing of students to and from schools is now accomplished in Winchester; and another showing how bussing would be handled if the Turkey Ridge proposal were passed.

"UNANIMITY"

Clarence S. Borggaard said his mail from constituents was 3 to 1 in favor of the Turkey Ridge site for a high school—"but this unanimity worries me; unanimity means of one mind," he said, implying the mail was not entirely indicative of originally motivated pen in every case.

He recommended the town take about 200 feet of land along Main Street. If there is 200 feet of land to a side of an acre, he said, and if you build two stories high, then there would be two acres of new classrooms. He suggested the town take Turkey Ridge for a junior high school instead of a high school.

The bussing problem annoyed Mr. Borggaard, and he didn't mince words in saying so. "I can picture a long line of students walking single file—like a file of Indians—going up Johnson Road," he said, "and that worries me."

"I think Winchester can afford the best schools money can buy," he affirmed, "but if you spend all your money for gum you don't get to the rock candy." "So you can't equate new schools necessarily with good schooling," he added, "for the quality of education depends more on good teachers and educational standards than on a good looking new building."

NOT IMPRESSED

Gardner Bradlee said he was disturbed at the way the meeting was turning out. "I am not much impressed with a Planning Board that comes up with all kinds of plans in the last two weeks of a two year long developing proposal. They should have been thinking about it a long time ago," he said. Mr. Bradlee said he felt the Town Meeting would be better advised to follow the recommendations of a good committee that had studied and worked on the problem for two years.

SPACE PROGRAMMING

"While the tax rate dollar cost effect may be low," David Wardwell warned, "the inconveniences of having a new high school at Turkey Ridge is great!"

The basic problem is overcrowded school space, he said, and maybe this could be corrected by reprogramming the present uses of classroom space. For example, he noted, English is on the first floor now, languages on the second, and math and sciences on the third for all grades. It would appear more sound and might relieve corridor and stairway congestion, he said, to have most of the senior courses on one floor, most of the juniors on another, etc.

MOUNTAIN & PLATEAU

"I can picture children walking up that mountain to get to that plateau," commented Eugene B.

School Administrator Desjarlais Leaves To Take Littleton Post

The Winchester School Committee at a meeting on Monday evening, June 7, accepted with regret the resignation of Richard E. Desjarlais, assistant superintendent for administration services of the Winchester Public Schools.

Mr. Desjarlais will leave Winchester sometime early in August to assume the post of superintendent of schools in Littleton.

Through his efforts as the first incumbent elected to the position of assistant superintendent in Winchester, the summer school program was expanded both in variety of course offerings and in the extension of grade levels. Since his arrival in 1959, the summer school

Twenty-one members of the Winchester High School class of 1915 got together Saturday night for a Golden Anniversary Reunion at the Country Club and nearly 25 more of the class were there in spirit via letter and telegram.

The members came from as far away as St. Louis, Missouri and were heard from all across the country.

Following a social hour and dinner, a poem, especially written for the occasion by class poet Bertha Kelly Blanchard, was read by class valedictorian, Virginia Mossman Stearns. Each member of the class was then presented with a handsome souvenir, the gift of John S. Higgins, consisting of a black metal shoehorn with braided red tassel and with each individual's initials and the dates, 1915-1965, stamped in silver on the handle.

THE LONG, HAPPY, SENIOR LINE MARCHES TO GRADUATION SUNDAY

A warm sun and a blue sky ushered in the 115th Graduation Exercises of Winchester High School on Sunday afternoon, June 6.

Relatives and friends numbering 3,000 and clad in gay, summer attire provided a colorful backdrop against the green hillside at Manchester Field.

The class of 340 graduates, termed the largest and one of the best by Principal W. Howard Niblock, marched into the field to the strains of "Pomp and Circumstance" performed by the high school band under the direction of Frederick J. Murray of the music department. It was a long blue line of academically capped and gowned young adults that took their places before the waiting audience.

Before the entrance of the Class of 1965, the band offered a musical prelude of highlights from "My Fair Lady." Later in the program, it played "God of Our Fathers" by Warren.

In offering the invocation, the Rev. James R. Scroggs of the Second Congregational Church mentioned the "faithful parents and dedicated teachers" of the young people. He defined graduation not only as an ending but also a beginning and directed the students to seek divine help "to a new and fuller life."

John Stavros, class president, welcomed the guests and expressed the feelings of his classmates as they completed 12 years of education.

Addressing the graduates and relatives and friends, Mr. Niblock praised the class for its achievements despite the crowded conditions of the school. Of the group, 80 to 90 per cent are going on to further schooling. The class has been impressive, he said, in its awareness of social problems and its involvement in them. "These seniors have demonstrated that selfishness is not the answer," he stated.

In speaking of education in Winchester, the principal reiterated his belief that "a school is people, and surely it is. Bricks and mortar don't make a school, and surely

Dana J. Kelly

Dana John Kelly who died here suddenly last Thursday night had moved here from Malden at the age of nine and had lived here since. The husband of Louise G. (Welsh) Kelly and a resident at 21 Mystic Avenue, Mr. Kelly was 59 years of age at the time of death.

DANA J. KELLY

Although suffering from a heart ailment in recent years, his death was sudden and a great shock to his family and to the community. Mr. Kelly, a former School Committee member and chairman, had attended the special Town Meeting in order to speak in favor of constructing a new school on the proposed West Side site and against proposals involving land takings in the center. After a short presentation from the front of the hall, he was proceeding up the right aisle when he collapsed. Attended by physicians and police officers in the lobby of the building, he was moved shortly to the Winchester Hospital where he died very soon after arrival.

Mr. Kelly was active civically and was well known throughout the town.

He was born in Malden on June 2, 1906, the son of Daniel J. and Mary N. (Sullivan) Kelly. After moving here he went through the Winchester schools, then to Phillips Exeter Academy and on to Harvard College and Harvard Law School where he was graduated in 1928 and 1931 respectively.

Mr. Kelly was very active throughout his life both athletically and musically. In WHS he captained the football team of 1922, generally considered one of the best in the school's history. At Harvard he was a varsity quaterback and while at law school he assisted in coaching his old high school team. Later he was active in and a member of the board of directors of the Little League and the Babe Ruth League.

The possessor of a fine baritone voice, Mr. Kelly was a regular with the former Winchester Choral Society and also sang with the quartet at St. Mary's Church.

He practiced law in his own offices at 84 State Street and was prominent in Boston legal circles. He had served here as a grand knight of the Winchester Council, Knights of Columbus and was past district deputy of the K. of C. State Council.

A solemn high Mass was celebrated for Mr. Kelly on Monday morning at St. Mary's Church attended by dignitaries of both the community and the state. The funeral was held from the Lane Funeral Home and burial was in Holy Cross Cemetery in Malden.

In addition to his wife, Mr. Kelly leaves two sons, Dana J., Jr. with the Army at Fort Sam Houston in Texas and Lawrence, a junior at Winchester High School; also a daughter, Diane L., a junior at Seton Hill College.

Mrs. Shephard was the widow of the late Lawrence Shephard. She was a graduate of Smith College and was a former concert pianist and also a writer. While residing in Winchester she was a member of the Unitarian Church and was active in the dramatic group there, its Players, as well as being well known through associations with the Parish Players of the Congregational Church and in other organizations.

The Reverend Dr. Robert A. Storer of the Unitarian Church officiated at services for her held on Friday at the Greenwood Cemetery Chapel in Brooklyn, New York.

The funeral was held from the Costello-Moffett Funeral Home and burial was in Holyhood Cemetery in Brookline.

Mary E. Vaugh

A solemn high Mass of requiem was sung yesterday morning at St. Mary's Church for Mary E. Vaugh, who died at the Winchester Hospital on Saturday after a brief illness.

Miss Vaugh was born in Boston 80 years ago, the daughter of William J. and Honora (Coughlan) Vaugh, both natives of Ireland. She had been a resident here at 10 Fairview Terrace for over 32 years and she was well known in town, having retired just five years ago as chief operator for the Winchester Exchange of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company. She was also extremely active in the Medical Missionaries of Mary here and in other Catholic charities, including the Guild of Lady of Ransom, Notre Dame Alumni Jesuit Guild and the Xaverian Guild. He was for 40 years a member of the Woburn Lodge of Elks.

A requiem high Mass was sung in St. Mary's Church for Mr. Caldwell after a funeral from the Lane Funeral Home. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery in Woburn.

Education and Earnings Show Relationships

Usually, the more education one has, the more money he earns. That's the conclusion of a Department of Labor Study appearing in the March issue of the "Monthly Labor Review."

Compiled from 1960 data, the study ranks 321 jobs by earnings. Doctors are at the top with $14,561 in average annual income and newsboys at the bottom with $550.

Jobs covered include professional and managerial, sales and clerical, craftsmen, operatives and laborers, service workers, and farmhands.

The top ten with their average earnings: physician, $14,561.; managers in banking and finance, $12,757.; dentists, $11,858.; professors in medical sciences, $11,666.; lawyers and judges, $10,587.; airplane pilots and navigators, $10,274; osteopaths, $10,128; college presidents and deans, $9.704.; a second category of "managers" in insurance and real estate, $9,410.; and a third category of "managers" principally in manufacturing, $9,090.

The bottom ten on the earnings list include, besides newsboys, ushers, attendants, bootblacks, private household workers, farm laborers, library attendants, kitchen workers, telegraph messengers, messengers and office boys, and counter and fountain workers.

Most professional occupations ranked high and, usually, the better educated, the higher the earnings. Lowest earning professional was the religious worker, who averaged $3,033 per annum.

Among nonprofessionals, the locomotive engineer had the highest earnings, averaging $7,586 yearly.

Steadiest jobs included foremen, managers, postmasters, and firemen.

Shakiest jobs included ushers, brickmasons, cement finishers, roofers, paperhangers, fishermen, carpenter helpers, lumbermen, library attendants, recreation attendants and ushers.

Swimming pools may be constructed of poured concrete, dry pack concrete, pneumatically applied concrete, plastic membranes, reinforced plastic, steel or other materials which shall be capable of withstanding earth pressures when the pool is empty of water. Pool materials must be non-porous and watertight. Hydrostatic pressure will be used as the outward design pressure when concrete or other materials are not deposited directly against undisturbed earth or approved compacted fill. Minimum required reinforcing steel in concrete construction shall be 1/10 of 1 per cent of area cross section, with maximum spacing of 18". All concrete pools shall have a minimum thickness of two inches.

Section 228

All pool construction shall meet the following general requirements.

a. Spring boards are not permitted unless located in an area of the pool which has a water depth of 7 feet or more.

b. Every swimming pool shall be equipped with an approved filter unit, drain, and supply system. The use of plastic pipe is permitted.

c. Suitable provision, acceptable to the Building Commissioner, shall be made for the disposition of water resulting from drainage of a pool, especially when a catch basin or other public drainage facility is not available.

d. An electrical inspection for grounding or reinforcing wire, plumbing, and conduit is required prior to placement of the pool concrete or other material.

e. A fence or other protective enclosure at least 5 feet in height must be installed around all pools. The wall of a building may serve this purpose. Each opening shall have a self-closing door or gate with latching device. All latches shall be located no less than four feet above ground and shall be of the automatic or self-latching type.

f. If intended for use during the hours of darkness, suitable illumination shall be provided which shall be shielded from all adjacent streets and private or public properties.

g. Every pool will be equipped with a permanent ladder or steps which permit access to and exit from the pool water.

Town Meeting

Rotondi. After the laughter died down he mused that maybe it would make for better youth health and better athletes in Winchester, but that he did not think right near the Lexington-Winchester line made a good high school site.

6-3-3; 6-2-4

Mr. Littleton answered a question from a Town Meeting Member, saying the present school system is a six elementary, three junior high, and three high school years arrangement rather than the old six, two, four set up due to building space reasons more than for any academic reason. He said he thought it would be cheaper to build an addition onto the high school and make it a four year high school again.

PROPAGANDA & STATISTICS

"The old propaganda has been very active this week," charged George J. Barbaro in noting the number of letters and telephone calls made in the week between the first and second session.

"But let's look at a few statistics," he said in listing off the number of children born of Winchester parents over the last fifteen years: In 1950 there were 254, in 1951 about 304, and 307, 295, 314, 339, 326, 321, 316, 343, 340, 359, and then 320, 311 and 296 respectively. He pointed to the recent decline in numbers as a "national trend."

THE MAIN ISSUE

"Centrality of location has nothing to do with the educational process," said John M. Harrington, Jr., "and although transportation may seem to be the issue here," it really isn't part of the real issue, he emphasized.

"What is significant here is to build a school that will do the job if we want to have a first class school for our children." The transportation-bussing aspects of the Town Meeting debate were all irrelevancies, he pointed out.

"TAXPAYER" HEWIS

Arthur Hewis, noting that he was only a taxpayer speaking his mind, said the Center was the logical place for the high school to be. "The School Committee doesn't take the citizens of the town into consideration," he said, and called the Turkey Ridge site a "disgusting plan."

He also charged that the chairman of the secondary school building committee was close to violating the conflict of interest law if not actually breaking it. "If it is not a conflict of interest it is damn poor ethics," he shouted at the meeting in an attempt to discredit the committee chairman's arguments for a new high school on Turkey Ridge (in reference to the fact that the firm the chairman is associated with does business with one of the persons owning property in the Parcel 14 site area—but which the chairman told the meeting at the outset).

Mr. Hewis asked the Town Meeting how it could even consider appropriating money for a $5 million high school to be built and not even know what kind of school the School Committee and Building Committee would construct. "And once you put your money down on it," he warned, "you'll be saddled with it."

"Well, let's get saddled with it and get going," interrupted Herbert Lord from the rear of the hall.

CHANGING EDUCATION

Harry V. Gilson superintendent of schools, said the three reasons why it would be wise to move the high school away from the Center were: the traffic congestion in the square, the noise on Main Street, and the safety factor.

"In terms of education and the operation of a high school," said Dr. Gilson, "from personal experience I can tell you that you can get the best education possible by accepting the new school proposed for Turkey Ridge." "It is paramount to make the best and most flexible facility possible for the staff of your high school," he added.

Dr. Gilson pointed to the revolution now sweeping the field of education in the U. S. today, and emphasized that "we cannot anticipate in the future a uniform standard of education—there will be varying sizes of groups in teaching, with constantly changing educational techniques and programs." This is why Winchester will be needing a more flexible educational plant in the future, he said.

AN ABUTTER SPEAKS

"It seems to me we have a tiger by the tail here," said Robert Ericson, an abutter to the Turkey Ridge site. There are some significant factors not yet brought out, he added.

Mr. Ericson showed some slides that illustrated the winding and narrowness of High Street and the lack of sidewalks to accomodate large numbers of walking students.

In another slide Mr. Ericson showed the peat nature of the soil, with what appeared to be a water bog over part of the site, and added, "As you know, we had a relatively dry winter and spring." He indicated that the watershed of about 80 acres there might equal two million gallons of water when gathered at once—and pointed to the fact that Vinson-Owen School across the street had to be closed twice in 1964 due to water seepage problems in the basement.

With an aerial view of the existing high school, he said he thought the Shore Road athletic field could be used for practice and varsity games, thereby leaving Manchester Field land open for building on.

SELECTMEN

"The Board of Selectmen disagrees with the PBC recommendation 3-2," said chairman Edward Hicks, "because we object to the location of the site and feel that there are many drawbacks to the plan."

Mr. Hicks said the Selectmen favored the center area because of the library's presently enlarged facility, and that to remove the plant from the center would be to change the residential character of the West Side, after traffic patterns, create bussing problems, and necessitate improving Johnson Road and High Street earlier than might be needed.

He stated that while he thought the PBC did a good job in researching the project recommended, the estimate figures were off in his opinion because the alternative proposals weren't "equivalencies" in his mind. He noted that the "equivalent figures on the prepared chart included a new junior high school and a 550-pupil elementary school as well as work for the high school alternatives.

Mr. Hicks concluded by affirming his desire to follow the recommendations of Dr. Marshall and his report, based on educational adequacy, economy, and long-range planning.

ADVISORY CITIZENS

Mr. MacDonald, speaking as a member of the Citizens Advisory Committee, "and for the children of Winchester," said that while the attitude of Winchester may be on new school building now, there is now a lack of adequate space in the high school and it is a problem for both teachers and pupils.

"We recommend that there be no delay in increasing the space for secondary school education in Winchester," he said. "This is Winchester's last chance to buy a good new high school," he affirmed.

VOTE ON QUESTION

Mr. Lewis said he thought everyone had made up his mind on how to vote, but a vote on the question failed to pass by a 110-57 standing no vote.

COMPROMISE PLAN

David Larson said he thought there was a need for a new secondary school facility, but that Precinct Four members didn't want the high school on Turkey Ridge, but would prefer a junior high instead of a high school, and suggested joining the McCall and existing high school as an enlarged high school.

COMMITTEE OBJECTS

Austin Broadhurst, chairman of the secondary school building committee, said that while Mr. Larson's plan may sound attractive, the PBC had investigated it and found that any plan to add onto the high school would be going from bad to worse, and that what was really needed was a new high school plant. "This plan does not represent what the PBC feels is the right answer for either the high school or the junior high school problem in Winchester," Mr. Broadhurst concluded.

Fred Stockwell, former Finance Committee chairman, said he too would be very strongly against adding one more brick to this high school—"as I think the educational value of having the high school on Turkey Ridge is greater."

MR. KELLY SPEAKS

The late Dana J. Kelly of 21 Mystic Avenue, former School Committee chairman and prominent local attorney, then addressed the Town Meeting saying he was against the amendment to take any houses for a high school addition that would go up Main Street to Mystic Avenue. "This town has always built its building on available land," Mr. Kelly said, "and now it's thinking of depriving people of their properties; I'm against it."

While walking up the auditorium aisle to return to his seat, Mr. Kelly began to lose his balance and collapsed. A police officer sitting nearby dashed to his side to help, and Drs. Warren Taylor and Sanford Moses also rushed to his aid.

While the stricken man was being carried to the outside lobby for resuscitation while awaiting the ambulance, one Town Meeting member asked for adjournment until 7:45 the following Monday night. Moderator Chadwick said even if the vote were affirmative he would ask everyone to stay in his seat so as not to interfere with rescue efforts outside the hall. The vote to adjourn lost 102-69.

It was later learned that Mr. Kelly died while enroute to the hospital as a result of the stroke he suffered.

On a motion to amend the article for land takings up Main Street, the Town Meeting voted no.

FINAL ATTACK

Mr. Murphy, a Winchester High School graduate, an architect, city planner, and registered engineer, said he thought the town should retain the high school in the center. "The educational requirements and specifications of the School Committee will be met no matter what finally happens," he said, "but the center is best because it is nearest to the center of population, accessible to other facilities including the library, near after-school jobs, reinforces the business district, and reduces the need for car transportation to school.

Mr. Murphy estimated a new high school on Turkey Ridge would end up costing about $7 million, and he noted that the state is about two years behind on some of its reimbursements to towns, and that with the state in its current financial difficulty, the town could end up shouldering the total tab for a new $7 million school.

CRUCIAL VOTE

On a standing vote the Town Meeting, with a 91-89 three-vote plurality favoring the main motion, defeated the article calling for a new high school on Turkey Ridge as recommended by the PBC with less than the required two-thirds of the meeting voting favorably.

$20,000 VOTED

A motion was made to appropriate $20,000 for the PBC to conduct further studies for new high school facilities.

Austin Broadhurst said that $10,000 of the money needed was to have a computer study made to determine the number of sizes of classrooms for Winchester's high school; the second $10,000 for architectural and engineering services for planning to provide what is needed.

"We want to provide the best facility we can for the town," he said, "and we cannot believe the town really wants us to put 1500 high school pupils in a 600-700-pupil-capacity junior high school building"

Mr. Hewis gained the floor and said Turkey Ridge should be left as it is and developed naturally, and continued to make personal references toward Mr. Broadhurst's chairmanship of the PBC committee that recommended the Turkey Ridge site. Mr. Broadhurst rose to a point of order and Mr. Hewis returned to the discussion at hand, ending with the comment, "I only ask . . . " before being interrupted by Herbert Lord, who said, "Period!"

By a vote of 83 to 25 the Town Meeting appropriated the $20,000 for the PBC committee to continue to study and return with new recommendations more centrally located at a later date.

An amendment to restrict the committee to the actual Center was defeated as being too restrictive.

The Town Meeting adjourned at 11:55 p.m.

The High School Decision: More Sound Thought, Planning, Recommendations Needed

With the do-nothing conclusion of last week's special Town Meeting on the secondary school building problem, the entire town seems now to have relaxed back into a state of stupor to await the spell of summer heat and lethargic living.

Fine, but the long-developing and now crucial high school space problem still remains unsolved and uncorrected. An answer must come and action must move ahead to rectify the situation and provide proper educational plant space and facilities for the teaching of our youth. To dally and delay more is to do the wrong thing—nothing but allow a deteriorating condition to become less tolerable and more destructive of the end product—the finest educational system, people and students that we can have.

Let's look at things as they are today.

The town appointed a Permanent Building Committee two years ago to study public construction proposals and make recommendations to the town based on their background experience, knowledge and talent as men whose occupations qualify them as "experts" to judge building matters here. In the PBC's first return to the town, the addition to the Public Library was defeated before coming to a second vote that saw it squeak through to success. The elementary school proposal for the Tufts Road area has partially but for all practical considerations passed its test for approval by the town. But here, in this very crucial fight for a new high school on the Turkey Ridge site, the PBC lost. Its recommendations, while winning a plurality vote, failed to get the necessary two-thirds majority for approval. Why? And where does the PBC go from here?

The PBC lost the high school on Turkey Ridge for a number of reasons, among the more prominent were the fact that the town was not convinced or persuaded that the high school should be taken out of the center, the town was not convinced that a campus-style or even a new modern high school was needed over and above what a simple addition onto the existing high school could achieve, and the town was not ready to accept the many drawbacks of the remote Turkey Ridge site as an integral part of a good or acceptable solution to the problem.

While the need for something to be done about the problem was pretty much present in the minds of the persons representing the town in the voting on the issue; almost no one was ready to say or affirm the Turkey Ridge site was ideal or even suitably good. Indeed, almost anyone asked was ready to say they not only disliked the site, but absolutely thought it was ridiculous or intolerable.

Certainly the PBC knew it had a tough fight on its hands for obtaining a new high school on that site. Nevertheless, the PBC approached the problem, judged that the town would be best advised to construct a new high school and, even with all the drawbacks, to build it on the Turkey Ridge site where there was plenty of room. Certainly the PBC is to be commended for recommending what it thought was the best solution and doing its best to achieve that end; and not just sought an easier solution like building another addition onto the present high school that might have quickly passed.

Now that a new high school on Turkey Ridge is pretty much out of the question, we are plagued with thoughts of history—such as is this not history repeating itself, as when the town did not buy the Ginn Estate when it had the chance for a high school site a little more than a decade ago, and which it should have done. On the other hand, we are equally plagued with the idea that because the Turkey Ridge site was ruled out as a high school site it might be recommended as a future junior high school site—but if all the drawbacks relative to its being a site for a high school are in fact significant, then the site would not be good for a junior high school either.

The general question here now appears to be: where does the town go from here about the problem? If the PBC is a little unsure of its future course as well, then progress will be slower than is desirable.

Town Moderator Harrison Chadwick made a positive suggestion the other day and we concur with the strength of its reasoning and validity of its objective. He said the PBC might now welcome some guidance from the town as to what was really wanted in terms of building and site.

If each precinct were to hold a special caucus of its Town Meeting Members to determine what the feelings were in the six precincts, what answers to major questions could be arrived at there, and to elect a few—say three—representatives to carry the precinct's suggestions on to a joint meeting with, say, the chairman of the School Committee, the PBC, the PBC secondary school subcommittee, the Finance Committee, the Board of Selectmen, and the Planning Board for a "meeting of minds" to determine what course to advance upon.

The reason for such a proposal is obvious. some of the real issues remained undiscussed and unresolved at the special Town Meeting when the time came for voting on the article under consideration.

Here are a few questions that might need more focused discussion and decisions on:

1. Does the town favor building a new senior high school building and turning the present high school back into a junior high; or, does the town favor and prefer to keep the present senior high school as a high school?

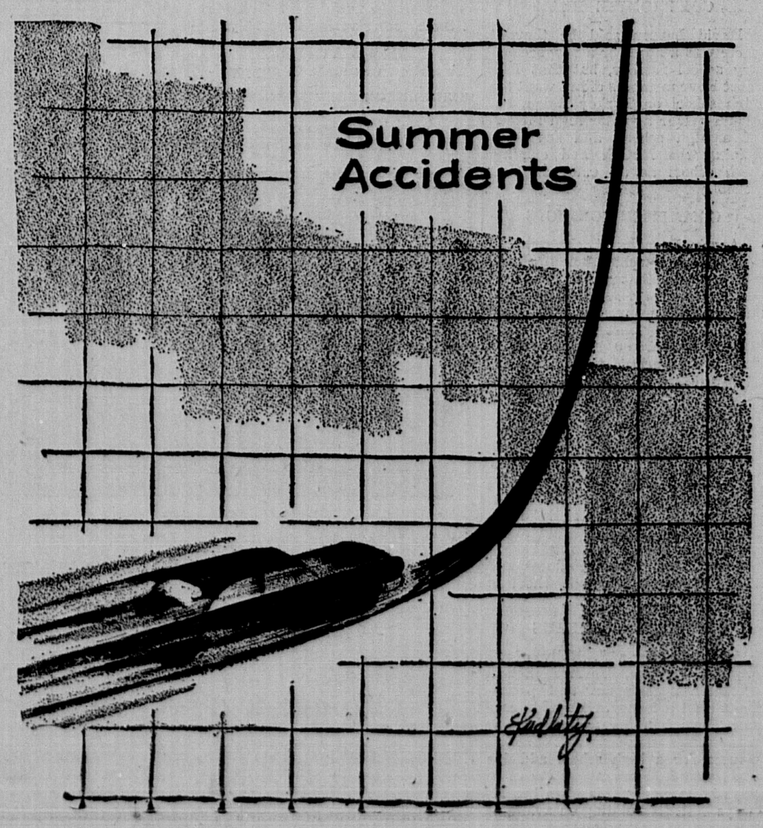
2. Does the town favor building a campus-style modern high school building; and if so, even if it is necessary to close off Main Street and adding to and renovating the present McCall and senior high school, even with a joining addition across Main Street?

3. Does the town favor keeping a new high school near the center even if to do so would mean it would be necessary to go into landtaking?

4. Does the town favor using the Shore Road Field as the senior high school athletic area, and either build an addition onto the present high school over Manchester Field or by building a new high school up near Shore Road Field?

Although the town has said no to a spacious Turkey Ridge high school that might have been designed on a one-level basis, which could have been a little too extravagant even for Winchester, this does not mean that a modern two-story compus-style high school building is out of the question, and indeed, it would seem more advantageous than shovelling a lot of money into a hodgepodge addition onto the existing senior high school building.

Dangerous Hill Ahead



Encroachment On Freedom: Story About Attempts To Censor Mass News Media

In Danger: Freedom From Censorship

BY JAMES L. HOFFARD
COURTESY NEW ENGLAND PRESS ASSOCIATION

American law today operates on the belief that once a publication or work in any form is judged "obscene" then nobody should see it. Underline nobody. This viewpoint holds, of course, for any public medium—if the government censoring authority considers the publication has violated community moral or ethical standards then it is automatically taboo for all.

This applies also to films (to a great extent via scene cutting) and is especially true in any case of work which is sent through the U.S. mails. Indeed, as the expertly researched text, Federal Censorship Obscenity in the Mail by Paul and Schwartz points out, "The typical postal anti-obscenity case today deals with a distributor of nude pictures, borderline "stag" movies or cheap, erotic books. The materials are obscene, Postal lawyers say, because their predominant appeal is to prurience (lustful desires), their dominant effect is libidinous, and they violate the community standard."

"AUTHORITIES"

Very often the Postal or police authorities win out with their attempts to remove such lusty productions from distribution, however temporarily. This was demonstrated recently in Connecticut where the State Police removed from newsstands eight national tabloid papers as obscene under the 1963 Connecticut Obscenity Law. They stayed off for five months. The case went to the Circuit Court, and even though Justice Francis O'Brien did rule that six of them were, in his judgement, obscene, he ruled that their Constitutional rights had been violated. (The papers: Inside News; National Insider; National Star; National Tattler; National Mirror and Confidential Flash.)

Happily, an increasing number of American are growing more sophisticated to this censorship problem as well as to the most effective means to combat it. That is, well educated citizens now realize that while we are being threatened with a high tide of objectionable mass publications (and film productions) there is a greater threat in giving government the power to decide what is allowable. Should government decide what one can publicly produce and what one can privately read or privately view?

Certainly there must be a more acceptable method, however, of protecting the community from smutty journalism or media obscenity than by forcing publications out of circulation while a judge or jury laboriously considers the merits of a censorship case.

"BIG BROTHER"

The dangers of such "big-brother" reasoning should be obvious to all.

In reality, the problem which concerned citizens face is a two-sided one: first, how can we best safeguard our community and families from mass media obscenity without compulsory governmental controls over freedom of expression? Second, how can we raise the standards of both production and appreciation so that there will be no substantial need for public-wide censorship?

Perhaps these two questions can also be stated as goals—as ideal objectives which nevertheless are attainable. In terms of this problem of avoiding governmental censors, it might be easier to consider what method is not effective. Certainly it is generally not effective to ban a publication. Indeed, the "Banned in Boston" label only seems to work in reverse, taking a publication or production which is often of very low merit and projecting it into a public spotlight of intense curiosity and immense saleability. (Witness the huge successes of "God's Little Acre," "Tropic of Cancer," "Fanny Hill," The same process goes on with "Candy.")

THREE ALTERNATIVES

And so the dilemma. What can citizens do to successfully avoid the threat to one's freedom of expression and choice? Primarily, as I see it, there are three workable alternatives:

The first is to better educate in ethics through the family, the churches, the schools. Develop a higher degree of moral awareness so that none may fear the obscene publications or productions as serious threats to high personal or community standards. Community order and personal morality must, after all, depend upon the educated hearts of all citizens - individuals who cannot only identify but appreciate what is true and commendable in life in whatever form of expression. This need for more positive education in morality could also contain, I believe, a more intensive training of the citizen in what represents excellence—a deeper exposure to creative quality. By raising the level of public appreciation and moral sensitivity, the smut-merchants could not thrive for long.

The second step could be to raise standards among the professionals who work in the mass media itself. Let them be volunteer censors or what they feel is worthy of their professions and their communities. Let them take greater care in the creation, the selection and the endorsement of their products to which millions of men and women and children will be exposed. All too often, the public is misled by the product before it.

CUTTING

Murray Schumach in his recent book, "The Face on the Cutting Room Floor" suggests this volunteer approach for film makers. He says, "If Hollywood would take the initiative to act as its own adult self-censor, then it would heed artistic criteria rather than public pressure." (He might have added—"and rather than legislative censorship and court fights.")

A final move which offers hope in promoting freedom and excellence of public expression: stress affirmative individual action. By this I mean, set an example yourself for others to follow. When you see a publication or a film which you consider to be of high artistic value or of high benefit to society, let the producer or publisher or distributor know about it. And let your friends hear of it. For every 1,000 critical letters there is usually only one full of praise.

Are you raising a family? Teach your children that there is nothing sinful or embarrassing or dirty about sex or the human body. Help answer their questions naturally and happily. Let them know that their enjoyment of sex is joined with love and responsibility, but not with obscene publications or pictures which degrade.

CONSCIENCE

In the words of a prominent educator, Dr. Jacob Neusner: "History demonstrates the particality of depending not upon governmentally constituted censors of our morals or our political opinions, but privately instilled self-censors which we may in the end call conscience."

What Is Obscene?

The Problems Of "Offensive" Publications

BY JAMES L. HOFFORD

"Offensive to modesty or decency; lewd; disgusting, filthy, repulsive." This is the definition that one finds in Webster's New World Dictionary for one of the oldest of words and yet the latest agreed upon in the English language, "obscene."

Since the time of the Puritans, local and state legislatures in America have been attempting to "safeguard the public morals" against literature and general publications which have been considered "obscene . . . ," "offensive" or "objectionable."

Public and private pressure groups ad infinitum have exerted highly vocal pressures against those who publish or distribute publications which they, the reviewers, feel would undermine contemporary moral or religious standards. "After all," goes the argument, "you don't want your child's mind corrupted by outright filth, do you?" It is indeed, difficult if not impossible to argue against such a question. Certainly no one wants to see another corrupted by filth in whatever form.

But. BUT. There always seems to be a but, and here it must be repeated. But who is it who shall determine what publication or what creative effort is in fact, an item of "filth," "lewd," "disgusting," "repulsive?" You? I? A religious group perhaps. But which . . . the Roman Catholics? The Protestants? (And which of 222 denominations) The Jews? Or maybe the Unitarians, the humanists, the atheists? And let's not forget political, national, cultural, racial, sociological, and educational backgrounds . . . to name a few more influencing factors.

Because of these and other difficulties, the Supreme Court of the United States is increasingly disposed to void any public or private attempt to censor so-called obscenity in the mass media . . . newspapers, magazines, or motion pictures. Over the past generation, they have consistently taken the view that the First Amendment of the Constitution guarantees freedom of speech for all productions and publications . . . no matter how anti-social the content so long as it does not result in anti-social action.

As the prominent Brandeis educator, Dr. Jacob Neusner remarked recently: "In theory, I find it easy enough to agree that mass media should affirm, and not destroy public morals. Yet I find it difficult, first of all, to formulate a definition of 'public morals' which would be specific, precise, and sensitive enough to permit full and free expression."

Dr. Neusner also shares the fear of many of the U. S. High Court on the danger of 'big brother' government dictating private expression through the approval of 'obscenity control.' He states, "Secondly, I fear that a watch over public morals in public expressions will lead, inevitably, to an inquiry into the private morals, or opinions of those who make use of the mass media. It is a very brief step from governmental enforcement of public morality in media of communication, to government regulation of the private lives."

Evidently, however, there are many still active in government who do not agree.

Currently in Massachusetts, there are several bills before the Commonwealth's Great and General Court, each of which takes broad aim at the shadowy target of "obscenity." Each no doubt, with the noblest of motives: "preserving the public morals."

Here is one of the proposed statutes, as summarized by the Office of the Attorney General of Massachusetts:

H.540 "To regulate further the possession, sale, publishing and lending of 'obscene books' and other items."

The proposed bill H.540 would attempt to prevent the publishing and distribution of any "obscene" books and this would be done by the state, probably through a state-selected commission of censors. But once again, this bill faces the impossibilities of adequate definition on which depictions of sex one considers "socially dangerous," or what is considered "obscene."

We are directly concerned here with the extent to which governments can arbitrarily silence publishers or distributors of publications. In this case, the subject is on sex, but should not sex literature deserve the same protection under the Constitution as that of expression in other categories? Must all art and creative expression in literature be subject to the socially safe yet sterile scales of a censor board?

BOOK REVIEW

by Leila-Jane Roberts
Winchester Public Library

THE MAN

by Irving Wallace

"It's a nice place to visit but I wouldn't want to live there!" This phrase, so often applied to New York, describes this reviewer's feelings about Washington during the reading of this book. Wheeling and dealing, pressures from every side, the inability to trust anyone as being completely disinterested—all are presented. On the other hand, one senses the dedication of many in government service, the excitement of being a part of the Executive Branch of our national government, and the way a democratic government must function.

Irving Wallace is looked down on by librarians and others interested in serious writing as one who sells the movie rights before he finishes writing the novel and who creates expressly for the best-seller market—often building a novel on sensational news headlines rather than on more enduring human values and endeavors. Therefore when this book came out, it was prejudged perhaps unwisely. Reviews were not encouraging and in fact were downright discouraging about the place of this book in a permanent library collection.

The New York Times Book Review: "In any competition for the Worst Novel of the Year, Irving Wallace's The Man must be considered a formidable contender. "Virginia Kirkus pre-publication review: "Irving Wallace plays Harriet Beecher Stowe. (And loses) . . . Writing?—Earnestly tasteless. Sales?—We would not be a bit surprised, just bemused."

Library Journal:"He (the main character) suffers the trials of a modern Job: he endures every cruelty that society inflicts in the name of civilization. Yet he suffers not one human grief . . . He is, in fact, a national cliche, but he is not a man . . . The result is a political fantasia that possesses no humor, no magic, no humanity and no art. It is a failure."

Time magazine: "This tasteless story is laid in the near future . . . Novelist Wallace (The Chapman Report) embarked on The Man, he reports, by taking up his note pad and pencil one evening 'and writing in a frenzy whatever came to my mind until daybreak.' Obviously."

But alas, reviews are not any more infallible than the individuals who write them. Here is one book which the library decided not to buy and which may well be used in social studies courses fifty years from now much as Upton Sinclair's The Jungle is used today.

The basic plot concerns the catapulting of a Negro into the Presidency at least three administrations after Lyndon Johnson. He is an intelligent Senator, but he is black. Eventually he has to make the decision as to whether he will be the tool of his predecessor's Cabinet or act as the President, and he chooses the courageous but politically inexpedient course. When he is tried for impeachment, his best friend, a Jewish lawyer, points out to the Congress that the real trial concerns whether he shall be judged as a man or a black man.

A kaleidoscopic cast of characters peoples this story, all of whom are human and as such open to the faults and virtues of all humanity. True as some reviews claimed, there are enough situations and crises to take care of a year's soap opera; but to me, at least, they were credible, and any one who has worked with people in any position of responsibility knows that decisions do have to be made continually and disruptions of the status quo are perpetual.

Therefore, in one sense, we erred in not adding this book to the collection. However, if this book has any of the qualities with which I am imbuing it, it should make no difference whether one reads it this summer or last fall when it came out and was consistently on the best-seller lists. It is now a part of the public library collection and will be in circulation by the time this review is published.

Memorial Day Parade Notes

Editor of the Star:

The Memorial Day Committee would like to thank all those who participated in making the Memorial Day Observance such a fine success.

Our Board of Selectmen gave the committee the utmost in cooperation in carrying out our plans. To Chief Joseph Derro of the Police Department and Chief I. Francis Amico of the Fire Department, many thanks for sending detailed groups for this observance.

Our deepest appreciation is extended to Reverend James R. Scroggs of the Second Congregational Church and to Reverend Francis X. Turke of St. Mary's Church for delivering the invocations at Calvary and Wildwood Cemeteries.

The Commanders of the Veterans Organization; John Collins, Veterans of Foreign Wars; Edward Quill, American Legion; are all to be commended for their cooperation in making arrangements for their units to march.

A thank you to Arthur Collins who made the arrangements for wreaths at the two cemeteries and at Leonard Field, the Honor Roll and the Junior High Memorial.

In the music department we had our fine High School Band and the Elementary School Band under the direction of Frederick J. Murray. They were well received along the parade route.

The snappy precision of the Immaculate Conception Senior and Junior Drum and Bugle Corps and Girls' Drill Team, (240 strong) escorted by their pastor, Rev. Herbert K. A. Driscoll, was an outstanding feature of the parade.

The U. S. Navy Band of Boston made its first appearance in this parade under the fine leadership of John W. Rodway, MU-1. A special word of thanks to a former Winchesterite, Anthony Gentile, who helped in making the arrangements for the band to appear.

The Woburn National Guard Co. A, 226th Transportation made their traditional fine appearance under their commanding officer Theodore C. Palizzolo, Jr.

Auxiliary Police Chief Fred Weir and his officers did a splendid job, along with the Civilian Defense and American Red Cross with their two-way radio cars.

The Rainbow Drill Team of Winchester and Woburn, Winchester Assembly No. 50, added much color and precision marching. A numerous group of Boy Scouts did a fine job marching the entire route. Also a thank you to Cub Pack 508 of the Noonan School who marched the entire route.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary banner was carried by the Misses Cynthia Drown and Rosemary Lane. Both the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary and the American Legion Auxiliary were well represented.

To all units which participated, a final thanks for a job well done. It is not our intent to slight anyone, yet we feel that we should try and single out those organizations and individuals who contributed so much to the success of the parade.

I should also like to thank all the veterans that helped in decorating the veterans' graves. To Superintendents James A. Wakefield, Jr., Highway Department and Herbert (Babe) Mullen, Park Department, a thank you for their cooperation.

Sincerely,
John T. Horn, Parade Marshal
William J. Carroll, Chairman

Discussion On Town Meeting School Issue

Editor of the Star:

In one respect the High School issue was highly controversial. In all other respects, however, most people seem to agree.

Every one I have talked with feels that Winchester can well afford, and must have the very best High School that money can buy—the best teachers, the highest salaries, the most modern equipment—in fact, the best of everything to put Winchester in the forefront again as an educational institution.

Only on the question of its location did opinions differ, and in this respect the differences were very marked indeed. Tempers flared, mass meetings were held, brochures were published and circulated, petitions were signed and submitted, phone calls were made and letters were written — knitting needles clicked and clacked, and some good people were suspected of having been carried away by their own mellifluous rhetoric.

The fatal meeting was held and the vote was taken, and the decision of the meeting was unequivical. The High School stays in the center.

With the critical matter out of the way, let all parties and opinions unite to get on with the problem itself and its ultimate solution.

"Nothing is impossible, but thinking makes it so." (Negative thinking that is!) Let us try Positive thinking for a change. Tell the architect what we want, and let him accomplish it. If he demurs too much, get another architect. If we can build a modern school on the West Side of Town, certainly we can build a reasonable facsimile thereof in the Center.

Let's make no mistakes this time. Let every facet of the school problem be re-examined and re-assessed, and this time let the construction be of the right type and of ample size. Never again let it be " too little and too late." Ample, proper and in proportion, in all respects.

Sincerely,
C. S. Borggaard

Registration Of Voters in Home By "Deputy"

Editor of the Star:

A bill now in the Massachusetts Legislature should interest Winchester's citizens. H 3938, which passed the House, authorizes voter registration in homes by a "deputy registrar" of either party, appointed upon recommendation of his party officers.

While the deputy registrar is not supposed to reveal his party affiliation, the possibilities of pressure and fraud are obvious. What proof or accountability of the deputy registrar's integrity will we have, or of his ability to administer impartially a literacy test?

Likelihood of errors and extra paperwork are greatly increased. Even experienced offices make mistakes. For example, the 1964 Winchester List of Residents shows me living alone at a non-existent address. Small wonder no town clerk or city registrar has supported this bill!

While California has an arrangement like that now proposed here, great distances and an enormous immigrant population since World War II make that state special. Massachusetts, on the other hand, is a geographically compact state that has suffered the corruption and tyranny of one-party rule.

Concerned citizens could inform themselves of Senate hearings scheduled on this bill, contact our State Senator Philibert Pellegrini of Arlington, and make forceful representations to our resident governor or an appropriate member of his staff.

Sincerely yours,
D. E. Rush

Setting The Record Straight

Editor of the Star:

A group of interested citizens recently (and hurriedly) solicited in excess of four hundred signatures in support of the new high school on the Turkey Ridge site and distributed to the Town Meeting Members copies of the signatures from their precincts.

This project was an independent endeavor of many women, financed by them, and was not sponsored by any organization.

The statement made by a speaker on the Town Meeting floor on Thursday evening to the effect that this was a League of Women Voters' project was incorrect and those involved in the effort wish publicly to correct it.

Sincerely,
Mrs. David Holmes

Little League In Tribute To Dana Kelly

Editor of the Star:

On behalf of the officers and all of the members of Winchester Little League, Inc., we wish to extend our deepest sympathy to the family of Dana J. Kelly on his recent death. A great friend of Little League, Dana worked long and hard for the program.

It is diffieult to find a man who was so dedicated to the Little League as was Dana. He gave a great deal of his time and effort toward advancing the project and we are all most grateful for his help.

Those of us who knew him and worked with him over the years are doubly saddened by the loss of a real friend. Dana was a staunch believer and a strong supporter of all of the youth of Winchester. He was always ready to offer his hands and his help in any good cause. We will miss him in the future but we are thankful for knowing him in the past.

Sincerely,
Al LaPointe
President, Winchester Little League

Are We Getting Into a Crowded Lifeboat Here?

Editor of the Star:

What happens to a town which gets rid of its lower priced homes?

Young married couples just starting their families will not buy a home in such a town because they cannot afford to pay for a higher priced one. Therefore, the Town eventually becomes a one-level society — monotonous and stagnating — its people ingrown and not open to new ideas. Do we want this situation here or do we want to continue to be a growing town—growing in the right direction?

Why should I care what happens in Precinct Six when I don't live there? My reasons are both selfish and unselfish—selfish in that when our children are grown and married, if they want to live in Winchester, I want homes here they can afford—unselfish in that I hate to see human rights even tampered with.

Now, as to the accomplishments of the people who live down there—and when I use the word "down," I am speaking geographically, not socially. I will mention only one. Three boys won scholarships to Harvard: Joseph Butare, Paul Del Rossi, and William Haggerty. Harvard chose three boys from this area in the same year and we know Harvard emphasizes geographical distribution.

If we ever tear these homes down, we are behaving as if we are all in a crowded lifeboat. In order to save the majority, we must throw some people overboard. But we are not in this position. My God! Let's not act as if we are!

Sincerely,
Gwen Dexter

Honors Go To Walter Skerry

Walter J. Skerry of 130 Sylvester Avenue was honored last Thursday night at the conclusion of 36 years' service to the Town in the Fire Department. Mr. Skerry retired as supervisor of the Alarm System in the Department.

More than 100 of his co-workers and friends attended the testimonial dinner held at the K. of C. Hall and heard tributes to the guest of honor by Sherman Saltmarsh, master of ceremonies and former chairman of the board of Selectmen; present chairman, Edward Hicks; Chief Frank Amico, Captain Peter Galuffo and Charles Moran, chairman of the testimonial committee.

With them at the head table were the Rev. Newton Clay of the Crawford Methodist Church and the Rev. Francis Turke of St. Mary's, who gave the closing prayer and invocation respectively.

The whole affair was one of good spirit and fellowship much enjoyed by all who attended.

The Naven Award; Linda Nelson 2nd Family Winner

Linda Nelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Nelson of 44 Water Street, was the 1965 winner of the Elizabeth L. Naven Award donated by the Noonan School Chapter of the Winchester Community Schools Association. It is interesting to note that Linda is not the first member of her family to receive this award, as her brother Niles was the winner in 1955.

To be eligible for this annual award the student must have attended the Noonan School for at least three years; and the parent or guardian of the student must have been an active member of the parents association during those three years. A list of seniors who are eligible to receive the award is given to the high school principal, who selects the student with the highest scholastic average as the winner. The award is then presented at the graduation exercises.

The fund was started in June of 1932 with an initial deposit of $25, and it was ruled that when the fund reached $300 the interest would be awarded to the student meeting the above requirements. The account was brought up to $300 by means of small donations and social events so that finally in June of 1939 the first award was made. Thus Linda is the 24th winner of the award, which is now $100. Niles was the first winner to receive this sum.

The student who is the recipient of the award does not have to be planning on further education, as the award was originally set up with the idea that it would help a deserving student to get started in the business world with a little extra cash to carry him over until the first pay check was received.

The award is given in memory of Miss Elizabeth L. Naven, a teacher in the Noonan School for many years, who was most kind to her pupils. It was not unusual for her to go to a child's home to do some private tutoring (without recompense) in order to keep the child up with the class, or to take a pair of shoes, rubbers or the like to another home where she knew there was need.

Pack 509 Plans Summer Events

The summer program for Pack 509 activities was announced at its last meeting.

The tentative schedule shapes up like this: June 26, trip to Benson's Animal Farm, Hudson, New Hampshire. This is to be a family affair and if participation warrants it transportation by bus will be provided at a nominal fee. July 24, a cookout for the Pack will be held in the local area, details to be announced. August 28, tentatively a trip to Mt. Wachusetts is being planned. It is important to make note of these dates and plan to attend. These outings will be the Pack meetings for the summer and there will be no Den meetings until next September.

The high note of the May meeting was the awarding of the Webelos Badge to seven Cubs. The boys who received the badges are: Doug Bryant, Peter Ferber, Doug Fritch, Lennie Johnson, John Miller, Craig Nichols and Doug Weeks. Congratulations to you fellows and good scouting in the years to come.

The Pinewood Derby provided thrills for everyone and heartaches for a few. But after the false starts, pit repairs and the cheers of the crowd, the final four cars (of sixty-six starters) were ready for the grand race to determine Pack champion. These four finalists were all very classy cars. When the checkered flag went down, it was Gil Cronin in first place, Doug Fritch a close second, Bob Dean a length behind for third and Len Galone, who may have had transmission trouble in the final heat, was fourth. To the winners, congratulations, to the losers, better luck next year.

Don't forget the summer program and plan to attend if possible.

New Hand Signal Law Takes Effect On June 13

Effective June 13, 1965, hand signals required of Massachusetts motorists will be the same as those in all other states.

"Adoption of these new, uniform hand signals by Massachusetts is in keeping with efforts to aid the tourist industry in the Commonwealth," Registrar Richard E. McLaughlin commented. "With the same kinds of hand signals in effect throughout the country, there will be a smoother flow of traffic in those months of the year when many out of state visitors are on our highways."

The new hand signals provide:

1. An intention to turn to the left shall be indicated by hand and arm extended horizontally.

2. An intention to turn to the right shall be indicated by hand and arm extended upward.

3. An intention to stop or decrease speed shall be indicated by hand and arm extended downward.

These signals are the same hand signals for turns and for stops as are required by the Uniform Vehicle Code.

Don't Touch The Turtles

Captain Robert Murray, chief agent of the Mass. S.P.C.A. reports that within the next few weeks turtles will be coming out of the water to lay their eggs on dry land, usually in some sandy spot in the sun. At this time of year, turtles may be seen far away from any body of water.

Wise parents will impress upon their children that should they see any turtles, the youngsters should leave them strictly alone. One very important reason for all this is that all turtles are a natural control for mosquitoes and other insect pests and a control of water pollution by consuming decay matter.

An even more important reason for leaving turtles alone is the snapping turtle. "The snapper, which sometimes grows to a tremendous size, is a dangerous plaything for those unfamiliar with it," continued Captain Murray.

On dry land, this turtle may not even wait to be handled and annoyed by people but charge right in to do battle. This particular turtle is so well equipped that it can snap off a finger with one deadly bite. Nor is there any safety in picking it up by its shell, since its long neck enables it to twist and bite the hand holding it.

Teach your children to have a proper respect for turtles, not only because of the danger but because of the turtle's role in insect and decay control.

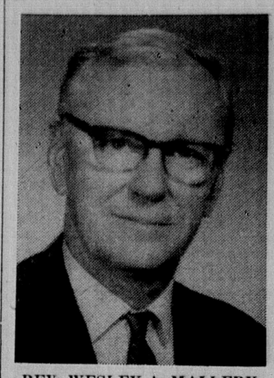
Personal letters of appreciation are to be bound in booklet form and presented to the Mallerys as a keepsake; these should be mailed to Mrs. Robert Cunningham, 61 Salisbury Street or left at the Church office as soon as possible but no later than June 30.



REV. WESLEY A. MALLERY

Although Mr. and Mrs. Mallery have a substantial record of achievement in all phases of the church's program, one of their most successful contributions has been their work with the Forum, the organization of high-school-age members. A special invitation has been extended to all members of the Forum, all alumni of Forum, and all parents of these young people to attend as an expression of their appreciation of the fine job Mr. and Mrs. Mallery have done in this program area during their ministry in Winchester.

The Mallerys' contribution to Winchester has been community-wide. Mr. Mallery has been an active member of the Winchester Art Association, serving as its president in 1959-61.

He has just completed a term as president of the local Ministerial Association and has been Chaplain of William Parkman Masonic Lodge.

Mrs. Mallery worked several years in the Children's Room of the Winchester Public Library, and is now on the board of the Winchester Visiting Nursing Association.

Strike

Winchester police were put on a two-day watch inside the central office that serves the Winchester-Woburn-Burlington area.

A second Winchester telephone facility, the business office at 123 Washington Street, was unaffected by the IBTW strike, and no pickets appeared there.

World Book Lore

Eggs are associated with Easter because they represent new life, but the custom of exchanging eggs began in ancient times. The Egyptians and Persians dyed eggs in spring colors and gave them to their friends. The Persians believed that the earth had hatched from a giant egg.

ACROSS THE COUNTER

Here's something to think about: Seventeen insurance companies "failed" last year. Proportionately that isn't very many, but these failures still teach a lesson.

According to an article in an insurance magazine: "Almost all of the failures followed the pattern of recent times—they wrote substandard auto business altogther, or too much of it."

The lesson is this: it pays to insure with strong, reliable companies, even if they charge a few dollars more than the weaker, less well-known companies.

Naturally, we feel it is part of our duty to the people who depend on our judgment to select and represent only financially strong companies. This is not only a duty but actual practice! The companies we represent have exceptionally strong ratings. They have survived depressions, wars and numerous disasters. This kind of strength and dependability is important.

One other lesson: Choose a reliable agent. Then you'll not only have your insurance placed with strong companies—you'll get the best in personal SERVICE as well. Financial security and personal interest make a combination hard to beat.

May we serve you?

Annual Sodality Banquet At Immac. Conception

On Sunday, May 23, at 7 p.m. the Sodality of Our Lady of the Immaculate Conception Parish held its eighteenth annual Sodality banquet and installation of new officers.

The school hall was most festive in its decor of blue and white with sudden sprays of pink and blue sweet peas, complemented by the unique head table which was embellished in a pattern of grandeur. The latter, so lavishly decorated by Mrs. Bee Wilson created an atmosphere fit for a king.

Officers for the year 1964-1965 were prefect, Mrs. Frances Bockoff; vice prefect, Mrs. Dorothy Gonsalves; treasurer, Mrs. Violet Melaragni, and secretary, Mrs. Peg Coughlin.

The new installed officers are prefect, Mrs. Dorothy Gonsalves; vice prefect, Mrs. Peg Coughlin; treasurer, Mrs. Gladys Lindmark, and secretary, Miss Mary McLaughlin. They were installed by Rev. Paul E. Curran, spiritual director of the Sodality.

The speakers for the evening were Rev. Paul E. Curran and Rev. Herbert K. A. Driscoll, the pastor.

Father Curran presented Mrs. Bockhoff with a lovely statue of Our Blessed Mother in behalf of her activities as prefect for the past year.

The guest speaker for the evening was Rev. James F. Kenny, former curate of this parish who gave a delightful talk.

The thanks of the organization goes to the wonderful decorating committee consisting of chairlady, Mrs. Bee Wilson, Mrs. Margaret Cullen, Mrs. Jennie Desmond, Mrs. Marion MacDonald and Mrs. Mildred Paoletti.

In addition sincere thanks to all the wonderful Sodalists who did so much to make our year the success it was.

Vinson-Owen Teachers Feted

The teachers at Vinson-Owen School are still talking about the delightful luncheon they attended in their honor on Wednesday, June 2.

The luncheon was given by the board members of the Vinson-Owen Parents' Association and was held at Mrs. James Dorsey's Thornberry Road home, so graciously opened for the occasion.

This was the parents' association's last official action for the school year and all present agreed that it was a very pleasant function.

Wellesley Club Hears About Man-Made Diseases

On June 1st, the Winchester Wellesley Club's spring meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Robert M. Stone.

Dr. Harriet Hardy, Wellesley '28, the speaker, holds more degrees and positions than it is practical to report. At present, she is, among many other things, assistant medical director in charge of Industrial Medicine at M.I.T.—a department started by Dr. Compton who wanted no unnecessary risk in atomic research. Her previous work included research on the use of berylium in fluorescent lights and its delayed reaction on the human body; because of her, berylium is no longer used in either fluorescent lights or the atomic bomb.

Dr. Hardy's interest is in the hazards of modern technology to the human body and includes such disparate subjects as lead and mercury poisoning in coal miners and the possible injury to children from lead on city streets. Her work is of infinite importance to modern living—so much so that she is not only a lecturer on atomic energy but a consultant on social and occupational health for The World Health Organization at Geneva, Switzerland.

Man must be made to be aware of himself, according to Dr. Hardy.

Rev. Newcomb At Methodist Church

The Rev. Arthur W. Newcomb, Jr., will be the guest preacher Sunday morning at the Crawford Memorial Methodist Church. He is the minister of the First Methodist Church in Westfield, which is one of the largest Methodist churches in the western part of the state.

Rev. Mr. Newcomb's sermon subject will be, "Everyone Is In The Drama." The service is at eleven o'clock.

Rev. Mr. Newcomb served churches in Gardner, Malden and Somerville before his present pastorate which is now in its eighth year. He is a graduate of Boston University and holds the S.T.B. degree from the School of Theology.

The pastor, the Rev. H. Newton Clay, will be attending the sessions of The New England Annual Conference of the Methodist Church at Boston. The conference will close on Sunday afternoon with the Service of Ordination and the reading of the appointments. The closing session will be held at the Tremont Street Methodist Church, Tremont Street near Mass. Avenue, at 3:30 o'clock.

Strawberries For A Festival, Ummm

There's a treat in store for strawberry shortcake fans at the Crawford Memorial Methodist Church on Wednesday evening, June 16, from 6:30. In addition to the continuous serving of old-fashioned shortcake heaped with fresh strawberries and whipped cream, there will be a baked goods sale of appetizing goodies. Come and bring the children. Tickets available from members of the Women's Society for Christian Service or at the door.

Duplicate Bridge Club

The Winchester News Challenge Bowl, emblematic of the Individual Championship for 1965, was captured on Wednesday evening, June 2nd, by Chet Davis. It is an honor for the club to have such a famous bridge name appear on one of its trophies. It is also worth pointing out that this type of event is not won by fancy and esoteric bidding conventions but rather by "middle of the road" technique coupled with sound and careful play.

No less than 60 players entered the lists, resulting in a huge average score of 140 points. Players sharing in the American Contract Bridge League master point awards included:

Chester Davir, Jr.	197½
Richard Smith	185
Adeline Mingolelli	180½
Stephen Haseltine	168½
William Duryea	167½
Norman Houlding	164

Also well ahead of the pack and close to the top were:

Phillip Cade	162½
Herbert Wood	161½
Alan Friot	161
Ruth Jackson	157½
Waveney Smith	157½
Barbara Shea	152
Bettina Lorris	152

Since entries in the individual event must be rounded off to a multiple of four, someone usually gets "left out." A case in point is Miggs Root, one of the best examples of why the club continues to be such a success. Not only does she write frequent articles for this column and take charge of publicity for many of our charity tournaments; but, as permanent chairman of reception and sign-ins, she was at the door the night of the individual and gave up her chance to play in this event which she has once won and always enjoys. On top of that, she stayed up 'til after 2:00 a.m. working on the scoring and checking of the evening's play and then handled a large number of inquiring telephone calls the following day!

A nine pair Howell was run that same evening, with the following final batting averages:

Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Root and friend	.690
Mr. and Mrs. John Demeritt	.573
Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Root	.524
Mr. and Mrs. Owen Connolly	.512
P. Ranaghan and R. Prevoir	.512

Guy Mingolelli takes over this week and gives us the following account of one of the roughest boards encountered in the individual.

The Individual Club Championship has always been a mild form of Russian Roulette. Unusual bidding and play invariably prevails at an affair of this nature (unusual being a polite word for the indiscretions committed under the guise of bidding).

If the average person were planning a picnic or sail, I'm sure he would scan the horizon prior to heading for the open country or casting off. Bridge players also hold a finger aloft, look and listen for ominous sounds but all they see is the silver lining.

With the barometer falling and other storm signals prominently displayed the following bidding transpired on Board One:

North
♥ A Q 7
♦ J 10 4
♣ A Q J 9 6 5

West
♠ Q 10 9 2
♥ J 9 5 3 2
♣ 10

East
♠ None
♥ K 10 6
♦ K Q 5 2
♣ K 8 7 4 3 2

South
♠ A K J 8 6 5 4 3
♣ None

North opened 1 Club (not artificial), a double by East, redouble by South and a 1 Heart bid by West. North now imprudently jumped to 3 Clubs, and East doubled again (storm clouds rapidly gathering in this sector). South now revealed the strength of his hand with a jump to 4 Spades, reasoning that opposite any opening bid, eight spades should produce a game. West doubled in a flash. Oblivious to the impending storm, North bravely bid 5 Clubs. Even Joe Milquetoast holding the East cards would double this bid and this particular East eagerly repeated her previous double.

South, hoping 5 Spades would not be beaten so badly, once again overcalled in spades. West, snug in his foul weather gear, of course, doubled what was the final contract. If North had listened after South's redouble and refrained from rebidding, the result might have been 3 or 4 Spades doubled for an average or average plus board.

The championship baseball team featured Henry Mathews who pitched two no-hit, no-run games in 1915, Earle Goldsmith, first baseman and Warren Johnston, catcher. Mr. Mathews and Mr. Goldsmith are deceased. The state champion girls' basketball team of that era included Helen Ayer, Marjorie Wait, Maude Gurney, Marion Kendall and Esther Cutting (dec.) all of this illustrious class.

Jesus as our Guide

Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus
—Phil. 2:5

We regard ourselves as Christians and no doubt most of us really believe we are and would hotly resent any suggestion to the contrary. Friends, let's be honest about it. How many of us have ever seriously considered just precisely what qualities entitle a person to be called a Christian and have then had the courage and humility to arraign ourselves at the bar of our conscience and render a true verdict as to whether we really filled the role? Very few of us, I venture to think.

Let us test ourselves now in one particular and in that connection do a little defining and self-searching. Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus. Such was the urgent counsel of St. Paul. To strive to attain this state is to aspire in very truth to be a perfect Christian. That seems a big order. Yes, and Christianity is a religion which makes hard demands upon those who would practice it in spirit and in truth. But Jesus did not regard it as fantastic to go so far as to admonish His followers to be perfect even as their Father in Heaven is perfect! So let us try to enter as best we can into the mind of Jesus and thereby seek His grace and guidance. Thus we shall meet our daily problems with that enlargement of vision, enrichment of understanding and deepening of sympathy which such a spiritual experience is certain to assure us.

By what means shall we enter that transcendent mind so as to share its wisdom and possess its spiritual treasures? Without renouncing any theological opinions we may entertain, let us go straight back to the simple Bible account and try to understand for ourselves the mind of the Founder of Christianity. With such understanding as we can thereby acquire let us ask ourselves what judgment Jesus would have passed on the practice of experimenting on live animals.

Seeing the multitude that gathered about Him to hear the glad tidings and having gone up into a mountain, in the course of the greatest sermon man has ever heard on earth, He proclaimed "Blessed are the merciful for they shall obtain mercy." Throughout His mission that cardinal attribute of the rightly conceived life was never absent from His thoughts, was repeatedly expounded in His discourses and at all times vividly exemplified in His actions.

It is impossible to believe that Jesus intended our mercy to end with our own kind, thereby excluding all the sub-human kingdom which has its appointed place in the scheme of divine creation and in the fatherland of universal love.

Let us now imagine Jesus in a medical classroom or experimental laboratory and see Him who turned and looked upon Peter, turn and look upon the piteous and revolting spectacle of the deliberate and remorseless torture of inoffensive and defenseless animals by those for whom He prescribed His gospel of compassion as the rule of conduct for all the sons of His Heavenly Father. What would He have said? "Shouldest thou not have had compassion upon these, even as I had pity on thee?" So He seems to me to say, and I shall act accordingly. And it is hard for me to see how any other attitude can be taken by one who professes to be a true Christian — that is, one who heeds the injunction of St. Paul to let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus and who accepts that mind as the guide in judging vivisection.

Saturday Openings For Registry Off for Summer

"We feel that the opening of the Registry of Motor Vehicles offices on Saturday mornings since May 8 of this year has been a definite success," Registrar of Motor Vehicles Richard E. McLaughlin commented today.

"Unfortunately, because of the press of summer vacations, for our personnel, we will not be able to continue the Saturday openings during the summer."

The Registrar went on to announce further that the Registry openings on Saturday mornings which were discontinued last week would commence again shortly after Labor Day.

Facilities at branch offices in Boston, Worcester, Springfield, Pittsfield, Lynn, Lowell, Brockton, and New Bedford were utilized by several thousands of persons during the past few Saturdays. Had these offices not been open, it would have been necessary for these people to take time off from work in order to secure their license and registration applications and renewals.

"We certainly wish to acknowledge the appreciation of the many Massachusetts motorists who have had the opportunity to conduct their business at the Registry without losing a day's pay," Registrar McLaughlin continued, "and we definitely want to point out at this time that the Registry Saturday openings will begin again right after Labor Day."

Christian Scientists Annual Meeting

The Christian Science Board of Directors this week urged its church members to find the "areas of agreement" which exist with other denominations, "rather than think of ourselves as entirely different or exclusive."

From the church's earliest beginnings, said the directors, it has been deeply involved in "the search for the real source of unity."

The message was presented before several thousand members, including many from Winchester, at the annual meeting of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston. Among those from Winchester who served as ushers to greet fellow church members from all over the world were Edwin D. Dalziel, Richard M. Clifton, Alvin S. Malthaner, and Hugh Ferber.

Several reports at the meeting indicated that the church is continuing to broaden its communications effort through improvements in its public lectures; weekly radio series; various publications, including the well-known daily newspaper, The Christian Science Monitor; and the New York World's Fair Pavilion.

Winchester visitors to the Fair can find a bit of home at the Christian Science Pavilion where a color picture of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Winchester, is prominently displayed.

RALPH E. SEXTON II

At the commencement dinner the evening before Ralph was awarded the Goodwin athletic prize, which is given to that senior who, by athletic achievement and sportsmanship, has brought the greatest honor to his school during the past year.

In making the award, Headmaster Valleau Wilkie said: "In the athletic world, there are some players who attract great public attention—in part by performance and in part by circumstances of the position they play. Others fall into the category of the 'unsung hero.' The winner of the Goodwin Athletic Prize to some degree falls in the latter group. As a guard in football his performance was seldom noted by the casual observer, but his role was so vital to the success of the team that he received the most valuable player award. He led a young and inexperienced hockey team extremely well, not only by the example of his own fine play, but even more through the extra time and effort he devoted to helping younger players. This afternoon you witnessed his last game in a Governor Dummer Baseball uniform. Sportsman, keen competitor, leader—all of these qualities are combined in Ralph Emerson Sexton, II."

Fahey, Thorp Legion's Choices For Boys' State

Two high school boys from Winchester have been chosen to attend the 20th annual session of the Boys' State Convention, sponsored by the Massachusetts American Legion, Commander Edward Quill of Winchester Post No. 97 announced recently.

Named to participate in this workshop in the organization and operation of state government are: Stephen R. Fahey, son of Dr. and Mrs. Robert J. Fahey of 22 Chisholm Road; and Peter C. Thorp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thorp of 28 Pierrepont Road. The boys were chosen by the teachers of Winchester High School because of their qualities of leadership and citizenship. Both boys are in the upper third of their class.

The 1965 Massachusetts Boys' State will be in session from June 18 to June 26, at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Commander Quill said.

He pointed out that the Legion will sponsor 50 of these Boys' States this summer plus a Boys' Nation consisting of two outstanding youths from each of the Boys' States who will study the operation of the federal government in much the same manner as the Boys' States delegates participate in training in state government.

At the 1965 Massachusetts Boys' State, the Winchester High School youths will participate in the organization of political parties, campaigns, elections, and the enactment and enforcement of their own laws within a mythical 51st state.

"Boys' State is one of the finest youth-training programs sponsored by the American Legion," Commander Quill declared. "The youths learn not only the functions of government but also the role that a good citizen must play to discharge his citizenship responsibility. They learn by doing how a good government depends upon the active interest of every citizen."

Lynch Geologists Head for Hills

On Friday, May 28, a group of 44 Lynch Jr. High schoolers packed their gear and headed for the hills in New York State. Parents and teachers served as drivers and guides on the trip to John Boyd Thacher State Park.

The young scientists collected fossils, inspected rock formations and engaged in mountain climbs and spelunking.

They left Friday morning, arriving at the campsite in time for lunch. After setting up camp, they spent the afternoon collecting fossils.

The next morning they set out on the Catskill Mountain trip. During the drive, the students were alerted to watch for various rock formations. After lunch, the group inspected a Wild Cave, spending an hour-and-a-half underground.

After lunch on Sunday, the students and their guides left the camp site for Callahan Quarry in South Bethlehem. A good exposure of different kinds of limestone was observed there.

The group arrived home in Winchester at 7:30 p.m. on Sunday. They reported that although they had no rain, the tenting at night was shivery. On Saturday night, the temperature dropped below freezing.

Adults driving on the trip included teachers Eugene Bouley and Neale Hice. Also helping were James Baird, Chip Broadhurst, Albert Kasarjian, Mr. and Mrs. James Sauber, Mrs. Thornton Stearns, Mrs. Swanson, and Albert Tatarian.

Garden Club Medley Delights Members, Guests

A delightful fund-raising event of the Winchester Garden Club, of which Mrs. Alexander P. Aitken is president, took place on Thursday, June 3, in Wood Lane, where three houses, all designed by the distinguished architect, Royal Barry Wills, were opened to the members and their guests for a progressive luncheon. The event was planned and executed under the direction of Mrs. Deran S. Hintlian and Mrs. James L. Jenks, Jr. Mrs. Philip Boone was chairman of the ticket-selling committee, and the beautifully designed programs added tremendously to the festive nature of the affair and set the tone for its many attractions.

At the first home, typical of the architect's well-loved design, Mrs. Royal Barry Wills served the first course. The home has an ideal setting of flowering shrubs and fascinating door-yard gardens in which fuchsias play a leading part. She was assisted by Mrs. Maurice T. Freeman, Mrs. Edward V. French and Miss Corinne Mead.

A food sale, where home-made delicacies brought by members of the club were on sale, was also conducted in this home and presided over by Mrs. W. Campbell Ross, Mrs. Percy Bugbee and Mrs. Hazen M. Ayer. And to add a musical note to the affair John Spinelli's accordion was heard in the garden, and later on, during the other courses of the luncheon the piano became his instrument to bring pleasure to the guests.

Mrs. Hintlian was hostess for the main course prepared by herself and served with the able assistance of Mrs. Jenks. This beautiful modern house with its masses of rhododendrons in the background lent itself perfectly to the occasion, and the theme of the afternoon, "A Garden Club Medley," was carried out by extremely effective arrangements by Mrs. French and Mrs. Freeman, which were on display with their appropriate titles. In the entrance hall exotic cymbidium orchids bore the title "Hello, Dolly!" for the popular musical show, and glorious Easter lilies represented the "Easter Parade." In the living room an artistic arrangement of yellow gladioli carried the provocative title of "Sayonara," while deep purple blooms of wisteria and rhododendrons were logically termed "Deep Purple."

Other arrangements in the living room included a fascinating bird house with a violin and a realistic sea gull perched on the roof, to represent "Fiddler on the Roof," while "The Yellow Rose of Texas" was shown by a single rose in an atlas opened to the map of our President's home state. In the dining room a stunning arrangement of pink carnations in an unusual epergne brought back to all the unforgettable beauty of "My Fair Lady." In the recreation room petunias decorated each table in lovely shades of pink and purple, with flame azaleas adding their vibrant color to the serving table.

A greatly enjoyed dessert was served by Mrs. Robert M. Stone, assisted by Mrs. Richard A. Harlow, Mrs. Charles M. Vanner and Miss Caroline Kellogg, after which Mrs. Stone was hostess in her own beautiful home, with its magnificent display of rose pink azaleas by the front door and many other azaleas on the spacious grounds. One charming feature was a fascinating little lead figure of a boy piper at the foot of a towering oak, with a delightful little garden at his feet, blooming with pansies, petunias and impatiens. A yellow rose of China, always the first to bloom, announced proudly that soon the other roses would follow its lead and make the month of June our true month of roses.

The final feature of this most delightful day was the drawing of the door prizes, which consisted of three beautiful summer bags donated by Mrs. Harold F. Meyer. Two members of the club who were fortunate winners were Mrs. Percy Bugbee and Mrs. Freeman.

The fund-raising projects of the Winchester Garden Club have provided planting for the Winchester Hospital and the town common, and a generous contribution was also given to the Garden in the Woods, the remarkable Wildflower Sanctuary in Framingham.

Honor The Dead

• ALTHOUGH the focal point of the modern funeral service has become the assuagement of the grief of the bereaved, the reverence due to the deceased by no means has been neglected. Indeed, the more mature understanding of the psychological aspects of the funeral service and its lasting effects on the bereaved have directed a new emphasis on the honoring of the dead.

Spring Doubles Tennis Tournament Draws 55 Teams; Hills Top Family

The annual Spring Draw Doubles Tournament of the Winchester Tennis Association was brought to a successful conclusion last Saturday at William Packer Courts as champions were crowned in all four divisions of play by chairman Jack Corf.

In the mixed, men's and ladies' events all teams are paired by lot, which makes for some interesting combinations. The mixed doubles final, for example, found the Bob Pritchards in hot contention, but on opposite sides of the net! The head of the household, teamed with Mrs. Lorraine Ingraham, emerged victorious over Mrs. Pritchard and her partner, Ted White, in a close match, 6-1, 6-8, 6-3.

The winners started with a rush, quickly ran off the first set and set sail in the second set for a 4-1 lead. However, southpaw Betty Ann Pritchard began to find the range with her forehand and aided by the strong all-court play of Ted White, captured the long deuced second net. The third and deciding set was close all the way with Mrs. Ingraham's sound ground strokes and discerning choice of shot tipping the scales in her team's favor.

The men's title went to Whit Gray and Bill Benz as they downed John Sexton and Joe Bacon 6-4, 6-3 in the final. Gray and Benz were strong overhead and held a slight edge throughout the match.

Both teams had to battle through two tough three set matches in earlier rounds. Gray-Benz had heavy going in the quarters before edging Jim Shaka-Peter Garnis 8-6, 4-6, 6-3 and then won a squeaker in the semis, defeating Bill Bird - Al Samoiloff 6-4, 4-6, 6-4. Sexton - Bacon had no easy passage either in their half, winning in the round of sixteen at 6-4 in the third set over Ed Williams and Phil Boesch.

Their quarter-final win was even closer as they were carried to 6-2, 3-6, 10-8 by the indomitable Jim Riley and his partner, David Wingate. Another good match in the men's division saw Brad Hersey and Ted White defeat Bob Pritchard and Wimpy Burtnett 2-6, 6-4, 6-4.

The women's winners were Irene Easling and Betty Stebbins, who proved to be a bit too steady for Jan Klippel - Renee Miller at 8-6, 8-6 in the final. Klippel - Miller reached the final via successive three-set wins over Lucy White - Irene Lynch and Rosemary Dolan - Lorraine Ingraham. Easling - Stebbins, in their half, met their stiffest competition from Der Price and Becka Armstrong who went down in the semi-finals, 6-4, 6-3.

The family doubles was virtually the private preserve of the Hills family as the father and youngest son combine of Art and Mike bested the eldest son and mother team of Dorothy and Jeff, 6-3, 6-4. The winners cruised through the 15-team field without loss of a set. Not so with Dot and Jeff Hills, who had a real battle on their hands in the semi-finals before getting by the husband and wife team of Lucy and Ted White, 4-6, 6-1, 6-4.

Chairman Jack Corf was well pleased by the turn out of players, which totalled 55 teams in the four events and had excellent cooperation from the participants. Except for one day of rain, the tournament ran off smoothly and was replete with close, well-played matches.

This Is A Warning!

To all parents, managers and coaches and friends of Little League: If you forget that there is a Little League dance on Friday evening, June 11 at the Town Hall, you will miss one of the big events of the year. So remember, there will be dancing from nine to one and a guaranteed good time. You really ought to be there!

Little League Notes

As the first half ended, the Athletics have done it again. This time their 8 and 4 record was enough to take home the bunting for the first half and so name manager Hal Mullen as the American League all star mentor.

The Cardinals became the giant killers as they cut down the Pirates in the final game of the first half and put the Bucs out of contention for the top honors. The Pirates were under full sail up to that time and they were breathing down the necks of the Athletics. But along came the Cards with two wins under their belts and plenty of confidence under their shirts.

It was a masterful job for the Cardinals and a tough loss for the Pirates but that is how the breaks of the game go, and the Pirates had to be content with a second place tie. Those Cards can't wait for the second half to start for they don't intend to slow down at all.

One of the longest hits ever seen at the minor league field was a wallop made by Peter Tello of the Leopards in a recent game. Pete's smash took off from the diamond near the river and did not hit the ground until it was over in the deep left field area of the other minor league diamond near the railroad tracks. If that is not a record it will stand until something better comes along.

AMERICAN LEAGUE
The Athletics

Sponsored by Federal Heating and Engineering Co.

There is no secret about the Athletics. They are out to take their fifth straight championship and they don't mind letting everybody in on the idea. This year, as in the past, they are playing heads-up ball with every member of the club doing his bit to win.

After a recent victory we talked to Manager Hal Mullen after the game. "There is no special formula for a team like this," he pointed out, "we just try to get them to play a relaxed, easy game and that way they don't get all tensed up. It is a matter of keeping every boy alert so that he knows what he will do in the event that the ball is hit to him in the field. The same story applies to the batter. As long as he stands in loose and easy his chances of getting a hit are that much improved." And Mgr. Mullen ought to know for he has four championships notched on his belt with another one on the horizon.

Coach Jim Frongillo is more excitable than his boss and rightly so for Jim is coaching in his first year and is working with a club that is right up there at the front of the pack. "I am enjoying every minute of it," he beamed. "These boys are great and they are all working together as a good team ought to do. A club that keeps the pressure on the opposition as this one does is a tough club to put down."

The amazing part of it is that the Athletics are a young club and only four of their players will be graduating at the end of this season. That must be bad news for the rest of the league and there is no doubt that both the manager and the coach are not unhappy about this fact.

As with all of the major league clubs, pitching is most important and the Athletics have a staff that is about as fine as one could find. Bob Bigelow is probably the ace of the moundsmen and his contribution to the club is of the highest. Bob can also cover the first base job when he is not pitching. Next to Bob comes Dave Frongillo whose twirling is just short of sensational. Dave can also fill in on any of the infield jobs and has been used in the outfield on occasions as well.

Dick Bannister is another pitcher who has seen plenty of action on the mound and also trots out to an outfield spot when the lineup calls for it. Anthony Fiore usually does his work on the hot corner but he too is ready to take over a twirling stint if he gets the nod and he does a credible job on the mound. Tony is one of the club's long ball hitters which about makes him a "must" on any team.

Larry Penta plays an outfield post and has a wonderful throwing arm. Larry has done some of the mound work and has proven the strength in that arm more than once. And finally there is Dave Shanahan to round out the staff. Dave is about as all around a player as you can get. He pitches, he catches, he plays first base and he can cover the outfield like a blanket. In one game he was called upon to take over third base and did a good job there as well. Dave is a hitter and a good one. The opposing pitchers will testify to that.

Bruce McKenna just about bought up second base territory. A good glove man, Bruce adds plenty of strength to the infield and his bat is ringing out hits loud and clear. Tom Cronin sweeps everything up from his shortstop post and does everything right in that spot. Tom has a smoking bat right now and is one of the leading hitters on the club.

The spark of the Athletics probably must be centered in Steve LaPointe, catcher without a peer and a hitter without question. A field general of Steve's quality is an asset to any outfit and three times as hard to come by. There is little doubt that Steve is a mainstay of this team and they are the first to admit his worth.

Jim Chase has come a long way toward making himself a really great outfielder. He is fast and sure in the garden and has made some spectacular plays out there. Jimmy Dale is one of those versatile players who can jump into an infield spot or hop to the outfield with equal efficiency. Steve Lanigan is another good outfielder who is always on the offensive and a sure fielder.

Tom Mulcare works an outfield spot with all of the ability that is needed there and Frank McNeill does whatever is necessary to patrol the outfield at top performance. Steve Twombly rounds out the outer garden men and is one of the best in the business. Then, of course, there is Dave Shanahan, Larry Penta, Dave Frongillo and Dick Bannister all ready to step into the outfield if their services are needed there.

When you watch this club in action it is easy to see why the managerial staff is enthused. While Manager Mullen seldom gets excited, his team is always working at the peak of their style. Coach Frongillo has a right to get excited when the team is playing. He is almost young enough to be out there on the field himself and working with a winning club like the Athletics ought to entitle a coach to cheer as loud as he can. Jim does it!

NATIONAL LEAGUE
The Red Sox

Sponsored by McCormack's Apothecary.

From a Little League service point of view, Manager Gordon Peckham of the Red Sox is the oldest man in the league. Gordon is really "Mr. Little League" in Winchester as he was there and a part of the action when Ball One was thrown. And over the years Manager Peckham has guided many a team through seasons that were rough and seasons that were simple. "This is one of the rough years," Gordon explained, "I would say that this league is about as close as it can get. Nobody will walk away with the championship because the teams are so well balanced there is not a great deal of choice between any of them."

Coach Ed Williams looked over from his spot on the bench and grinned at his manager. "But I'll take this team if it is all the same with you," he said. "These boys are doing everything they can to make this club a winner and I've got to go with them. I just think that they can do it. Ed is not exactly a youngster in Little League service either so it might not be wise to bet against him - he could be right.

All of the Red Sox players and the managerial staff extend their best wishes to Phil Kadesch, one of their infielders who was recently hospitalized. A freak bounce struck Phil as he was fielding a grounder and took him out of combat. Everybody connected with Little League sends their regards to young Phil.

The Red Sox have five members in their pitching staff which is about as good as you can get. John Carr shares top honors in this department with Ed Williams and both boys have been proving their worth on the mound this year. John also does an outfield stint when he is called upon to do so and Ed does himself proud around second base when he gets the nod. Curt Clark is another promising twirler on whom the Red Sox have relied heavily and Curt steps into an outfield position when he is needed there.

Frank Haggerty throws some hard, fast ones at the opposing batters with great success and is also available for outfield duty. Peter Wild rounds out the hurlers. Pete is fast and accurate on the mound and has good pitching sense. When outfield work is needed Pete can hop out there with equal efficiency.

First base belongs to Ben Dolan. One of the smoothest workers in the league, Ben is a manager's dream of a first sacker. His bat is also one of the strong weapons on this Red Sox aggregation. Bill McGrath splits the second base chores with Ed Williams and Bill is a fine outfielder as well. Another one of the big stickers on the club, Bill's bat is smashing the hits all over the field. John Brennan planted himself at third base and grew there. Nothing comes down his way that John cannot handle and the manager's third base worries were over when John took the job.

Phil Sampson was made to order by Manager Peckham. Phil does about everything as it ought to be done in shortstop and he does better than better at the plate. One of the fine fielders in the league and one of the heavy hitters as well, Phil is about as valuable a man as any team could hope to have.

Catching is well taken care of on the Red Sox. First there is Mike Deshler whose good catching is about all any team could want. Mike does even more. He hits like there was no tomorrow. Even Manager Peckham could ask for nothing more than that. But he asked for another catcher just to make sure and along came Gordon Tobey. Gordon is ready to don the mask and get behind the plate at any time and he is also a good outfielder in the bargain.

Besides the outfield material mentioned above, the Red Sox sport John Friborg and Andy Shannon. Both boys have strong arms and are fast fielders so that the Red Sox are well protected in outfield men at all times. Guy Merenda is one of the injured members of the clan as he is out with a bad knee but Guy does his bit for the Sox when he is in form.

Any team with hitters like Ben Dolan, Ed Williams, Phil Sampson, Bill McGrath and Mike Deshler on the roster is not about to be pushed around in any league. These boys have been slugging the ball hard all season and they figure to do it even harder in the second half. If determination means anything, the Red Sox will be the team to beat from here on in. Maybe it might be a good deal to go along with Coach Williams because this club really has it.

THE BEAVERS
Sponsored by Spaulding-McGhee Bookshop

Those Beavers keep gnawing away at the league lead and they never seem to give up. Manager Art Carr is sure that his team will make it to the top. "This club is as good as I have ever had," he explained, "they try hard and they want to improve. When a team has that kind of spirit it is hard to put them down."

The Beavers have three coaches this season. Vann Johnson, Jim Barry and Bob Shannon. Bob is a former member of the Little League as a Red Sox player and has been helping out the Beaver staff in many ways. Both Jim Barry and Vann Johnson are ready to take the stand on behalf of the team. "This team just will not quit even when the breaks go against them," they commented. "If real effort wins games, this team ought to be flying out in front right now."

There is no doubt of the Beaver talent. With boys like Dick Bonfasera behind the plate and smashing the ball hard, the club is well fortified in that spot. Chris Parsons is another long ball hitter who dances around first base like a seasoned veteran. Jim Dobbins does everything well at second base and third base is guarded by Dennis O'Donnell who plugs everything that comes his way like a bottle stopper.

Shortstop is no problem with the Beavers. They have Harold Beard in that position and they also have Al Sampson to take over at any time. Harold is the number one pitcher on the club and Al is so close to him that he might be a shadow. Kevin Pronski is the third member of the pitching staff and Kevin is a real comer. All three boys are accurate tossers and are capable of making it real tough for the opposing batters.

Paul Breeden and Jim Chute are two infielders that jump into any spot where they are needed. These two boys give this team reserve strength and they are handy men to have around.

Garry Beard, Shawn Breen and Steven Polleys make up an outfield combination that would be difficult to improve upon. Jeff Parsons is another outfielder who is a most promising player and will be heard from as he goes along. Frank Zaffina rounds out the outfielders and he often works more than one position in the course of a game. Kevin Pronski is available for garden duty when not on the mound.

The big gun for the Beavers is Cliff Odom, who can catch, play first base and any other position he might be called upon to play. Cliff is a good batter and is rated as one of the finest all-around players in the league.

This is the club that feels it can romp in at first spot on the card. When a team works like Beavers and thinks it can do it, maybe they can and maybe they will.

Star Sports

STAR SPORT SHORTS

Al Falvey, Jr.

There won't be any Winchester Town Team operating this year, but Sachem sport fans won't have to look very far to find the boys in action. Most of the players have signed with another club and will make their presence felt again this year in the Carling League.

John Peckham will do the pitching this year for the Wakefield town team. His brother Joel will also see action on this team. Jeff, the younger of the three brothers, pitched two scoreless innings last week for the Woburn City Club. This team has many Winchesterites playing for it. The biggest show so far for Woburn has been the hitting of Phil Doherty last Sunday afternoon. He blasted two home runs and a single against North Cambridge.

Manager Bob Gibbs has high praise for Doherty. Richard Faieta (WHS 1964) is also expected to see a lot of action for the City Club this year, both on the mound and in the outfield. Still another Sachem is Ron Scherban (WHS 1964), who will handle the duties behind the plate this year. With all four starting, they would comprise almost half the Woburn team.

Roger Farrar, a sophomore this year at Tufts, won his letter this year in lacrosse. Roger had a fine year, was the team's second-leading scorer with 22 points (6 goals, 16 assists). Senior Mike McConnell led with 28 points (2 goals, 26 assists).

Al Malthaner, director of Tufts University's year-round swimming program, conducted a free demonstration and clinic on "Drownproofing" at the Arlington Boys' Club last night, June 9.

Malthaner points out that more than 7,000 people drown each year in the United States, and that 90 percent of these victims could have saved themselves if they had learned the simple, yet revolutionary, concept of personal water safety skills called "Drownproofing."

"Most people who drown," explained Malthaner, who is a resident in town, "do so because for some reason, usually unexpected, they are thrust into water conditions for which they are unprepared. The saving factor is not the perfection of the individual's stroke techniques; rather one's ability to control panic, get sufficient air without gagging or choking, conserve energy and make reasonable progress through the water are the deciding factors."

People who attended the clinic had a chance to test this new method of "Drownproofing."

Suffolk racing secretary Jim Ross has come up with outstanding early nominations for the MassCap on Wednesday, June 23, including the celebrated Gun Bow and his conquerer, Ampose. Gun Bow, winner of three of six events this year and $166,190 this year to go with his $580,100 in 1964, won the rich Metropolitan Mile in his last outing, on Memorial Day at Aqueduct.

Ampose also won last time out, winning the $43,950 Illinois Handicap at Arlington Park on May 22. Ampose had won six of 10 races this year, and his crowning achievement was defeating Gun Bow in the $100,000 Gulfstream Park Handicap on March 27. Gun Bow, in fact, finished third behind Trodano in that one.

"Trainers Eddie Neloy (Gun Bow) and Doug Dodson (Ampose) tell us they're both interested in a rematch of that Gulfstream event," said Ross. "It's a good bet both horses will be at Suffolk for the MassCap."

Ross also reported that Tenacle, winner of the recent Edgemere Handicap at Aqueduct, probably will be in the MassCap along with Hot Dust, who finished second in that event. Hot Dust, by the way, won the Governors Handicap at Suffolk Downs two years ago and shows partiality to the East Boston strip.

Richard Smith On Chilton In Dominican Waters

Fire Control Technician Third Class Richard T. Smith, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard M. Smith of 5 Grassmere Avenue, is currently serving aboard the attack transport USS Chilton, engaged in the joint U. S. operation in the Dominican Republic.

Since U. S. forces have taken part in the operation, Atlantic Fleet ships have evacuated more than 3,000 American citizens and other nationals seeking safety. The evacuees were taken to San Juan, Puerto Rico, where commercial transportation was available.

In cooperation with other U. S. Armed Forces, Navy ships and aircraft have ferried in more than 30 million pounds of food and medical supplies, making it the largest humanitarian effort of U. S. Armed Forces since the Berlin Air Lift of 1948.

S. O. I. News

Our monthly meeting was held this past Monday, June 7th and Venerable Art Dunbar called the meeting to order at 8:30 p.m. Two new members were installed at this meeting and they are John DiSessa and John D'Amore.

The sports committee chairman John Dattilo gave a report of the sports program and also informed the members who wish to bowl this fall to have their names and entrance fee in by July 31st. You may write your name on the registration paper which is posted on the club bulletin board or give your name to the members of the committee.

Richard Penta of the sick committee reported that brother Peter Rania has had an operation and is now at home recuperating.

Scoutmaster Bob Fiore reported that the boy scouts have stopped meeting for the summer months and will start up again in September. He reported that our troop marched in the Memorial Day parade, and also a blind member of our troop marched in the parade route with a brother scout on each side of him. Bob said that sometime near the end of June a planned camping trip will be set up which will be their last get-together until they meet again in September.

Golf league chairman Al Fiorilli said that the golf members are in full swing and that there are 17 new members of the league this year which gives them a total of 34 members.

Art Dunbar told the members that our lodge has the third largest membership in the state, with the Brockton lodge first, and the Weymouth lodge in second place.

At this meeting the appropriation of money for the delegates to the grand convention to defray expenses was approved by the body.

In conjunction with the charity committee there will be a cookout which will be held July 31st here at our quarters. The tickets are not ready at this time but as soon as they are, it will be posted etc.

A representative of the Grand Lodge sports commission thanked our lodge for the use of our quarters for a place where refreshments could be served after the grand lodge bowling contest, which was held in Woburn. He also wished to thank all the members who helped put up the food and set up the tables and chairs etc.

At the conclusion of the meeting, Michael D. Saraco introduced the guest speaker for the evening, Dr. Lawrence M. Quigley, Jr. Dr. Quigley's present appointments include research associate at Tufts Cleft Palate Institute, chief consultant at Yale University Medical School, and dental affiliate at the Forsyth Dental center, Harvard school of dental medicine. He is a present member of the Winchester Board of Health and was chairman of the board in 1964.

Dr. Quigley had the members captivated with his fine talk on speech and speech therapy. He told how he and his associates are working on a speech machine for the scientific evaluation of speaking. He showed color slides on the different patients that they have been working on and helping in their mission trips to the jungles of South America. He showed slides of the cleft palate child patients that were greatly improved with the help of these fine doctors in their mission work.

We enjoyed your talk very much Dr. Quigley and we hope that you will again come to visit our lodge.

Desjarlais

enrollment has almost tripled. Mr. Desjarlais also saw the adult education program grow both in number and diversity of courses and in the number and enthusiasm of folks attending.

It was Mr. Desjarlais in his role as assistant superintendent who initiated procedures for Winchester to participate in the receiving of federal funds. The two laws under which Winchester was declared eligible were the National Defense Education Act for improving instruction in science, language, mathematics, and guidance and Public Law 874 dealing with impacted areas. A survey of the town made in the fall of 1959 showed that more than 3 per cent of the public school enrollment were children of federal employees and therefore the town was eligible for assistance.

As assistant superintendent, Mr. Desjarlais has played a prominent part in the school building program. He acted as secretary of the Lynch Building Committee, assisted in the preparation of the equipment specifications for Lynch and in the planning of educational specifications for the secondary school building program and for the Tufts Road Elementary School.

Last Spring Mr. Desjarlais attended the centennial convention of the American Association of School Superintendents and brought back three concepts now inherent in modern school construction: "flexibility, convertibility, and expandability." He studied over 300 architectural displays of schools now being built and discovered that the three important characteristics are being incorporated into these new buildings at little or no extra cost.

Since 1959, Mr. Desjarlais has worked to strengthen instruction through the wider and more effective use of audio-visual materials and equipment. He established the curriculum laboratory. His duties included the overseeing of bus transportation, the cafeteria program, and budget preparation.

RICHARD E. DESJARLAIS

A native of Chicopee, Mr. Desjarlais is a graduate of the University of Massachusetts, class of 1950, and received his master's degree in public school administration in 1951 from the same institution. He is presently engaged in working toward the completion of the doctoral program at Boston University.

The Desjarlais family—Dick, his wife Marcia, and their three children Pamela, 9, Wendy, 8, and Jeffrey, 3, have resided at 47 Myrtle Terrace here in Winchester and have mixed feelings at leaving town.

Mr. Desjarlais said, "The Town of Winchester has come to mean many things to Mrs. Desjarlais and me during the past six years, and for this reason we leave with mixed feelings. My close associations with Dr. Gilson, School Committee members, other town officials, teachers, principals, and with the highly competent central office staff will not easily be forgotten. We have been active in church and community affairs and we shall take with us many fond memories of this fine community and of the friendships and loyalties we have established."

The school committee had mixed feelings too. Mrs. Barbara Walsh expressed it this way: "Joy for you, Dick, and tears for us."

Mrs. Bernadette Grenzeback, chairman of the school committee, extended best wishes to Mr. Desjarlais for continued success in his professional career.

Sidewalk Art Show Is Colorful Success

Under cheerfully sunny skies last Saturday the Winchester Art Association held its annual Sidewalk Show along the fence at Manchester Field. By 10 a.m. local artists, both amateur and professional, and Winchester schoolchildren had hung the fence with a bright assortment of gayly colored pictures.

In all, there were better than 300 works on display. Some 250 pictures by 47 adults included works in virtually every artistic medium. In addition, there were 70 children's entries. The Art Association was particularly encouraged by the fact that 37 of the adult exhibitors are Winchester residents, good evidence of the growing interest in creative arts in town.

A steady flow of visitors during the day purchased a number of excellent pictures. As a result, the show was successful financially as well as aesthetically. Association president James N. Jones announced that the committee was able to meet expenses and add a modest sum to the Art Association's scholarship fund.

Assisting spectators and exhibitors throughout the day were some 30 hosts and hostesses with the able leadership of Mrs. A. L. Kimball and her co-chairman Mrs. S. Cairncross. Decked out in festive straw hats they moved through the holiday throng distributing hooks and string, answering questions, and recording sales.

They included: Russell Mann, Mrs. B. P. Cantrell, Mrs. W. O'Malley, Mrs. R. H. Spencer, Mrs. Robinson Whitten, Mrs. John Tobey, Miss Alta Merritt, Mrs. R. N. Watts, Mrs. Forest Knapp, Mrs. Kenneth Hall.

Mrs. Joseph Vick Roy, Mrs. L. J. McPeake, Mrs. E. O. Dietrich, Mr .and Mrs. W. Jeffery, Mrs. F. D. Hawkins, Mrs. C. R. Foote, Mrs. Guy Livingstone, Mrs. A. Mattison, Mrs. W. D. Irving, Mrs. R. E. Johnson, Mrs. Norman Storer, Mrs. Ralph Jacobs, Dr. and Mrs. Bonneville, Miss Dorothy Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Govoni, Miss Kathy Lopez, and Mrs. Eijnar Bratt.

The Sidewalk Show committee was under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Visconti, and included Mr. and Mrs. B. Stites, Mrs. R. Detra, Mrs. W. Howard, Mr. and Mrs. J. Lambeck, Mr. and Mrs. R. Watts, Mrs. C. Foote, and Mrs. A. L. Kimball.

The past Sunday again had 120 Cap Leaguers playing on the four diamonds at West Side field.

Applications for free tickets to the Red Sox game and round trip bus ride will be distributed for Saturday, June 26, for all members, coaches and umpires. These applications must be signed by the parents and returned by June 19.

The busses for the Red Sox game will meet at Ginn Field at 1:00 p.m. on June 26. Cap Leaguers must wear their caps and assemble by teams. In order to be eligible for the trip, the boys should return the envelopes with the $2.00 contribution.

The buses will have adequate adult supervision for the boys but Little League is not assuming any liability. The Cap League is grateful to the Red Sox management for allowing the boys to see the game on June 26.

Regular games are scheduled at Ginn and West Side for June 12 and 13 at 1:30 p.m.

Military Academy Appointments - '66

Senator Edward M. Kennedy today advised that he will have appointments to the Military Academy, Air Force Academy, Naval Academy and the Merchant Marine Academy for the class entering in June 1966.

The United States Civil Service Commission will conduct a written examination on Monday, July 12, 1965, for young men between the ages of 17-22, who are interested in being considered for these appointments to the academies.

The examination consists of two aptitude tests and a subject-matter test. The vocabulary and reading comprehension questions measure verbal intelligence of a high type that shows a high degree of relationship to success in scholastic situations. The purpose of the examination is to provide an objective testing method which will aid Senator Kennedy in the selection of appointees to the four academies.

Those young men who are interested in these appointments and who do not already have applications on file with Senator Kennedy should write to him at the Senate Office Building, Washington, D. C., requesting application forms in order that they may compete in the July examination.

EASEL—Y, National's new ring binder with instant easel. Looks and carries like a ring book—use it as an easel. It's the perfect book for sales presentations. Priced at $4.00-$5.00 at the Winchester Star.

It's Not an Air Raid. It's The Fire Chief

A new electronic combination siren and loudspeaker has been installed on the car of Chief Frank Amico of the Winchester Fire Department.

When first tested on Tuesday afternoon the device scared people within a few blocks range, but it is in fact a very effective one, welcomed by the department.

Called a "penetrating" siren, it sends 90% of its sound directly ahead instead of distributing it all around the point of origin. It is multi-purpose and Chief Amico can also receive and send on it as a strong P.A. amplifier.

It was purchased to replace the former chief's car 25-year-old siren and is expected to be much more reliable as well as easier to maintain, using less battery power.

Graduation

they don't. But I hope that Winchester keeps in mind that buildings are important to attract and hold the kind of professional leaders that we want and need to direct our young people, if Winchester standards are to be maintained."

After a pause, Mr. Niblock called for a moment of silence in honor of "a very dear friend of the Winchester schools." He referred to Dana J. Kelly, former school committeman and proponent of good education for Winchester, who died last week.

Before concluding his remarks, Mr. Niblock announced the retirement of Miss Elizabeth Livingstone, high school librarian. He commended her for her dedication and service of 20 years to the school, and added that she knew more students than any teacher did.

The scholastic awards that had been won by members of the class were then presented by Mr. Niblock.

Two honorary National Honor Society Scholarships carrying no stipend were made in recognition of outstanding academic achievement and went to Brenda Baker and Margery Hickey.

The National Honor Society members and Advanced Placement students were noted on the program by asterisks.

Mentioned for Honors work in U. S. History were Brenda Baker, Louis Briasco, Stephen Butterfield, Joyce Clark, Kevin Collins, Theodore Cook, Gerald Cullen, Scott Cunningham, Stephen Hoffman, Russell Osgood, Lawrence O'Toole, Nancy Robinson, and Karen Trump.

The Elizabeth L. Naven Award to the Noonan School graduate exemplifying the qualities of Miss Naven, a former school teacher at Noonan, who "gave much of herself and her money" in helping students was presented to Linda Nelson.

The Winchester Art Association sponsored an award that was received by Beverly Robbins for her excellence in the field of art.

The Daughters of the American Revolution Good Citizen Award was presented to Lee Dresser.

Three awards were grouped together and presented to one girl all at once to save her several walks to the platform. The National Merit Scholarship for outstanding performance and promise was awarded to Brenda Baker. She also received the Bausch and Lomb Honorary Science Award and a medal and check from the Mass. Association of Mathematics Leagues.

A Bausch and Lomb Honorary Science Award also was presented to Lawrence O'Toole.

The Winchester Jaycee-ettes Leadership Award, for outstanding leadership, excellence of character, scholastic achievement and service to school and community went to Margery Hickey.

Finalists in the Merit Scholarship competition were cited: Brenda Baker (winner), Margery Hickey, Garth Nelson, and Richard Wakefield. Letters of commendation were received by Louis Briasco, Joyce Clark, Theodore Cook, Hugh Fisher, Stephen Gifford, Beth Gilpatric, Paula Haley, Joseph Lynch, Russell Osgood, Nancy Robinson, Stephen Smith, Timothy Smith, Karen Trump, and Barry Weeks.

The William Danforth Book Award for outstanding qualities of leadership went to John Stavros and Stephen Butterfield.

Certificates designated as "School Spirit" Awards were presented to Joseph P. Lynch, student council president, and John Stavros, class president.

A new scholarship was awarded this year. It was made available through the generosity of Dr. Joseph B. Santo of the Class of 1947 in memory of Miss Helen Bronson, head of the business department at the high school and now retired. Dr. Santo owes a great deal of his success to Miss Bronson's encouragement. Preference is given a business or secretarial student. This year's winner is Paula Burton.

The Jere A. Downs Trust and Forrest G. Brackett Fund Awards were presented by Mrs. Thomas D. Walsh of the Winchester School Committee. The recipients, selected by the Winchester Scholarship Foundation, must have been accepted at an institution of higher learning, must have need of financial help, and must be of good character. Five students shared the Downs award: Barbara Burns, John Burrows, Barbara Jean Gilberti, Kathleen McCabe, and Bernard Tuttle. The Forrest G. Bracket Fund Scholarship is presented to a student selected on the basis of financial need, character, scholarship, and all around sportsmanship. Mrs. Walsh presented it to Rita Gramzow.

The Winchester Scholarship Foundation Awards were announced by Mrs. Robert G. Ingraham, Jr., chairman of the scholarship committee of the foundation. She noted that this is the twentieth year that these scholarships have been given and thanked all the townspeople who had aided in the effort.

The following students were called forward to receive the awards from the Foundation: James Barrow, John Bees, Barbara Brotherston, Barbara Bund, who received the Laurence Owen Award; Janis Carucci, the Rotary Award; Judith Carucci, the Women's Lodge of the Sons of Italy; Ronald Fiore, the Rotary Award; Edward Galvin; Christine Komp; Roberta Lee who received the Patricia Eberle Greene Award; David Mayer, the Goff Award; Sally Mullare, the Kiwanis Award; Priscilla Phelan; Margaret Santo; and Cynthia Saunders.

Honor awards without stipend were presented by the Foundation to the two highest ranking girls and the two highest ranking boys in the class. Mr. Niblock presented the certificates to Brenda Baker, Margery Hickey, Eric Natwig, and Joseph Lynch.

The diplomas were presented individually by Mrs. Walsh. The process was speeded up by eliminating applause for individuals, except for a few scattered handclaps here and there. Mr. Niblock made one exception. He stopped to congratulate and introduce to the audience Paivi Salovuori, this year's exchange student from Finland.

The Rev. James R. Scroggs closed the ceremony with benediction and urged the Class of 1965 to "render no man evil for evil" and to "love and serve the Lord."

Class officers were John Stavros, president; Lee Dresser, vice president; Mary Ford, secretary; and David Swanson, treasurer.

A complete list of the 1965 graduates appears on page 5B.

Gemini

After several hours of medical examinations the astronauts shaved, showered and had dinner with Adm. McCormick and his staff.

The astronauts enjoyed their first full meal in over a million miles and four days of space travel: steak smothered in onions and mushrooms, with lemon chiffon pie for dessert.

Two other Winchester residents were known to have participated in the recovery operation. Lt. Harold H. McKinley, Jr., formerly of 11 Elmwood Avenue here and now of Portsmouth, R. I., was serving as an operations officer on the staff aboard the U.S.S. Barry, one of four destroyers assigned to the mission.

On another destroyer with the recovery force, the U.S.S. Hawkins, William T. McLaughlin, son of Mr. and Mrs. James McLaughlin of 2 Ravenscroft Road, a third class midshipman in the Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps at the University of Pennsylvania and a sophomore there, was fortunate enough to be on his summer cruise with the recovery unit at this particular time.

In all, 10,300 men and 26 naval ships were on station on four fronts around the world to help astronauts James McDivitt and Edward White return safely.

Shouldn't Happen To A Dog

INDIGNITIES SUFFERED to stay man's best friend are often overpowering. A four-legged Canterbury Road resident with owner Bill Blackwood was only one of 418 local dogs who were inoculated against rabies Saturday in a clinic the Board of Health deemed a "huge success." Owners who missed it will have to go to their own vets or wait till next year. Leonard Fudge is handling and Dr. William Johnassen applying the needle.

Historical Soc. Reveals Treasures

On June 3 at Washington School auditorium, the third-grade pupils were given a treat that Winchester as a whole has not been able to enjoy.

Mrs. William Davis, secretary of the Winchester Historical Society, visited the youngsters to show them some priceless antiques that are stored in the attic of the Winchester library because there is no safe place to exhibit them.

The youngsters have been studying the history of Winchester under their teacher, Mrs. Stanley Osgood.

One of the youngsters, Prudence Barker, selected three items she liked best: an oil painting of Winchester Center in 1855, a bar of soap belonging to Col. Winchester and made in 1845, and an Indian doll that had belonged to a squaw of Chief Sitting Bull. The doll is 125 years old.

Gov. Volpe Names Penner To Study Commission On Mass. Birth Control Law

On the same day last week that the U. S. Supreme Court struck down as unconstitutional an 86-year-old Connecticut law banning the dissemination of information relative to birth control measures and the use of contraceptives, here in Massachusetts Governor Volpe announced the appointment of a distinguished 21-member commission—which included a prominent local religious leader—to survey the whole birth control law question and to recommend legislative changes in the Commonwealth's archaic birth control law.

One significant member appointed to the important but temporary special study commission due to report back to the Governor and Legislature on a currently proposed bill by July 7, was the Rev. Dr. Albert J. Penner of 329 Highland Avenue, 65-year-old head of the Bay State's oldest and largest Protestant denomination.

REV. ALBERT J. PENNER

Dr. Penner, president of the 570-church Massachusetts Congregational Christian Conference, is widely known across the nation for his work in religion. He is known to favor essentially what is being proposed in the birth control bill, as he appeared at the Legislative committee hearing to speak for it recently.

House Bill Number 1401 would allow the dissemination of information by registered physicians and pharmacists on "drugs or articles intended for the prevention of pregnancy or conception and to furnishing of information as to where such materials may be legally obtained." At present, the sale—but not the use of—contraceptives is illegal in the Commonwealth and about 19 other states.

The Rev. Penner, who has already attended the first three meetings of the special commission to study the state birth control law, also speaks as president of the 11-denomination Massachusetts Council of Churches—which represents some 1800 churches with a combined memership of 500,000 parishioners in the state—and which includes such strong New England Protestant churches as the Congregational, Baptist, Methodist, Episcopalian, Unitarian - Universalist, United Presbyterian, Friends (Quaker), and Lutheran (Augustana), Disciples of Christ, Church of the Brethren, and Church of New Jerusalem.

While the birth control state laws are essentially from religious and church origins; surprisingly, much of the impetus toward their repeal in many states comes from churches or church-oriented groups.

The nation's ruling court, in a 7-2 historic ruling, said the Connecticut law—which went farther than any of the surviving blue laws on the subject in that it made the use as well as the sale, distribution or advertisement of contraceptives a criminal offense—violated a marital "right of privacy older than the Bill of Rights."

Justice William O. Douglas said the statute was "repulsive to the notions of privacy surrounding the marriage relationship," and termed them uncommonly silly to begin with.

Dissenting Justices Hugo L. Black and Potter Stewart agreed the law was repugnant, but said remedy should come through state legislatures rather than through the courts.

Attorney General Names Winchester In State Suit On Milk Price Fixing

Winchester was among 34 Eastern Massachusetts cities and towns, the Commonwealth and state agencies, named in a civil suit filed recently by Attorney General Edward W. Brooke, against three major distributors of milk to recover triple damages for allegedly conspiring to fix milk prices and overcharge government agencies.

Named in the civil action were H. P. Hood & Sons, Inc., United Farmers of New England Inc., and National Dairy Products Corp., Whiting Milk Co. Inc., was named as co-conspirator.

The suit filed in U. S. District Court by the State Attorney General on Monday, June 7, alleges that the major milk distributors conspired to "raise, fix and maintain" milk prices by "illegally allocating to themselves the business of selling milk" to state and municipal agencies by allegedly eliminating free competition and free and open bidding on milk contracts through unlawful agreements, thus causing state agencies and cities and towns to pay higher prices.

The violations of anti-trust laws, and interstate trade and commerce laws allegedly occurred between 1956 and 1959.

"We have no evidence that there is any conspiracy continuing at this time," Special Assistant Attorney General Jay L. Fialkow, who is handling the anti-trust suit with Bernard I. Kaplan, told the Star on Monday.

Initial court action against the milk distributors began with federal government action in U. S. District Court in Boston in 1962. Hood and United Farmers pleaded guilty to conspiracy charges in June, 1964.

Somerville Boy Injured At Beach Gang Beating; Police On Alert Status

A 17-year-old Somerville youth was discharged from the Winchester Hospital yesterday morning after being severely beaten and hospitalized last Saturday night in a gang fight of some 50 Somerville and Medford youths at the M.D.C.'s Sandy Beach property in Winchester.

Winchester Police, first to arrive at the gang fight scene, called for M.D.C. and Medford Police aid in breaking up the melee. An anticipated "return bout," either at Sandy Beach or Dilboy Field in Somerville, was broken up by fast acting M.D.C. Middlesex Fells Division police at Dilboy Field on Tuesday night.

Meanwhile, Winchester Police Chief Joseph J. Derro said yesterday the local department was prepared to meet any emergency situations that might arise and he has ordered his cruisers equipped with extra two-foot long billy clubs and riot control protective helmets for his officers' use should any new occurrences of group incidents crop up in the Winchester area, and he has also given certain specific instructions to officers.

"Although I don't expect any problems in Winchester outside the Sandy Beach area this summer—and I hope we don't have any there," Chief Derro stated yesterday, "nevertheless, I very strongly believe in preventive medicine."

Chief Derro didn't rule out the possibility that a Hampton Beach type mass teenage rumble could occur anywhere in the state during the summertime—even on a smaller scale at Sandy Beach if it isn't kept well patrolled. He added that most Winchester youth stay away from the Sandy Beach area because of the incidents that occur there.

The Chief suggested that the M.D.C. might enforce its reservation rules a little more strictly at times. M.D.C. beaches are supposed to be closed at 9 p.m., and all cars are supposed to be off M.D.C. reservations—including parking lots—by midnight.

Chief Derro has pledged Winchester's support and aid to M.D.C. police units if they are needed at the Sandy Beach area, but the policing task is primarily the responsibility of the Metropolitan police, he said.

The Middlesex Fells division of the M.D.C. prevented a possible rumble between 50 teenagers from Somerville and Medford at Dilboy Field Tuesday night which, apparently, was planned to revenge the Sandy Beach beating and hospitalization of Michael Meserve, 17, of 37 Pritchard Avenue in Somerville. After dispersing the gathering youths at about 7 p.m. police discovered an assortment of lethal arsenal items: 5 iron bars, a hunting knife, a hatchet, numerous clubs and a blackjack.

On Saturday night, June 12, at about 11 p.m., Lieutenant John McHugh at headquarters dispatched Officers Robert Hamilton and Erwin Nurnberger to Sandy Beach after an informant told police a shooting had occurred there.

When the two local officers arrived at the beach parking lot they saw what appeared to be a gang fight in progress. Girls were screaming and there was considerable yelling and noise throughout the parking area.

They spotted Michael Meserve lying on the ground and apparently seriously injured. After making the youth as comfortable as possible, Officer Nurnberger radioed headquarters and asked for the ambulance and for M.D.C. and Medford police aid to help break up the fracas.

Winchester Officers John Mawn and Joseph Amico arrived in the ambulance and helped transport the injured youth to the hospital where he was admitted and treated for multiple contusions and abrasions.

Meanwhile, Officers Hamilton and Nurnberger began stopping automobiles as the operators attempted to leave the scene by driving over the curbs and grass plots to get to the street and away from police aprehension.

The two officers were able to get registration numbers and papers from about a half dozen different youths, and these identifications were turned over to the M.D.C. police, who were the continuing investigators.

When the local police officers left the scene it was quiet, and the M.D.C. police were clearing the area of all remaining vehicles parked there.

There Is Still Some School Building In Winchester's Future

"The secondary junior and senior high school space problem (and the need to build more educational piant faciiities) has not simply gone away after the Town Meeting rejected the Turkey Ridge high school proposal," Austin Broadhurst, chairman of the Permanent Building Committee's subcommittee on secondary school building, said Tuesday when asked what the committee might do over the summer in the wake of the rejected recommended solution.

Scholarship Drive $6,000 Under Goal

The Winchester Scholarship Foundation announces this week that it is $6,000 short of its desired goal of $20,000.

John Dolan, chairman of the finance committee, explained that public response has been slow, and that individual bequests are greatly in arrears.

"The Foundation awarded 18 scholarships at the Winchester High School graduation exercises June 6," explained Mr. Dolan. The money for these scholarships, as well as the money for maintenance of previous scholarships has already been allocated.

Winning Farm Camp Given To Boys Club

At the annual meeting of the Winning Home, Inc., the board of incorporators voted to give exclusive use of the Winning Farm camp to the Boys' Club of Woburn. This will become effective in September of 1965.

The Boys' Club intends to provide camping experiences for all youths in Lexington, Winchester and Woburn. Camp periods will be divided to accommodate both girls and boys. It will not be necessary for campers to be members of the Boys' Club.

During this summer, the Boys' Club will use half of the Winning Farm property to conduct its boys' day camp program. The girls' day camp will be conducted in Billerica. To date, over 100 children are registered for the day camp programs.

Chairman of the camping committee, Charles Murphy, and Thomas Martin, president of the Winning Home, Inc., in conjunction with the staff and board members of the Boys' Club, conducted a survey of the three communities to determine a need for a camping experience. It was discovered that there are many hundred youths in this area who otherwise would never be able to afford this experience unless a camp was available with a very low fee.

The Boys' Club, whose basic aims and philosophy is to serve all youths, particularly the needy, has already begun to finance the cost of the operation.

The capacity of the camp at the present time is approximately 60. This capacity is expected to double within the next two years so that all children will have the opportunity to attend.

Applications for junior and senior counselors may be picked up at the Boys' Club in Woburn.

Representatives of the Winning Home, Inc., met with Boys' Club President Thomas Maguire and executive director, "Bud" McFadden, for a review of the proposed camping program and the acceptance of the camp property. A formal presentation will be held in the fall. The camp is located on Lexington Street.

The Winchester Rotary has been the greatest booster of the camp over the past 15 years. Many hours of labor and money have been invested in the camp. The existing campers' cottages are named in memory of Winchester Rotarians.

52-year-old Latvian Immigrant Here Gets Northeastern Degree

A 52-year-old Winchester man who fled Latvia in a rowboat with his family during World War II will be among some 2,500 receiving Northeastern University degrees on Sunday, June 20.

He is Adolph R. Gailitis of 104 Wendell Street, who will be receiving his second degree, the bachelor of science degree in industrial technology.

The Latvian native, who is chief development engineer for Watts Regulator Company, Lawrence, received a bachelor of science degree in mechanical engineering from the Riga, Latvia, Technical College in June, 1939, two and a half months before the war broke out.

The Gailitis family slipped out of Latvia in an 18-foot rowboat on a dark night in October, 1944, as the Red Army forced the Germans to abandon the Baltic states.

Huddled in the boat while their father and mother rowed were the couple's children, Roland, 8; Ilga, 4; and Edith, 2.

Far out in the Baltic on a cold, rainy day, the soaken refugees were picked up by a Swedish destroyer.

The Gailitises remained in Sweden until May, 1948. After fruitless efforts to gain legal visa to emigrate to America, they and several other Latvian families purchased an aged 63-foot ketch for $12,000.

Secretly, on May 20, 1948, the 29 Latvians, including 15 men, seven women and seven children, slipped out into the Baltic for the United States.

Rough weather hit soon afterward and after an unpleasant trip, they reached Dover, England, where they remained for 11 days to await calmer weather.

Then, with the vast expanse of the Atlantic Ocean and its potential perils before them, they headed the old craft's bow westward in the direction of America.

After three storms, numerous delaying calms, hunger, thirst and the boredom of life on the endless sea, the overjoyed band of voyagers sighted the tip of Cape Cod as did the Pilgrims more than 300 years before.

Newspaper headlines hailed their miraculous crossing and a clamor for their legal acceptance under the immigration quota began.

After several month's detention by immigration authorities, they were admitted to the country under the provisions of a bill introduced in the House by the late President John F. Kennedy, then a Massachu-

Smith Honor Degree To Dr. Marian Fielding, Physician-Scientist

Dr. Marian Ropes Fielding of 12 Lawrence Street, associate clinical professor in medicine at Harvard Medical School and a specialist physician in rheumatic diseases at Massachusetts General Hospital, was awarded an honorary doctor of science degree at the Smith College commencement exercises on Sunday, June 6.

In the bestowing of the honorary degree upon Mrs. Andrew Fielding, the citation to Dr. Ropes read by Thomas Mendenhall, president of Smith College said:

"The physician-scientist is to medicine what the scholar-teacher is to the undergraduate college: the ideal combination which every college seeks and the only permanent counterpoise to the parochialism of the specialist. Your scientifice studies in the nature of human joint fluid have significantly contributed to the diagnosis of articular diseases. At the Harvard Medical School generations of students have shared something of the excitement of your research, while your patients have cause to bless the compassionate understanding which brought you the Elizabeth Blackwell award as the outstanding woman physician. In founding this college, Sophia Smith hoped that higher education for women would incalculably enlarge their power for good. Few graduates have fulfilled these hopes more beneficently for their fellow man."

Dr. Ropes last year was elected the first woman president of the 29-year-old American Rheumatism Association, which has over 1,500 physician members throughout the United States. Joining the association in 1940, she served on many committees before becoming second vice president in 1951 and first vice president and president-elect in 1962.

Dr. Ropes is well known for having developed diagnostic criteria in the field of rheumatic diseases and for her studies on joint fluid.

A graduate of Smith College, class of 1924, Dr. Ropes received an M.S. degree from Massachusetts Institute of Technology and received her medical degree from Johns Hopkins University Medical School in 1931. Her honor societies include Phi Beta Kappa and Alpha Omega Alpha.

She has been associated with the Massachusetts General Hospital since 1932, and with Harvard Medical School since 1935. In 1942 she received her certification by the American Board of Internal Medicine.

Town Notes State Duplicate Bills On Motor Excise

Among some 1,700 fourth commitment motor vehicle excise tax bills mailed from Winchester on Monday, June 14, there were many "duplicate billings," according to Town Treasurer, Marguerite Troop who has asked that local car owners bear with the inconvenience but urges that they not simply ignore the bills as something not to pay any attention too.

Miss Troop said yesterday that many persons who are calling the Town Treasurer's office to complain about the second billing and about spelling and identification number errors on the bills, apparently do not understand that the billing is handled entirely by the Registry of Motor Vehicles in Boston, on computers, and that the errors stem from those offices and not locally.

"The bills are brought to Winchester from the Registry," Miss Troop said, "and they are simply mailed here."

Miss Troop recommended that persons who have any questions about their motor vehicle excise tax bills should either call or return mail the bill with a note on it to the Winchester Board of Assessors to have the problem corrected.

Miss Troop warned that car owners not simply ignore the incorrect bills, however, because they are on the town's books as current billing and require due collection according to the processes of law as set up by statute.

3 Veterans Added To Police Roster

Three new names were added to the roster of the permanent appointments to the Winchester Police force last week, making that number now total 36.

The new men are Joseph N. Perritano of 88 Swanton Street, appointed effective June 8; Donald F. Jackson of 72 Irving Street, June 9; and Joseph J. Amico of 18

More Money At Work In Middlesex County

There is a treasure trove of money on tap in Middlesex County, available for the operational needs of business firms and of the local economy in general.

The volume of money in circulation is greater than it has been for a long time. Its size is indicated by the amount on deposit in commercial and savings banks and by the flow of that money as it is put back into the economic stream in the form of loans to individuals and to businesses.

The funds on deposit in Middlesex County banks, as of the end of the last fiscal year, amounted to $2,024,965,000, as against the total two years ago of $1,796,124,000.

The findings are by the Federal Reserve System, which has just issued its biennial report on the nation's money distribution, following a survey of all the banks in the country.

Locally, the amount of money in bank accounts was at the rate of $1,557 per resident. It compares with $1,353 per person in the United States.

To the business community, the importance of substantial amounts on deposit in local banks, commercial banks in particular, is that these banks may extend loans up to about five times their required reserves.

The volume of this checkbook money and, therefore, the amount available for financial services to business, agriculture and consumers, is a major factor, the Federal Reserve notes, in determining how well the economy performs.

The demand for bank credit comes from many directions. Consumers want to borrow in order to buy a car or a house, farmers want to borrow to buy seed or tractors, business men need money to enlarge their stock in trade or to expand their factories.

The report shows that the $2,024,965,000 in Middlesex County banks at the year-end consisted chiefly of time deposits (savings accounts) of $1,422,069,000 and of $487,347,000 in demand deposits (checking accounts) of individuals, partnerships and corporations.

In addition to this total there was an undetermined amount of other money in local circulation. This was the cash in the vaults and cash registers of business concerns and the pocket money that people carry around for their current needs.

Middlesex County's 5,990 service establishments had total receipts of $240.5 million in 1963, an increase of 71 percent from 1958, according to a 1963 report of business by the bureau of the census, U.S. Department of Commerce. The last previous census of business covered operations during 1958.

The service trades in the census of business included those providing: personal services to individuals; miscellaneous business services; auto repair and other auto services; and other repair services. Also included were motion picture production and distribution businesses; motion picture theatres; other amusement and recreation services; and hotels and motels.

In the county there were 2,875 personal service establishments reporting 1963 receipts of $63.0 million. Among the other selected services included in the census were: auto repair shops with receipts of $28.7 million; motion picture theatres with receipts of $5.8 million; other amusement, recreation services with receipts of $12.1 million; and hotels, motels, camps with receipts of $11.8 million.

The selected service trade establishments in the county employed 19,512 persons (exclusive of proprietors) and had a payroll for the year of $81.5 million. The state as a whole included 29,383 establishments with receipts of $1,188.0 million.

The bureau of census report: selected services, Massachusetts, 1963 census of business, from which these data are taken, may be purchased from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D.C. 204-02 and at U.S. Dept. of Commerce Field Offices for 55c.

Modern Postal Installation At N. Y. World's Fair

Postmaster Thomas J. Gilgun today invited residents of Winchester, Mass. 01890 to visit the special post office and exhibit at the New York World's Fair.

Highlight of the display is the nation's most famous postal error, the 1918 twenty-four-cent airmail stamp with the up-side-down mail plane, the postmaster said.

In addition to original die proofs of the "mistake" and other philatelic rarities connected with the airmail invert, the post office features an exhibit on the development of the John F. Kennedy Memorial Stamp, and a special branch of the Post Office Department's Philatelic Sales Agency, offering a complete stock of all commemorative issues now available.

Visitors to the modern postal installation will receive a free commemorative cachet envelope picturing the post office.

The most up-to-date-postal equipment in use, and several experimental models, are installed in the World's Fair Post Office. One mechanism mechanically places letters on their long end, spots the stamp and, if necessary, flips the envelopes so that they are in the proper position and then cancels them. Another device over 70 feet long, contains 12 stations from which postal clerks direct letters into nearly 300 bins as they separate the mail for speedy delivery.

The World's Fair Post Office processes approximately 250,000 pieces of mail each day. Visitors are able to see all operations from a ramp which circles the work area. A tape recorded commentary explains the action.

Twenty-one mail boxes from every area of the world line the entrance walk.

Metal desk organizers—Excellent for file folders. Priced at $5.85 at the Winchester Star.

Doctors Pushing For Immunization

Winchester members are taking part in the Middlesext East District Society campaign to make people aware of the great need for protection against four ancient afflictions of mankind, the infectious diseases tetanus, (lockjaw), diphtheria, whooping cough, and polio.

The society has become concerned because immunization against these diseases has fallen to low levels in many population groups in this area as well as in the U.S. as a whole. Even though extremely effective and reliable vaccines are available, too many people have neglected to obtain this protection for themselves and their children because "So few cases of these diseases occur now" they say.

But this is all the more reason to be immunized. When there were many cases of diphtheria and whooping cough, a segment of the population received natural protection against these diseases by coming into frequent contact with the germs without contracting the disease. With fewer cases there is much less likelihood for such natural protection and artificial means to protect the population must be used instead.

Recent surveys throughout the United States reveal that millions of persons - infants, pre-school and school children, and adults - are not adequately protected.

Surveys conducted in Massachusetts reveal a picture similar to that found nationally. Pre-school children are not getting protection early enough in life and in too many instances not until they enter school. This means that during their pre-school years there is every danger that an outbreak of one or more of these diseases may easily occur.

All that is necessary is that the germ come in contact with one susceptible child who has not had immunizations. The result - within a short time a number of new cases will appear in a block, perhaps spreading to a neighborhood where people are not immunized, then through a community and even a whole geographic region. It must be remembered that diphtheria and whooping cough are particularly serious in unimmunized infants and children under five years of age, and most deaths from these diseases occur in this age group.

Surveys also show that adults who have not served in the armed services, and women in particular are not protected against tetanus. Although tetanus does not spread from person to person, it is a disease which results in severe complications and is very often fatal when it occurs in an unimmunized infant, child, or adut. Tetanus is caused by a germ that may get into any cut, wound or opening in the skin, often no even considered serious enough to call a doctor. Unfortunately, signs of the disease may not appear until days after the wound has healed.

In recent months the American Medical Association has launched a strong educational campaign to promote immunization against tetanus. The physician is being urged to see that all his patients are protected and the general public is being urged to seek this immunization. The federal government also is concerned about tetanus, diphtheria, whooping cough and polio.

Under the late President Kennedy, legislature was passed by Congress to assist states in conducting intensive immunization programs against these dsieases. The Massachusetts Department of Public Health is participating in this program to raise immunization levels in Massachusetts communities and once raised, to keep them there in years to come.

Editorials:

No Hampton Beach Here

Quick Winchester Police action last Saturday night probably stopped in time what might have developed into a real—albeit somewhat smaller scale—Hampton Beach episode right here at Winchester's Sandy Beach area. And M.D.C. Police Tuesday night stymied a similar pending rumble at Dilboy Field in Somerville—stemming from the original gang fight here. While the youths involved were not from Winchester, it should be made clear to Winchester people that this quiet area might appear attractive to out of town toughs bent on having a rumpus, and that the only way to effectively prevent this from becoming a commonplace event in this vicinity is for police to be able to squelch them before they start enough times so that they are forced to pick other fighting grounds if fight they must.

Winchester is fortunate in that when there is outside threat, the town sticks together. This is true in many instances here where local police have been able to nab housebreakers because attentive neighbors or passersby have cared enough about the town and people living in it to call the police and have someone check out suspicious circumstances.

The dangers to the town are not always applicable to the homes, though. It's pretty brazen when someone can steal an automobile right out of a center car dealer's lot, or shoot a B-B gun from a passing car at someone waiting for a bus, or throw things through car windows at drivers. But these are mild compared to what could happen here if some of these wild characters who think they can get away with anything find this a choice spot to frequent.

The police cannot always do everything alone to protect others. Sometimes it is necessary for Mr. Citizen to do his share and help out; regardless of whether this means being the one to call the police to a suspicious going on, or whether it means calling for reinforcements to aid if a policeman is outnumbered and is having a difficult time with a situation; and even when it means standing up and being counted as a witness in a crime.

Chief Derro has issued special equipment for his cruisers and special instructions to his officers in the handling of any gang style or other problems that might crop up here in Winchester this summer. While he says he doesn't "expect" any trouble here, he is wisely not waiting to find it happen before he does something about the possibility as preventive medicine.

While the Star does not wish to appear to overemphasize the magnitude or seriousness of what could have unfolded in Winchester last Saturday night; one thing should be clear: the time to stop such goings on is right at the beginning. And, while we would not wish to urge too extreme police measures, we would suggest the strongest possible action within reason to adequately, effectively and quickly put down any disturbances here this summer.

I And Thou For Peace On Earth

The Jewish religion's foremost theologian and philosopher, Dr. Martin Buber, died Sunday in Israel at the age of 87. While neither the man nor his works may be well known here, his ability to describe one problem among modern people in this increasingly complex world should not be lost or forgotten, and indeed, offers some substantial food for thought.

Buber describes man in his Theory of Relationship philosophy as a relative being. He wrote in "I and Thou" that man is engaged in a dialogue with God, in which man is "I" and God is "Thou." But most men live in an "I-It" relationship with the universe, which depletes it of meaning, he wrote. Only when man begins to see God as "Thou" can a relationship among people be created, and man can see other human beings as persons, and not as objects.

The lessons in the "I and Thou" philosophic descriptions are manifold for the many who treat others as "Its " rather than as "Thous."

This is why we have such problems of social living today as the non-involvement man—people who see others in trouble and don't even stop and give aid or call for help, on the one hand, and his opposite, the overly-involved man, who cannot see the people he is trampling because of his stampede toward and for some cause.

When more men and nations see each other as "I's" and "Thou's," rather than as "I's" and "It's," the world will truly be on its way toward peace on earth.

Foreign Aid Amended

The Senate-passed version of this country's $3.2-billion-a-year two-year foreign aid bill looks like a significant improvement with its two important amendments: First, the amendment calling for the creation of a 16-member Planning Commission to recommend to the President a modernized and revamped program limited to 50 nations starting in 1967; and Second, Sen. Fulbright's amendment to authorize $25 million of arms aid to help finance an inter-American military force under the control of the Organization of American States.

In the first matter, this country has for many years been overspending itself in the field of foreign aid in the area of "no strings" gifts. As though it were not enough for this country to undertake the major financing in the United Nations, we have secondarily gone about to finance in part many of the countries belonging to the UN through our foreign aid policies. It is time more of the other well-to-do nations pitch in and contribute money to those in need, rather than letting the United States carry the major load of "welfare donations," and a great deal of which is wasted and/or used improperly.

In the amendment to supply the O.A.S. with a standing army and/or navy and air force power, the concept is good and should be supported as a wise move to provide international means for hemispheric peace, and should offer a way to avoid future happenings like our present situation in the Dominican Republic.

The Sad Facts Of Litter:
The Story About The New Anti-Litter Revolution

Massachusetts 'Sweepstakes'

By Dorothy Sundberg

The cartoon on the Sports Editor's desk was captioned "$300,000 Bay State Sweepstakes."

It never appeared in any newspaper, but it might have, had the subject been a barrel of lottery tickets. Instead, it pictured a partially filled basket of litter with a workman from the highway department sweeping up around it.

Far-fetched? Not by a longshot. The artist knew there was a lot at stake in the Massachusetts campaign to clean up litter, but for news value or reader interest it was harder to put across than a winning horse.

The official Keep Massachusetts Beautiful program ended this week and the results are being evaluated. Has it been successful? Has the objective of cleaner more beautiful towns and countrysides been accomplished? Are the citizens more aware of the litter problem today than they were a month ago?

The answer is a qualified "maybe." No one seems to know for sure. To many who started with high expectations, there is room for doubt.

It was an ambitious program to attempt in one month's time. From the outset "education" was to be emphasized specifically. But publicity, it was found, had to depend on its initial impact to make an impression. Further efforts were repetitious. The public interest reached its saturation point early in the campaign, and without an off-beat angle or a "gimmick" the news media were disinterested.

Education in the schools and among the youth groups was more encouraging. Besides poster and essay contests school children were shown films about the effects of littering on health and safety, on recreational areas and natural resources. (The Winchester Home and Garden Club sponsored showing of one of these films in the local school system).

Mrs. George Kimball of Winchester, executive of the 100,000 girl scouts in Massachusetts, stressed the importance of early education in forming good habits of cleanliness with three scout camps used as training sites. The nine councils throughout the state participated in the KMB program, planning and carrying out their own projects.

The 80,000 Boy Scouts also took part. They were reminded that the KMB program teaches good citzenship and is in accord with the scouting code to be clean, to do a good turn daily and to appreciate and conserve natural resources.

Some other things were accomplished.

The Department of Public Works determined that the installation of additional travel trash barrels decreased the cost of cleaning the highways by better than 25 percent while improving cleanliness approximately 50 percent.

In Winchester, the litter receptacles on parking meters were an improvement too, but it was felt that more were needed. Herbert Mullen of the Park Department says that it still takes two to three hours each Sunday morning to clean the common and the river embankment near the schools.

Then there was a new innovation called "Operation Litterbug." The Registrar of Motor Vehicles announced that any motorist seen carelessly throwing trash onto highways and whose registration number along with the date, time and place is forwarded to the registry at 100 Nashua Street, Boston, would be sent a warning.

Winchester police under the direction of Chief Joseph Derro, have done an admirable job of apprehending litterbugs. When violators are reported to them they also issue a warning for the first offense and repeat offenders are reported to the Registry, with subsequent suspension of license in some cases. They are especially concerned about the areas in the vicinity of playgrounds and beaches.

This is understandably a monumental task and a continuing one and even with extra vigilence by police (both town and state) and increased fines, it cannot be expected to solve the litter problem.

A problem noted as especially troublesome involves commercial eating establishments on public streets and highways. It is noticeably bad in the vicinity of places where disposable containers are used which may be tossed away anywhere from a few feet to several blocks distant. This is a condition that also is prevalent in several areas of Winchester.

It is such a serious one that the Department of Public Works issued a survey of the situation and proposed several remedies that are being considered. One suggested that the use of "take out" containers be discontinued. (Some leading soft drink companies and breweries are considering a return to the former glass bottles which require a deposit and are therefore less likely to be thrown away). Another recommends that city and town officials empowered to issue licenses to commercial eating places should bring pressure to bear on licensees to insure proper groundskeeping with adequate refuse barrels and signs to remind customers to dispose of trash before they leave the premises.

During the month civic minded citizens and organizations did their best to make the public aware of the effects of littering. They repeatedly quoted the high cost to taxpayers of cleaning up the debris: $500 million nationally. $300,000 for Massachusetts highways alone. They emphasized that litter caused fires represent an annual loss of more than $22 million. But it is wondered whether these figures seemed too large or too remote to have any personal meaning to the average citizen.

On another scale did the estimate that every pound of litter costs 10 cents seem too insignificant to bother about? It didn't if anyone took time to consider the tons that is scattered about everywhere.

It was no way possible to figure the cost of loss of pride.

A progress report issued during the campaign noted that although all fifty states sponsored some sort of anti-litter program, many, too many, communities were responding with half hearted efforts, if at all. It was felt that in the majority of cases this lack of interest was due to the failure to recognize littering as an important problem and/or as a personal responsibility.

Some Winchester people feel that there is room for improvement in the general attitude toward efforts to make the town one to be proud of in cleanliness and beautification. Several groups and citizens have made a valiant attempt to interest others in a clean-up program. Many responded and pitched in. Just as many refused.

One Den mother when asked if her Cub Scouts would join a litter collection drive in their neighborhood responded that picking up trash was "the town's job not one for children." Others thought differently. One Pack worked with youthful enthusiasm to clean up a neglected vacant lot. In another, one Den concentrated on a playground, one decided to work on the area they passed on their way to school. Two boys printed "litterature" which they passed out to neighbors.

Many Dens featured skits and litterbug exhibits as part of the "American Heritage" theme at their Pack meetings in May. And who would not agree that the boys of the Babe Ruth League with the use of two trucks and drivers from the Park Department, did a teriffic job cleaning up after the En Ka parade and fair. Among the grownups there are people like Mr. Fitzsimmons and Rupert Jones who periodically pick up baskets of litter at the depot.

There are others. Most of the efforts have been individual ones but worthy just the same. And important for two reasons. They have not only made a noticeable improvement in the town but have also shown by example how it can be done.

One thought the Keep Massachusetts Beautiful campaign tried to emphasize was that no big clean-up drive would be necessary if children and adults alike would make a habit of picking up each small piece of litter they come across—whether they put it there or not.

Dr. Dwight Cart, minister of the First Congregational Church has said "In any problem, large or small, the solution is to start with the thing nearest at hand, and make it mean something."

A noted educator believes that children should be taught to feel a personal responsibility in making their environment a better place.

Dr. Harry V. Gilson gives this advice: "I don't usually teach selfishness but I would offer this precept to the pupils of Winchester: Don't be a litterbug; be a litter hog. Don't share your litter with the town; hoard it. Stuff pockets and purses, and part with it only on reaching the trash receptacle. Litter hogs can make America (and Winchester) beautiful."

A few weeks ago we wrote about a psychology student's research on the littering personality. He mentioned three motives that influence human behavior and how they could be applied to a successful and convincing anti-litter program. The first, "have to," was strict law enforcement; the second, "need to," included safety and health measures; the "want to" was voluntary, not covered by rules or regulations, but, was in the long run, the one that counted most. It was the hardest to put across.

One positve fact was determined during this campaign. It was that four weeks a year are not enough to do a satisfactory job of promoting Keep Massachusetts Beautiful. Many ideas (like Operation Litterbug) were too good to put away in mothballs. Many others just getting started, needed time to catch on.

This year for the first time, Governor John A. Volpe is forming a Governor's committee to continue the program as a year round project and to coordinate the efforts of industry, government, private and public organizations and citizens in a systemized effort.

It will need the voluntary help of the people who "want to." How many of them are living in Winchester?

BOOK REVIEW

by Barbara W. Troup
Winchester Public Library

HOW TO TEACH YOUR BABY TO READ

by Glenn Doman

"How to" fits this book perfectly because it gives quite explicit instructions on teaching your young child to read. Those of you who read the articles recently in the Boston Herald Sunday edition will know the details as well as those who read the book.

Perhaps the newspaper articles struck you the same way they did me. I felt a lot of time was spent protesting against superstitions about reading and assuring the reader that "tiny children want to learn to read, can learn to read, are learning to read, and should learn to read." Glenn Doman seems to be addressing over half of his book to parents and others who don't really believe this kind of teaching is possible or beneficial to the children involved.

"The trouble is that we have made the print too small." This first point is followed by entreaties to make a game of learning, make it fun for the child, not a hurdle to jump. Another important point Mr. Doman makes is that the younger the child, the more easily he can learn; the child learns more easily in the period from one to five years than when he is older, and the older he becomes the harder it is for him to learn.

To me the most interesting of Glenn Doman's theories is this:

> "It has always been assumed that superior adults and geniuses could read at such a young age because they were superior people. This is a perfectly proper scientific premise and we have always accepted it . . . Is it not that these children became superior because they were taught to read at an early age? . . . There is, however, more evidence to support the second premise than there is to support the first, and it too is a perfectly valid scientific supposition."

Doman's method of teaching reading evolved from his work with brain-damaged children. He found that they could learn to read and in some cases became better readers than normal children. Thus he feels that normal children could benefit just as much or more by being taught to read in a similar manner. The explanation of how to proceed is clear and simple—and does not involve expensive equipment or great amounts of time. Anyone who can afford to spend 20-30 minutes a day at 5-minute intervals with his child, and can afford a "magic marking pen" to use on cardboard or shirt boards, can teach the child to read. The instructions do not have to be followed exactly in order to accomplish the same result. Mr. Doman also gives the reasoning and psychology behind the directions, so that these may be applied in various ways.

The book may alarm some parents if their children are over five years old or fast approaching that age. And some may worry about being clever or ingenious enough to keep the child's interest up. But his advice is generally sound and practical, and the emphasis is on keeping the fun and joy in learning.

The Children's Room of the Winchester Public Library now carries several of the books recommended as the first books for your child to read. More will be added in the near future.

Secondary School Solution Idea Is Proffered

Editor of the Star:

A possible solution for solving the secondary school problem which I believe will meet most of the objectives and educational requirements recommended by the Superintendent of Schools and School Committee is outlined below:

1. Convert the present high school to a junior high.

2. Build a separate new high school on the eight or nine acres of land available at Manchester Field. Provision should be made for a small addition in case future enrollment exceeds the projected 1,500 student capacity. Also, there should be sufficient room for construction of a parking area without the acquisition of additional land. Ginn Field, easily accessible, could be used for the physical education classes.

This means relocating the athletic facilities. However, this would not be an insurmountable obstacle particularly if Manchester Field was judged a worthwhile choice for this project. Granted the ideal situation would be to have both included on the same piece of land. But this concept is not absolutely essential today.

All vacant land owned by the town and also privately-owned land in the area of Turkey Ridge should be examined for possible use as an athletic field. One possibility might be the West Side Playground. And additional unused land adjacent to the present field could probably be acquired if needed. If selected, it may be necessary to build one or more smaller playgrounds in order to provide continuance of present activities now programmed.

In conclusion, I believe the total cost of this project would be less than any presented at the recent town meeting. In addition, it would give us a completely new building and the flexibility to meet today's and any forseeable educational need.

Sincerely,
Dana E. Peterson

Come to The Ball Game

Little League season is half over.
The Minors choose animal names.
And you don't know what you are missing
If you haven't attended one of the games.

Every second is filled with excitement,
You're afraid to take your eyes away
For fear you might miss a homer
Or someone make a double play.

Have you seen
in their faces disappointment,
Or the smile of joy
when they've won,
Or the feeling of great satisfaction
When you say to yourself,
"That's my son?"

Thanks to the manager and coaches
Who are sharing their time and devotion
And teaching them how to win or lose
A sport with a good physical motion.

Come on, parents, bring friends and relatives
When it's time for the game to begin.
And forgive me if I get too excited
When the Wolves play a game and win.

Police

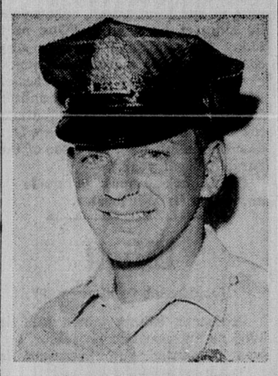
Richardson Street, June 10. Officers Perritano and Jackson have held temporary appointments since May 1964. Officer Amico was a special duty officer in 1957. All three are veterans of foreign service with the United States Forces.



JOSEPH PERRITANO

Officer Perritano is a native of Winchester, went through the schools here and was graduated from high school with the class of 1960. He recently completed three years of service with the Army Signal Corps, two of which were in Germany. He is unmarried.

DONALD JACKSON

Officer Jackson was born in Newburg, New York, and is a 1952 graduate of its high school. He served for four years in the Navy aboard the USS Worcester in the Pacific area during the Korean War. He has most recently been a plant supervisor with a chemical company in Reading. He is married and the father of three children.

JOSEPH J. AMICO

Officer Amico was born in Winchester in 1930 and is also a graduate of WHS. He saw Korean service with the United States Air Force and since then has been in a variety of employments. He is married and the father of two children.

Easter Seal Still Climbing

Mail contributions from generous Winchester area residents to the Easter Seal appeal for crippled children and adults were reported today at $1,175.50.

Charles W. Butler, treasurer of the Winchester Trust Company and area treasurer, made the announcement. The local goal is $1,200. "Although only $314,307 or 94 per cent of the statewide goal has been received as yet," he said, "every effort is being made to reach the quota which was carefully set to meet the growing needs of the physically disabled."

Democratic Town Committee

The committee was saddened this week to learn of the death of one of its good friends, Miss Theresa M. O'Connell. A member of the well-known O'Connell family, Theresa was the sister of one of our committee members, Mrs. May Serieka, and the aunt of another member, Mrs. Ruth Peterson. She was a loyal Democrat, a person of lovable and sterling character, always present at our many socials, and we shall miss her bright presence among us. Our sympathy has been extended to her family.

We would like to add a little to what the writer of a fine letter in last week's Star said about the residents of Middlesex Street. She wrote: "In one year, recently, three boys from this street were enrolled at Harvard College" and she named the boys. I must add to those three the names of the two Chabot boys who were in that group and who also lived on Middlesex Street that year.

We are delighted with the many college youngsters, sons and daughters of our members, who are again home from college and busily working this summer to help themselves during the coming year.

We are anxiously awaiting the Democratic Tax Plan which will be presented today. We have complete confidence in the workmanship of our two Legislative leaders, President Maurice Donahue of the Senate and Speaker Jack Davoren of the House.

Not often does a party have such trained and experienced leadership with a large party membership to trust and support it.

Hose Test May Disturb Water

Fire Chief Frank Amico is this week alerting home owners and business establishments in the area of the Fire House that the department has embarked on its annual testing of hose in its back yard and that the resultant stress on the water pressure may disturb the water system enough to cause temporary discoloration of the water from time to time.

The Fire Department owns and will be testing over 15,000 feet of hose including 1½, 2 and 3 inch hose, plus its forestry hose. The test involves putting 250 lbs. per square inch through the hose and results in retiring lengths of hose which may leak or burst under the pressure.

The department has just concluded its annual Town-wide hydrant test which ran from April through May. Conditions at some faulty hydrants have been or are being corrected.

Russo of 380 Cross Street, was advanced to his present rank May 16, while serving aboard the destroyer USS Glennon, which operates out of Newport, R. I. Female Photos Ferment Furor

The Massachusetts Registry of Motor Vehicles may be biting off more than it can chew if it goes through with its plan to issue drivers licenses bearing a color photo of the operator.

According to the Automobile Legal Association, the distaff drivers are up in arms over having to reveal their beauty secrets to some burly police officer.

"The gals are complaining," says ALA's Phil Wallwork, "that they'll never be able to change the color of their hair, eyelashes, lipstick or even wear a wig if they differ from the original photo.

"A pretty young blonde with a bouffant hair-do is going to have a devilish time explaining to an arresting officer that she is really the flip-cut brunette pictured on her driver's license," Wallwork said.

The ALA official suggested that if photographs are really necessary on a driver's license, the Registry of Motor Vehicles should stick to black and white.

"Black and white photos would be less expensive and would keep the gals happy. And the gals mght even be smiling when their photo is taken," Wallwork said.

Milk

Milk purchased by the Town of Winchester was part of the School Department's milk and lunch program, which, during a typical year such as this ending school year 1964-65, included the purchase of some 578,000 half pints of milk from H. P. Hood & Sons, Inc., at a per half pint cost of $.0589, or a little over a nickel a piece . . . or approximately $30,000 a year.

H. P. Hood & Sons, Inc., has supplied the town's School Department with milk for many years.

On Friday, June 4, 1965, the School Department opened bids that had been advertised for the 1965-66 school year, and on Monday night, June 7, the School Committee awarded the bid to Sunnyhurst Dairies of Stoneham. Sunnyhurst Dairies underbid H. P. Hood & Sons, Inc., by a fractional amount, according to one school official

In the school milk program, elementary school youngsters are charged three cents a half pint of milk, and the state pays the town another four cents, making the town's income total seven cents for every half pint of milk purchased . . . or varyingly from year to year between one and two pennies more than the cost of each half pint. The state pays the subsidized difference from that charged the kids to the seven cents mark because it does not want cities and towns to ask more than seven cents a half pint for milk to school children.

The complaint against the milk companies stated that the milk distributors divided among themselves milk contracts with state and municipal agencies by a system of rotation, so that the selected company would be awarded the contract, while bids of others "if they submitted bids, would submit bids in an amount not calculated to attract the award."

This combination and conspiracy raised, fixed and stabilized milk prices at "high and artificial levels." "Competition among the defendants and co-conspirators in the sale and distribution of milk . . . was suppressed and eliminated."

The total amount to be paid back to the Commonwealth, state agencies and 34 cities and towns for price-fixing and over-charges by Hood, United Farmer and National Dairy has not yet been calculated precisely, but Brooke indicated recovery is expected to be "very substantial."

More than $600,000 has been recovered in the past two years on similar charges against electrical manufacturers.

Hood, United Farmers and National Dairy supply more than 70% of the milk sold annually in Boston and Eastern Massachusetts, about 245 million quarts of milk with a value in excess of $49,000,000.

All milk sales in this area total about 350,000,000 quarts with a value in excess of $70,000,000.

"Continued and vigorous prosecution of this program," Attorney General Brooke stated, "will aid the individual consumer, minimize the cost of state and local government, and help to insure the benefits of a free competitive economy to the governmental agencies of Massachusetts."

He's enrolled in the fall in Northeastern's Graduate School, intent upon getting a master's degree.

Nurse About Town

Anyone who reads the articles "Nurse About Town," which appear in the Star whenever the Winchester Visting Nursing Association hires a new nurse, cannot fail to be impressed with the high qualifications each one possesses.

MISS MAXINE RATTE

Our town's WVNA attracts the finest nurses with our three-fold program of School Nursing, Board of Health Clinics, and bedside nursing.

Miss Maxine Ratte is our newest nurse. A native of Bradford, she graduated from the Boston Children's Hospital in 1958 and spent her first year and a half there as a staff nurse. The next summer, Miss Ratte, who is of French ancestry, did nursing at a French speaking camp in Maine. In 1960 she returned to the Children's Hospital, but now in the cardiac unit, where she took post operative care of children with heart disease.

A year later she decided to get her degree and entered Boston College School of Nursing in 1961, graduating two and a half years later. In her last year she decided on the Public Health field and applied for a Federal Grant for a Traineeship.

Miss Ratte started her work in Public Health with the Cambridge VNA as a staff nurse, but the Winchester varied program appealed to her and she came to us this spring.

Miss Ratte does the school nursing at Lincoln, Wyman, and St. Mary's and is also on call for emergencies. Her interests are reading, swimming and travel. She lives in an apartment in Arlington that has a swimming pool—a boon at the end of a hot summer's day. Her travelling has included a trip to Europe and a motor trip across this country and back.

Winchester residents are indeed fortunate to have a nurse of Miss Ratte's training and sparkling personality.

Lt. James Ruma On Stormes In Dominican Waters

Navy Lieutenant (junior grade) James A. Ruma, son of Mr. and Mrs. Domenic L. Ruma of 6 Agawam Road, is currently serving aboard the destroyer USS Stormes, engaged in the joint U. S. operation in the Dominican Republic.

U. S. forces were ordered into the strife-torn island republic after the breakdown of law and order and authorities there could no longer guarantee the safe evacuation of American citizens.

Since U. S. forces have taken part in the operation, Atlantic Fleet ships have evacuated more than 3,000 American citizens and other nations seeking safety. The evacuees were taken to San Juan, Puerto Rico, where commercial transportation was available.

In cooperation with other U. S. Armed Forces, Navy ships and aircrafts have ferried in more than 30 million pounds of food and medical supplies, making it the largest humanitarian effort of U. S. Armed Forces since the Berlin Air Lift of 1948.

Upon arriving in the Dominican Republic, the Stormes established communications and liaison with American officials ashore, and stood by to render assistance.

Cub Pack 511 Announces Plans

The monthly pack meeting was held on May 28 at Lincoln School.

At this time the cubmaster, Charles P. Harris awarded bobcat pins to a total of 25 boys from four dens. Plans were made for all the dens to go on a tour of the U. S. Navy Yard in Boston and visit the submarine U.S.S. Billfish on Monday, June 21. The committee chairman, Lt. Donald Sullivan is the officer in charge, and will take the boys through the ship.

In conjunction with the cub program of the month of "My Hometown," 10 scouts from the combined dens 2 and 3 were taken on a tour of the Radiological Laboratory. Mr. William Christie conducted the tour. He showed the boys through the building which is a most unusual government operation.

From Den 2 were William Harris, John Briggs, Stephen Callahan, Richard Test, and Marc Berberian, with Mrs. Charles Harris, den mother and Carl Smiley, den chief. From Den 3 under the leadership of Mrs. Philip Parsons, and Chris Parsons den chief, were Jeffery Parsons, Craig Smiley, Richard Ellis, Terry Dukes nad Alan Dukes.

2 WHS Students At Conference On Citizenship

Nancy Falcione and Bruce Carlin are the students from Winchester High School who were elected to attend the Northeastern States Youth Citizenship Conference on the Tufts University campus on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, June 2-4, for an in-depth look at the quality of public service in America.

This is the ninth annual Northeastern States Youth Citizenship Conference conducted by Tufts' Lincoln Filene Center for Citizenship and Public Affairs as a service for the Northeastern States Commissioners of Education. Participants were drawn from all of the six New England states, and from New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania. Each state is represented by ten different schools.

Lt. De Ruscio Completes Course

Lt. Henry G. DeRuscio of 7 Verplast Avenue took part in the eleventh annual commencement exercises of the U.S. Naval Reserve Officers School, Boston, last Thursday.

He received a certificate of completion of a course designed to keep officers of the Naval Reserve, Coast Guard Reserve and Marine Corps Reserve abreast of the latest developments in Navy equipment, strategy, objectives and national policy.

Brownies Fly Up At Lincoln School

On May 26 at the Lincoln School three Brownie Troops, 526, 527, and 548 "flew up" to Junior Girl Scouting. Twenty-eight Brownies received their wings and Girl Scout pins. The program was conducted by Mrs. Joseph McDonough.

The program commenced with the flag ceremony performed by a color guard of Junior Girl Scouts from Troop 503. The girls were Kimetha Tobey, Frances Murphy, Gretchen Hemmingsen, Mary Lou McDonough, and Jean Whitney.

After the flag ceremony, everyone sang the "Hello" song and the "Brownie Smile" song. Then each troop entertained the audience with a song. Troop 548 sang and performed an original song, "Brownies in the Dell." Troop 526 sang "The Frog Song." Troop 527 sang and danced to the "Dundee" song. The color guard from Troop 503 sang "Our Chalet."

After the entertainment the "flying up" ceremony took place. Brownie Troop 526, under the leadership of Mrs. Robert Sands and Mrs. Richard Horn, flew up to Junior Girl Scout Troop 505, led by Mrs. Emmons Ellis, Mrs. Joseph Cavallo, Mrs. Ralph Della Grotte and Mrs. Edith Brock. Robin Ellis and Terry Finch of Junior Troop 505 assisted Mrs. Ellis in presenting the Girl Scout pins. The Brownies were Lorraine Foley, Karen Dukes, Marie Shepherd, Mary Anne Maiullari, Mary Barrow, Nancy Ciarcia, Edith Brock, Pamela Morgan, Cynthia Smiley and Penny Skinner.

Brownie Troop 527, under the leadership of Mrs. Joseph McDonough, Mrs. Richard Knight and Mrs. Innocent Noel, flew up to Junior Girl Scout Troop 503, led by Mrs. Dan Test, Mrs. Anthony DeTeso and Mrs. Calvin Allyn. The Brownies were Stephanie DeTeso, Janet Noel, Melinda Otis, Jacqueline Saunders, Mary Elizabeth Knight, Janice Queen and Michelle Smith. Melinda Ellis "flew up" to Troop 505, led by her mother, Mrs. Emmons Ellis.

Brownie Troop 548, under the leadership of Mrs. Richard Langley and Mrs. Robert Baird, flew up to the Junior Girl Scout troop led by Mrs. John Doucet, Mrs. Louis Percoco and Mrs. Ernest Benshimol. The Brownies were Linda Doucet, Lu Ann Percoco, Luanne Benshimol, Wendy Desjarlais, Laurie Kincaid, Mary Donovan, Kathy Millican, Gayle Staffiere, Louise Bonneville and Linda Johnson.

Refreshments were served by the Junior Girl Scouts under the direction of Mrs. Richard Knight.

In the closing circle, the Brownies thanked their leaders and other adults who made the Brownie program fun for all. The program concluded with the singing of "Taps."

July Draft Call Biggest Since '55

John C. Carr, the State director of Selective Service, announced today that the biggest draft call in almost ten years has been placed on this State for July.

Mr. Carr stated Massachusetts local boards will induct 555 men next month. The last time the State draft call was bigger was in November of 1955 when 570 men were inducted.

The July national call is for 17,100 men to be inducted into the Army. This is the largest nationwide draft call since the Berlin Crisis in the fall of 1961. The increased draft calls can be attributed to the drop in voluntary enlistments which followed The President establishing a committee to study the possibility of having an all-volunteer armed force and also the talk, during last year's election, of doing away with the draft.

AMENDMENT TO BUILDING LAWS
TOWN OF WINCHESTER, MASSACHUSETTS

Adopted at Annual Representative Town Meeting on March 29, 1965

VOTED: To amend the Building Laws of the town by making the following additions in connection with

SWIMMING POOL CONSTRUCTION

DIVISION 2—DEFINITIONS

Add the following definitions to Division 2:

"Swimming Pool" or "Pool"	Any constructed pool used for swimming, bathing or wading, or as a fish pond or similar use, which has a water depth in excess of 24" at any point and a surface area in excess of 200 square feet. For purposes of classification, a pool is to be considered a building or structure subject to regulation by the Building Laws.
"Private Pool"	A pool which is located on the property of a single house and is available for use only by the single house owner and his guests. For purposes of fee determination, a private pool is classified as a Type 1A residence building.
"Public Pool"	A pool which is not a private pool.

Add the following Division 33 to the Building Laws:

DIVISION 33—DESIGN AND CONSTRUCTION OF SWIMMING POOLS

Section 226

This section applies to all swimming pools constructed, enlarged, or altered subsequent to the effective date of enactment.

A swimming pool is classified as a structure which is subject to regulations by these laws. For purposes of lot line or setback requirements, a private or public pool is considered a Residence Building (Div. 19, Sec. 147), except that distance to side and rear lot lines and distances from other buildings may be one-half of those specified in Section 147. Dimensions to lot lines and other buildings shall be taken from the nearest inside edge of the pool. A building permit shall be required for all swimming pool construction. All private pools shall be considered a Type 1-A resi--dence building. Public pools shall be considered a Type 3-E business building. The appropriate fee shall be determined by the water-filled volume of the swimming pool. Separate permits shall be required for plumbing and electrical work. Prior to the issue of a building permit, the Commissioner shall call to the attention of the permit applicant the appropriate regulations of the Board of Health. The design and equipping of public swimming pools shall be in accordance with Article VI, the Sanitary Code, "Minimum Standards for Swimming Pools," Department of Public Health, Commonwealth of Massachusetts, April 14, 1964.

Section 227

Swimming pools may be constructed of poured concrete, dry pack concrete, pneumatically applied concrete, plastic membranes, reinforced plastic, steel or other materials which shall be capable of withstanding earth pressures when the pool is empty of water. Pool materials must be non-porous and watertight. Hydrostatic pressure will be used as the outward design pressure when concrete or other materials are not deposited directly against undisturbed earth or approved compacted fill. Minimum required reinforcing steel in concrete construction shall be 1/10 of 1 per cent of area cross section, with maximum spacing of 18". All concrete pools shall have a minimum thickness of two inches.

Section 228

All pool construction shall meet the following general requirements.

a. Spring boards are not permitted unless located in an area of the pool which has a water depth of 7 feet or more.

b. Every swimming pool shall be equipped with an approved filter unit, drain, and supply system. The use of plastic pipe is permitted.

c. Suitable provision, acceptable to the Building Commissioner, shall be made for the disposition of water resulting from drainage of a pool, especially when a catch basin or other public drainage facility is not available.

d. An electrical inspection for grounding or reinforcing wire, plumbing, and conduit is required prior to placement of the pool concrete or other material.

e. A fence or other protective enclosure at least 5 feet in height must be installed around all pools. The wall of a building may serve this purpose. Each opening shall have a self-closing door or gate with latching device. All latches shall be located no less than four feet above ground and shall be of the automatic or self-latching type.

f. If intended for use during the hours of darkness, suitable illumination shall be provided which shall be shielded from all adjacent streets and private or public properties.

g. Every pool will be equipped with a permanent ladder or steps which permit access to and exit from the pool water.

Division 1, Section 8

Change paragraph f to read: "In such other cases as are specifically provided for. (See Sections 157, 199, 209, 220, 221, 224, 226)

"Is the Universe, Including Man, evolved by Atomic Force?" will be the subject of the Bible Lesson to be heard at Christian Science services throughout the world on Sunday.

Scriptural passages will include this verse from Isaiah: "I will bring the blind by a way that they knew not; I will lead them in paths that they have not known: I will make darkness light before them, and crooked things straight." The concluding Bible citation is from Revelation: "And he that sat upon the throne said, Behold, I make all things new."

The theme will be taken up further in readings from the Christian Science textbook: "The true theory of the universe, including man, is not in material history but in spiritual development . . . Spiritual evolution alone is worthy of the exercise of divine power" (Science and Health with Key to the Scripture by Mary Baker Eddy, pp. 547, 135).

Nature's Ways

A fungus blight shaped the destiny of Massachusetts.

The fungus caused the great potato famine in Ireland, driving droves of Irish to Boston where they profoundly altered the Puritan culture.

Fungi wiped out America's most valuable woodlands, the chestnut woods, and now through the Dutch elm disease, seem destined to ruin another favorite tree. Fungi attack every crop grown by man, and create more havoc in both production and storage of food than any animal pest.

Regiments have been defeated by fungal afflictions ranging from athlete's foot to barber's itch. Men have died from the poisons manufactured by fungi that attack cereals.

In wetter climes, clothing disintegrates, shoes rot, plaster crumbles, largely due to fungal action. The wood in every house in Massachusetts is affected to some extent, even to crumbling, by fungi. Fungi in modern paints strip the coating from homes, just as they did in older paints.

There is nothing that man makes, eats, or wears but what some fungus eventually will destroy it. Even the lenses in spectacles and binoculars sooner or later become etched by fungi.

Fungi range from microscopic to the size of huge mushrooms. The above-ground part of the mushroom plant, the part most people consider the entire plant, is only a fruit sprouted by an underground plant whose body consists of lengthy webs that appear as roots.

On the basis of what most people know about fungi, through such experiences as opening a package of bread molded by fungi, it would be rational to suppose that the greatest boon to mankind might come in the form of a spray that would kill all fungi.

Indeed, anyone who arose at town meeting and suggested caution in its use would be suspected as a kook. For, after all, we spray against mosquitoes and gypsy moths and they at worst represent merely discomfort, not huge economic loss.

Fortunately, no one has developed an aerial spray that could be spread against fungi. I say "fortunately," because man in his ecological ignorance unquestionably would use the spray.

The reason such a spray should not be used is that while man has considerable difficulty living with fungi, he could not live at all without them.

Fungi are "dis-assemblers." They break down into elementary parts the complex chemical combinations that we know by such names as wood, leather, flesh, cotton, well, almost anything that agriculture produces or man makes. They reduce these materials to basic elements fast enough to keep the cycle of life operating. They are, in fact, the principal producer of the carbon dioxide that keeps alive the green plants.

The most important fungi are those that break down wood. Locked within the chemical compound that cnostitutes wood are carbon atoms. Carbon is an indispensable element of life. Man could not live without it.

If the wood-breaking fungi were wiped out, the forest of the world would become massive jackstraw piles of undecaying trees, toppled like Grecian columns and as impervious to the ravages of time as granite.

And locked within that jackstraw pile would be the world's supply of carbon.

Winchester Duplicate Bridge

On Wednesday evening, June 9th, despite a hot and humid atmosphere, the Winchester Duplicate Bridge Club gathered as usual for its weekly meeting of friends and minds over the card tables.

Section A's eight-table Mitchell game saw club members of long standing leading in the lists with Evie and Bob Blackler first North-South and Lolly and Dick Smith at the top East-West.

North - South

Dr. and Mrs. Robert Blackler 77½
David Littleton and Robert Haskell 76
Martha Walker and Ellen Schofield 63½

East - West

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Smith 79
Mr. and Mrs. Chester Davis, Jr. 74
James Byrne and William Duryea 70½
James Curley and Clarence Woodward 68½

Section B played a twelve-couple Howell movement with the new partnership of Bettina Lorris and Herb Wood capturing top honors. From now on through the summer individual series there will be many more new pairings as members switch around, and singles come in at the door. Above average results in B were:

Bettina Lorris and Herbert Wood	.585
Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Cade	.555
W. Fuller and L. Gonzalves	.555
Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Atkinson	.550
Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fortin	.550
Adeline Mingolelli and Theodore Atkinson	.544
Rosemary Layzer and Terry Ward	.540

Our editor for the Hand-of-the-Week is Dick Smith who is an old hand at staying out of trouble in the right spot when the hands don't fit for a major suit or no trump.

A Minor Triumph

Board No. 14 in Section A is an example of a hand that must be played at a suit rather than at No Trump:

Neither Vulnerable

The bidding might well proceed as follows:

East	South	West	North
1S	Dble	2C	2H
2S	Pass	2NT	Pass
3C	Pass	Pass	Pass

The opening bid is border-line as it contains a minimum number of points and only two quick tricks. I think that the suit should be bid as it is a good suit, and, as that suit is Spades, the opposition is crowded into entering the bidding at the level of two. I should never open a similar hand with the strength in one of the minors. Even with the strength in the Heart suit, I should not open in first or second position unless I was playing with a conservative partner who would not carry us beyond our depth. As for the bid of two Clubs by West, one might note that there are a sufficient number of points to redouble.

This bid, I think, should be reserved for hands that are much more even in distribution. Observe that if West redoubles, followed by a two Heart bid by North, East and West will not be able to exchange Club bids and still stop at what turns out to be the safe level of three. Now, for the best bid of all, three Clubs by East. This waves a flag of danger for West to see. It tells her partner that her hand is weak with a rebiddable Spade suit, has poor distribution, and includes some clubs, probably four but at least three. West should accept this warning and pass.

Even against the best defensive lead of the 10 of Diamonds, this contract is safe. It might appear that the hand would play better at Spades. The reader might try this for himself against continued Heart leads plus a hold-up of the ace of Clubs on the first lead of that suit.

The score of 110 for East-West was next to top exceeded only by a score of 300 obtained by one pair when their brave opponents rashly bid four Hearts and were doubled.

Before closing, I should like to comment on our practice of marking the traveling scores with the opening lead. When one knows the opening lead, it is easier to analyze the defense and the play of the hand. Many are negligent in this practice. For instance, I took the trouble to find out how many had noted the opening leads last Wednesday. There were only 45% listed. By the way, there was one lead put down as YS. By common practice, XS would mean "small spade." Perhaps YS meant "not so small Spade" as I am quite sure that the ten spot was led. Or perhaps it meant "something on the Y axis," eh Ed?

Bringing Business To the Campus

Over half a million college graduates move off the academic assembly line this week. Nearly three times as many new students are willing to pour in.

With the numbers of future students, and the management problems attending them, expected to keep soaring, academic administrators are increasingly looking toward automation and computer for solutions. But bringing the techniques of big business and government onto the campus may make for trouble, as Berkeley students have demonstrated. Ways of dealing with these new factors in higher education will be sought at the Institutional Research Workshop of the New England Board of Higher Education, to be held at the University of New Hampshire at Durham, June 20-23.

Taking the topic "Academic Decision-Making," this will be the fourth annual workshop offered by NEBHE to college and university administrators and faculty members from New England and surrounding states who wish to improve their educational programs through institutional research.

Lead-off speaker is Francis E. Rourke, chairman of the Department of Political Science at The Johns Hopkins University and co-author of "The Campus and the State." Dr. Rourke is currently making a study of "The Managerial Revolution in Higher Education," under a grant from the Carnegie Corporation.

"The Dynamic of Decisions" will be viewed from two angles: considerations of time, space, and available resources; and covert factors, or the human element. Among the panelists are John M. Evans, vice president for financial affairs, University of Connecticut; Owen B. Durgin, registrar, University of New Hampshire; Stuart Grout, director of academic services, Boston University; James R. Jordan, assistant to the president, University of Indiana; and Brian R. Kay, acting director of the Division of Mental Health, New Hampshire.

Scientific Management — when and what to automate — will be reviewed by a panel led by Robert E. Hewes, currently director of the Office of Institutional Studies at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Truman Hunter, administrator of Educational Programs at IBM, will take a look into future uses of computers on campus, and Edwin F. Hallenbeck, director of the Office of Institutional Research and Planning at the University of Rhode Island will wind up the three-day program with a short course in How Not To Make Decisions.

Bruce Bennet Award Winner

It was recently announced that Bruce Bennet, organist of the First Congregational Church in Winchester, was chosen winner of the 1965 Young Artists' Competition sponsored by the Boston Chapter of the American Guild of Organists in cooperation with the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The contest was open to organists in the New England states, New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania. As winner, Mr. Bennet was presented with a $500 cash award and was asked to appear as a recitalist on the 1965-66 Boston Symphony Hall Organ Series. The final adjudication for the contest took place at the May 3rd meeting of the Boston Chapter of the A. G. O., where the other competing finalists were Margaret Irwin and John Skelton, both from the Boston area.

It was required of each contestant that they perform a major work of J. S. Bach and at least one work from a later period. Mr. Bennet chose the following to perform:

Fantasie & Fugue in G minor—J. S. Bach

First Movement, Sonata I, Opus 86—Persichetti

Prelude & Fugue in G minor—Dupre

Mr. Bennet, a native of Ohio, is a graduate of the Peabody Conservatory in Baltimore, Maryland, where he received his master's degree and artist diploma under Arthur Howes. While in Baltimore, he was music director for five years at the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church. Presently, he is doing post-graduate study at the New England Conservatory under the noted concert artist and pedagogue, Donald Willing.

Auxiliary Cookout For Veterans

On Tuesday evening from 6:30 p.m. until 9 p.m., the Winchester Unit 97 of the American Legion Auxiliary entertained approximately 65 veterans from the Bedford Hospital at the Legion Home on Vine Street, the occasion being the annual cook-out sponsored by the Ladies of the Auxiliary.

The guests arrived by bus, and after being treated to hot dogs, coffee, cokes, brownies and cookies home-baked by the Auxiliary, the veterans then played beano for prizes, consisting of candy bars, and cigarillos.

This is the last social function of the season planned by the Auxiliary specifically for the entertainment of the Bedford veterans, and climaxes many trips made by the girls to the hospital in Bedford, where they have adopted a ward, and it is to these boys that the girls go faithfully each month, carrying with them home-baked cakes, and prizes for the games played during the evening.

Scheduled trips are never canceled because of bad weather. The only time one cancels out is because of sickness, and then someone else always fills in so that the boys are not disappointed. It is heart-warming, indeed to see their eager faces waiting for you to come, and to hear their thanks and applause as the evening draws to a close, and you promise to see them next month.

This is how it ended on Tuesday evening. Many happy smiles both from the veterans and auxiliary, and a promise of "See you next year, in September," and "Thanks a lot."

We, the ladies of the Auxiliary thank you too, Mr. Public, and especially our local newspapers, both for the coverage of our money raising events and for backing our many projects. Without you we couldn't carry on this wonderful, worthwhile job for our boys. They know we have not forgotten them. For this we can all be proud. We hope all our friends have a wonderful safe summer, and we look forward to joining you all again in the fall.

Fair Housing Association

The Winchester Fair Housing Association began a new year with a meeting of its steering committee at the home of chairman H. Kimball Archibald. Plans and policies for the coming year were discussed.

This organization, a fairly recent one in Winchester, is also in many other neighboring towns such as Needham, Lexington, Wellesley, Framingham and others. The purpose of a Fair Housing Organization is to encourage and promote one of the basic ideals of our American Democracy. This fundamental concept is that people of different races and religions be given equal rights, including equal opportunities for housing.

The Association strives for the welcoming of newcomers to a neighborhood on individual merits, no matter what race, religion, or national origin.

Besides the usual officers, the Winchester Fair Housing Association steering committee includes a Legislative Chairman who keeps the membership posted on legislature relevant to Fair Housing that may be pending on the state scene.

Also included is a representative to MCAD to keep members up to date on the actions of this very important organization.

One of the most important positions in this group is that of the Housing Chairman, whose function it is to try to find houses for minority families who are looking in Winchester. This is, of course, accomplished through, not in competition, with our local realtors. Secondly, when a house is purchased, he assists in welcoming the family into the neighborhood.

The W.F.H.A. has planned interesting and pertinent meetings for the ensuing year and it sincerely invites anyone who is interested to attend.

Winchester Little League

By Charlie Lucier

Cardinals 3 - Pirates 2

Those Cardinals did it again! With no respect for the rest of the league, they continue to take their toll of the opposition, winning three of their last four games. This game last week was no exception.

The true tale began to unfold in the first inning. With the Pirates at bat to start the game, Louie Gentile was on the mound for the Cards. Louie hadn't quite settled down and gave up a walk to Dick Murphy. Joe Mozzicato came to bat with Dick on base and proceeded to smash a long double to put the Pirates on the score board. But that was all that they could score as the Cards came up for their turn.

Mike Quigley has been working at batting left-handed and was trying out his style. It proved to be workable and he singled sharply to get on but was thrown out at the plate later in the inning. In the meantime a fielder's choice put Mark Carlson on base and he later scored on a play off Louie Gentile's bat. It was a tie ball game and closer than a miser's bankroll.

The second inning went by without a score on either side but the Pirates were getting the bead on the ball in their half of the third. Dick Murphy rode a fast one out for a two base hit and was able to cross the plate on Ed Keating's single to put the Pirates out in front by 2 to 1.

Nobody on the Cards can stand being on the short end of the score for long. Mark Carlson is one of those who hates it most so he smashed a long double and was in scoring position when Dana Peterson came to bat. Dana's single pushed Mark across the platter and and it was a tie ball game again.

There was no scoring again until the final inning. The Pirates went down in order and the Cards were coming to bat. Mike Quigley was hit by the pitcher and was able to take second on a wild pitch. Then the story was up to Dana Peterson again and he repeated his chore as he did earlier. A sharp single put Quigley across with the winning run and the Cardinals were jubilant.

Although Dick Murphy had three strike-outs for the Pirates, it was definitely Louie Gentile's night. In going the distance for the Cards, Louie struck out six and downed nine of the last ten men who faced him without giving up a hit.

It begins to look as though the only way to win is to leave the Cards alone.

Athletics 12 - Mets 3

It was a bad night for the Mets and the Athletics came to play right from the opening toss. A five run first inning put the game out of reach for the Mets and the A's added two in the second to frost the cake. One in the fifth and four in the sixth adds up to an even dozen and the Mets could only garner three.

Dave Shanahan walked in the first and was pushed around by Bruce McKenna's single, Steve LaPointe's single, Dave Frongillo's single and Dick Bannister's single. Each of these hitters scored, the final run coming on Tom Cronin's sacrifice hit.

In the second the Athletics were at it again as Anthony Fiore singled and scored on Bruce McKenna's two base wallop. Bruce then crossed the plate on Steve LaPointe's single and the score was 7 to 0. The Mets made a try for it in the third but they could only come up with two runs. Paul Doyle got on and scored on successive plays as did Bob Kelly but the hits were too few and the runs were even fewer.

In the fifth each team chalked up one run by timely hitting. Tom Cronin doubled and was able to score on Steve Twombly's single for the A's run and Jay McGoldrick walked and worked his way around to score on Steve Mulloy's single to give the Mets their third and last run.

Three passes and a single by Dave Frongillo enabled the Athletics to notch four in the final inning. It was a long, hard evening for the Mets as they faced Bob Bigelow and Dick Bannister during the course of the game. Dick struck out seven in his four innings and was never in any danger. Dennis Rotondi and Tom James were the moundsmen for the Mets but it just wasn't their night.

The Athletics were riding high after their encounter with the Reds on the previous evening. Dave Frongillo was burning them in for the A's and he worked out on a one hit job with 11 strike outs as his team got him six runs and a big 6 to 0 win. With that kind of pitching there is plenty of work cut out for the league if they intend to catch the flying Athletics.

Wolves 10 - Buffalos 6

Two wild ones were part of the Wolves' work for the week. They knocked off the league-leading Buffalos by a 10 to 6 score and later in the week they dropped a squeaker to the Badgers by a 12 to 11 count. Those Wolves are really a tough pack to handle and the Badgers had all they could do to walk away with the win.

In the Buffalo encounter, the Wolves hopped on Tom Raleigh in the first inning and pushed across four runs to take the lead which they never relinquished from then on. Rick Ball, Dan Miner and John O'Donnell did the hitting to chalk up the runs.

Ricky Ball's double in the second scored Mark Lanigan who had been passed and the Wolves were well under way. In the third the Wolves added five more to swell their total to 10 and that was all that they needed. Some good defensive plays at second base with Jimmy McCormack doing the work helped to keep the Wolves in the lead throughout the game.

But the Badger-Wolves outing was the coin tossing kind of a deal. The lead swayed back and forth from one team to the other and it was in the final inning that the Badgers pulled the chestnuts out of the fire. It was a tough loss for the orange-shirted Wolves and a big win for the Badgers.

The same old bug-a-boo still persists in the minor league games. The toughest part of the job is to obtain umpires to handle the games. Once more the Little League is calling for help in this department. It doesn't take a baseball expert to call balls and strikes in the minor leagues and all of the managers would appreciate having high school boys take over the reins as arbiters in these contests. This is not to say that any parent will be turned aside if he offers to umpire a game. There are only two weeks to go before the season ends so Little League says "Please Help."

In the National League the winner of the first half is still in contention. The Twins are hot on the trail of their first championship and the Red Sox want to repeat last year's performance. Both teams have tie games to make up and they hope to accomplish that this week. If the Twins can take the first half it will mean that manager Dave Boyle and coach Al Milley will direct the destinies of the All-Star team for the league. If the Red Sox can take all of the marbles, manager Gordon Peckham will be at the helm of the All Stars with coaches Ed Williams and Bill Cutler working with him.

Another long ball hitter in the American League minors is Tommy Raleigh of the Buffalos. Tom poled one from the diamond nearest the river at Ginn Field that traveled in the air all the way to the third base bench of the diamond nearest the railroad.

Not to be outdone, Peter Tello of the Leopards smashed one from the West Side minor league diamond that hit the ground in back of left field in the major league diamond near the greenhouse fence. Both of these boys are hitters and they are proving it this year.

Safe Boating Proponents

SAFE BOATING WEEK is proclaimed officially by Gov. Volpe for the week of July 4 through 10. Among boating officials and enthusiasts present at the proclamation signing was Wilton Vaugh of 10 Fairview Terrace, state director of motor boats, standing left of the Governor.

Jeff Schlener To Middlesex All-Star Team

Winchester High's heavy-hitting first baseman Jeff Schlener was one of two sophomores named to the Middlesex League All Star team which was announced this week.

Schlener shared the sophomore spotlight with Reading's pitching ace Bill Kelly, who strong-armed the Rockets to the Middlesex League championship and into the finals of the Class A Eastern Mass. tourney before he lost to Somerville.

In hitting .435 Schlener led the Middlesex League in hitting. His closest challenger was Reading's Tom Kelly, who posted a .404 batting mark.

League champ Reading placed four players on the All Star team. The Rockets' double-play combination of second baseman Tom Kelly and shortstop Jim Hayes were selected in addition to pitcher Bill Kelly and outfielder Phil Chesly.

Schlener was the only Sachem named to the All Star squad.

Water Safety Staff Named

The Winchester Chapter of the American Red Cross has announced the appointment of a director and two water safety instructors to teach in its summer swimming program. It was also announced that for the first time a program of instruction for handicapped children would be made available.

Named to direct the program for a second year was Alan M. MacDougall of 11 Rangeley Ridge, named as instructors were Patricia Shinney of 5 Fairmount Street and Barbara Bund of 18 Laurel Hill Lane. Each member of the staff is undergoing or has undergone an extensive training program prior to the opening of the season.

MacDougall, who has served with the local Red Cross since 1960, is a recent graduate of Tufts University, where he was manager of the Varsity Swimming Team and director of the Faculty-Alumni Children's Swimming Program.

He recently completed, at Tufts, a college-credit course in the teaching of aquatics and in the building and maintenance of swimming areas. He is also a two-time graduate of the National Red Cross Aquatic School, where in addition to the standard and advanced courses in swimming and lifesaving, he was trained in swimming for the handicapped.

Miss Shinney, who is a graduate of Winchester High School and a student at the New England Conservatory of Music, is returning for her third year with the program. She graduated last year from the National Aquatic School and will return there this year for training in swimming instruction for the handicapped and for advanced work in swimming and lifesaving.

Miss Bund, a recent graduate of Winchester High, joined the staff last summer as a water safety aid and will return, this year, in the position of instructor, following training at the National Aquatic School.

The Water Safety Program which will feature instruction for all levels from non-swimmers to senior lifesaving, and for all ages from pre-school to adult, will begin at Leonard Pool on Monday, June 28, and at Palmer Beach on Tuesday, June 29. Details of the course offering and time schedule will be announced next week.

The Winchester Red Cross Chapter is confident that an even greater number of Winchester's citizens will take part in this year's program, which is unique in Metropolitan Boston.

Al Falvey, Jr.

With the end of the school year at hand athletic director Henry Knowlton feels that the physical education program offered at Winchester High is one of the best, if not the best, in the state. He further states that it is rated very highly by many of the outsiders who visit the high school and other parts of the school system. The physical education program was extended and expanded this year, and Henny hopes to go even further next year.

A series of physical fitness tests for the students is conducted each fall and spring at the high school. The tests begin the first year the student enters the school. The gym teacher has a better idea of what the student is physically capable of doing. His progress throughout his stay at school can then be noted.

Henny also pointed out the varied sports schedule which gives the student his choice of many activities. In the fall the boy can participate in either cross-country, football or soccer; in the winter a large selection, hockey, basketball, gymnastics, indoor track, and wrestling. In the spring there is lacrosse, baseball, tennis, track, and golf. The student may select one sport in each of the seasons, with enough of a choice to please him.

The schedule also takes into consideration the girls. They have an almost identical program. The question pops into mind: How about the students who can't play on the varsity or junior varsity team? There is an extensive intra-mural program at the high school, hence every student at the high school has the opportunity to participate in the activity of his choice.

During the off season the football players and other athletes keep in shape by an extensive weight and body-building course now offered at the high school. It is an excellent way for the football player to keep in shape during the spring and winter.

Another of Henny's pet projects is the obstacle course at the high school. This was a community project. The poles were furninshed and the holes dug by the Park Department. The Varsity Club and the industrial arts department at the high school had a hand in erecting the course. The poles were used during the war by the Water Department and were no longer needed. The course is patterned after the one used by the Marines at Parris Island, and the one the State Police use to get in shape.

The course is also available to police and firemen who want to stay in shape, and excellent for the football team. The other day an Army truck pulled up outside the high school. According to Henny, the lieutenant in charge asked if the boys in the truck could take a trip through it, but they had something to say about the matter; they wanted no part of it. Now you can stop wondering what those poles and boards lined up on Manchester Field are for.

A Fine 45th For WHS 1920

The Winchester Country Club was the scene of a very gay gathering on Friday evening, June 4th, when the class of 1920, W.H.S. held their 45th reunion.

A pleasant social hour before dinner gave the members a chance to greet their classmates of yesteryear and reminisce about the good old days at Winchester High School. Many forgotten incidents were brought to light in the course of the evening and it was especially gratifying to get up to date on the members that were unable to attend the last few reunions.

Our appreciation and thanks go to Edward G. MacDonald, our genial host for the evening, in arranging such a nice cocktail hour, which was followed by a delicious tenderloin of beef or lobster dinner.

Stuart Eldredge, class president, was master of ceremonies for the evening and welcomed the members present. He asked that we bow our heads in silent prayer for our departed classmates. Representative Harrison Chadwick was called upon to say a few words and he spoke briefly on the various changes that have taken place in our educational program and the school system since our graduation in 1920. He then called on Dr. Alston Noyes who came all the way from St. Louis, Missouri, to attend this reunion and Alston brought us up-to-date on his family and their activities since his departure from Winchester.

Members attending this reunion were Stuart Eldredge, class president; Helen Bowe Robbins, vice president; Lillian Gray Donaghey, class treasurer; Rep. Harrison Chadwick, Mr. and Mrs. Carl A. Chaplin (Dorothy Lewis), Mr. and Mrs. Jerry McCarron, Dr. and Mrs. Alston Noyes, Edward G. MacDonald, Catherine McMinimum McGrath, Ruth S. Nelson, Alice M. Nolan, John Pushee, Mary Quill Burke, Eleanor Tilden Jefferson, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Jordan (Evelyn Toppan).

The following letters of regrets and well wishes from members unable to attend this reunion were read by Lillian Gray Donaghey in charge of reservations: Carol Dow Howe of Andover, who was in England; Edna Mitten Gardner from Honolulu; Sherwood Kelley of Andover; R. Fred Ashton of Squantum; Pearl Dearborn Antle of Milford, N. H.; Jennie Ralph; Louise Simonds Price of Painsville, Ohio; Hazel R. Bowles of Medford; Helen Foley Daley of Lawrence; Mary Fitzgerald Bane of Woburn; Mary Maguire Donlon and Anne Kronquist Blodgett. We were also sorry that our beloved teacher, Mrs. Ella Stacy and also Mr. Gilson were unable to attend as our guests.

Our thanks go to the committee who worked with the class president, Stuart Eldredge, in arranging this reunion, Edward G. MacDonald, Frank Holland, Lillian Gray Donaghey, Ruth S. Nelson, and Alice Nolan, all of Winchester.

The evening passed all too quickly and reluctant good-byes were said with the hope that we would all be able to attend our 50th reunion in 1970.

Four Attending Aquatic School

Four Winchester students are now attending the National Red Cross Aquatic School at Camp Kiwanee, Hanson, Mass. They are Patricia L. Shinney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Shinney of 5 Fairmount Street; William H. O'Connor, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. O'Connor of 24 Oneida Road; Frederick L. Marotta, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Marotta of 28 Tufts Road; and Barbara Bund, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bund of 18 Laurel Hill Lane.

Upon the successful completion of the ten-day course they will qualify as certified Red Cross Water Safety instructors and be eligible to teach Red Cross swimming and life-saving courses.

The Camp Kiwanee Aquatic School is directed by Frank B. Holland, field representative for the American National Red Cross. It is the largest of twenty-five aquatic schools in operation throughout the country with a combined enrollment of over 3000 students.

Students are trained in all phases of first aid, life saving, swimming and accident prevention. Specialized courses are offered in synchronized swimming, boating, and swimming for the handicapped. Aquatic school graduates may teach classes in all aspects of aquatics and first aid. Each year over 156,000 classes in water safety are conducted, and more than a million-and-a-half swimming certificates are issued.

Two special events, open to the public, will highlight the Camp Kiwanee program. A water show is scheduled for 3 p.m. Sunday, June 20, while an impressive graduation ceremony at 8 p.m. Tuesday, June 22, will bring the 1965 school to a close.

New Vocational Program At Rindge Technical

The Cambridge School Department will establish two post-high school courses, one in Electronic Technology and one in Chemical Technology beginning in September 1965.

The purpose of this program is to train persons to become technicians in the fields of electronics and chemistry. Opportunities abound for people seeking careers in these areas of employment. In addition, this training will enable one to take advantage of the special training and retraining which is becoming an accepted condition of employment in the rapidly changing industrial world.

Each class will have openings for twenty-five students. Enrollment is open to high school graduates who have completed the following requirements: four years of English, three years of mathematics, two units in science and two units in history.

Each applicant will be expected to take a qualifying examination which will have sections on English, mathematics, science, and mechanical drawing.

Both courses will be in session for thirty-six weeks each year for two years. This will provide 1110 hours per year of training in the student's choice of subject matter. The school day will run from 10:30 a.m. until 5:15 p.m. Monday through Friday. A period of forty-five minutes will be allowed for lunch. It is expected that a student will occupy his time outside the classroom with a program of continuing reading and study.

The tuition for students from towns or cities outside of Cambridge will be $600 per year and this expense will be borne by the community where the student resides. The cost of textbooks and laboratory fees will be charged to the students since it is expected that they will build up a collection of textbooks which will serve them in their chosen careers.

Candidates will be notified regarding the date of the examination for admission.

Seeing The Fair

WORLD'S FAIR FUN. During their recent visit Mr. and Mrs. Joe Douglas of 3 Kenilworth Road enjoyed riding the AMF Monorail, one of the attractions of the New York World's Fair. The monorail circles the Fair's scenic lake area on two parallel 4000-foot closed loops.

World's Champ Wrestling At Boston Garden

Bruno Sammartino (The original), of Abruzze, Italy, puts his heavyweight wrestling championship on the line at Boston Garden on Saturday night, June 19, against Gorilla Monsoon, to headline an Abe Ford presentation.

Sammartino sold out Madison Square Garden in New York 15 times in a row. "Ring" Magazine rates him as the "world's most popular wrestler" and his gate appeal justifies that conclusion.

The champion's opponent is everything his name implies. The Gorilla is a bad man in all phases of wrestling. He figures to give Sammartino a hard time of it with his rough tactics.

However, Sammartino is a weight lifter and regarded by many as the strongest man in the world today. This should give Gorilla Monsoon plenty to think about when he gets out of line, as he is almost certain to do.

A special tag team match will herald the return of 625-pound Haystack Calhoun, favorite of the kids, paired up with Wahoo McDaniels, middle linebacker of the New York Jets in the American Football League, against the Golden Terror and Dr. Jerry Graham.

Wahoo will enter the ring in full Indian regalia. He is extremely well-liked in AFL circles, with a big personal following.

In a special match, Argentina Apollo, protege of Argentina Rocca, takes on Tony Newberry. Apollo has that wonderful Rocca skill and agility.

To wrap it all up there will be a midget tag team match and other big bouts.

World championship wrestling returns to Boston, Saturday night at the Garden, on June 19.

Violin Recital By Students Of Mrs. Ryder

On Thursday evening, June 10, an enjoyable recital was given by pupils of Mrs. James Ryder of 14 Grove Street to a congenial audience of their families and friends. The young artists were ably accompanied by Mrs. James Papadinis.

The program began with Nancy Clark playing A Wild Indian by Edmund Severn, Minuet in G major by Johann Sebastian Bach, and a colorful interpretation of The Gypsy Prince, also by Severn. Judy Sharon followed with a good performance of Allegro Moderato from Concerto in B minor by O. Rieding, and the renowned Caprice Viennois by Fritz Kreisler.

The Allegro from the Students Concerto by Seitz was Scott Knopf's first selection. He then gave a strong and rhythmic rendition of the waltz La Brunette by Severn.

The program was brought to a successful close with Susan Magee playing the Sicilienne by Kreisler and an effective performance of the Allegro from the A minor Concerto by the skillful master of violin technique, Antonio Vivaldi.

300 Young Music Makers Please Their Audience

The elementary school pupils of Winchester displayed their musical prowess at the annual spring concert last Friday evening in the high school auditorium.

An enthusiastic audience of parents, family members, and friends had praise for the young musicians and their directors.

One father, having come from a sense of duty, went home glad that he had been urged to attend, and he added, "Whatever money is spent on the music program in the schools, it's worth it."

Other parents admired the ability of the music teachers to handle such large groups of children so well. And one mother whose four children have gone through the grade school music program praised it, commenting on the remarkable progress made by the pupils.

Some of the selections were difficult, and easier pieces of music could have been played flawlessly and effortlessly, but the youngsters rose to the challenge.

Wendell S. Withington, director of music in the schools, was the accompanist for the Sixth-Grade Chorus which was conducted by Miss Jeanne Loudon of the music department.

The Elementary School Orchestra was under the direction of John Woodworth, and the Elementary School Band was conducted by Frederick J. Murray, both of the music department.

S. O. I. News

This coming week end is the Grand Lodge Convention which will be held this year in Bretton Woods, N. H., at the Mount Washington Hotel. Our delegates this year to the convention will be Venerable Art Dunbar, Carmen Frongillo, Richard Penta, Dom Provinzano and Bob Fiore, and Chick Vespucci as our first alternate.

There will be this year, as in the years past, many members and friends who go up to the convention to help the delegates occupy their off-duty time, and the delegates always welcome them with open arms. (But let's not forget fellows that it's business before pleasure.)

The charity committee is in a current drive to raise funds, so if you are approached by the committee members, why not try to give them a helping hand. In conjunction with their drive there will be a cook-out at our club quarters on July 31, so mark that date down and try to come on down.

If you haven't seen the usual week-end boys down at the club quarters it's because they have again opened up their cottage at Salisbury Beach. We hope it's a long hot summer for you fellows, or at least on week ends.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Neno Marchesi on the up-coming marriage of their daughter, Barbara, this Sunday. As the saying goes, you will not have lost a daughter, but you will have gained a son.

Mystic Valley Jr. Tennis to Be Here

Local boy and girl tennis players aged 18, 16, 14 and 12 and under are invited to consider entry in the annual Mystic Valley Tennis Center Championships to be held this year in Winchester on June 21-25.

Sponsored by the Winchester Tennis Association along with the New England Lawn Tennis Association, the tournament will draw players from all over New England.

Any interested player may phone Mrs. Arthur Hills at 729-4443 by this Saturday.

Cushman Recitals

Lucy Wilcox Cushman held her three final recitals for this current season at her home on Mt. Vernon Street May 27 and June 9 and 10.

The first musical was held Thursday morning, May 27, and was followed by morning coffee. The following adults took part, playing solos and two pianos: June McInnis, Collette Gowing, Sophia Gardner and Isobel Craft.

After the coffee Mrs. Cushman was presented with a lovely English tea cup and saucer.

Wednesday, June 9, and Thursday, June 10, the programs consisted of solos, duets and two piano numbers. Performing on June 9 were Karen Yapp, Andy Yapp, Janet Smith, Carol Sundberg, Steven Sundberg, Jean Brotherston, Betsey McDonough, Mary Lou McDonough, Jane Curtis, Karen Hemmingsen, Gretchen Hemmingsen and Todd Wadsworth.

Performing on June 10 were Lynda Lyons, Mary Ann Villari, Wayne Kell, Charlene Amico, Kathleen Quigley, Barbara Quigley, Robert Scott, Jean Quigley, Jack Quigley, Becky Hughes, Caroline Quigley, Bradley Scott, and Suzanne Quigley.

At the close of the Thursday night recital Suzanne Quigley, on behalf of the pupils, presented Mrs. Cushman with a pair of hand-cast bookends in the shape of an ancient Greek instrument, the lyre.

Pool-Side Show For Estates Club

"Flowers and Fashion" was the theme of a pool-side fashion show presented by the Winchester Estates Garden Club at a member's home on Wednesday, June 9.

More than one hundred members and guests enjoyed dessert and coffee at gaily decorated card tables arranged around the pool, while members of the club modeled fashions from Sears at Saugus. Hanging pots of flowers decorated the setting and flowers floated in the pool as Helen Sleeper of Sears commented on the fashions.

The models included: Mrs. Leonard Cancelliere, Mrs. John Corf, Mrs. Paul Garrity, Mrs. Vincent George, Mrs. James Maxwell, Mrs. Richard Najarian, Mrs. Frank Pilagonia, and Mrs. Antonio Vacca. Styles for the younger set were modeled by Wayne George, Mary Ann Gundersen, nad Lia Larson.

Mrs. Peter Zirakian was in charge of arrangements: Mrs. Charles Gundersen was in charge of the fashion show and Mrs. Hugh Frey was chairman of the refreshment committee. Coordinating the affair was Mrs. Nolan Jones, president.

What Red Cross Can Mean to You

BLOOD for a family member because you gave a pint through the Massachusetts Regional Blood Program within the past year—

SATISFACTION as a volunteer in working with servicemen or veterans at Chelsea Naval or Bedford V.A. Hospitals—

REASSURANCE acquired in a First Aid course in knowing what to do in an emergency before the doctor comes—

ABILITY to handle the first newborn through taking an Expectant Parents' course—

SECURITY in the water by learning to swim under the experienced guidance of a Red Cross Water Safety instructor—

TRANSPORTATION to a hospital or clinic by a friendly Red Cross driver—

RAPID COMMUNICATION to a son or husband in the service through the efforts of a local volunteer working with the Red Cross Field Director at a military installation—

PLEASURE in filling a Friendship box to be sent to a boy or girl in a disaster area — or making holiday favors for the enjoyment of veterans at the Bedford V. A. Hospital—

These are some of the things that Red Cross can mean to you. Why not find out from your local Red Cross how you can help and be helped. Visit your Red Cross Chapter at 84 Washington Street, between the Public Library and the Town Hall.

Changing Congress Features Morse

F. Bradford Morse (R.-Mass.) will pinpoint the Congressman's dual responsibility to his district and the nation, Monday, June 21 at 7:30 p.m. on Channel 2's "The Changing Congress."

Cameras follow Morse as he makes his rounds in Massachusetts fifth Congressional district. He is seen at the Concord Town Hall discussing the Vietnam crisis with college professors, keeping prescheduled appointments with his constituents in his Lowell office, visiting workingmen in neighborhood taverns and stores, talking to businessmen, and holding a free-wheeling session with his volunteer staff workers to find out the local gripes and needs.

Mr. Morse explains that he makes these trips at least twice a month, in an effort to balance his dual obligations. When asked whether a Congressman is the constitutents' voice or the voice of Washington, he smiles. The Congressman, says F. Bradford Morse, must be the voice of both the people in his district and the nation.

This fifth program in "The Changing Congress" series was produced for National Educational Television by Eugene Lichtenstein.

Brush up On Social Security

Monthly old-age, survivors, and disability insurance benefits in the town of Winchester now top 140,000 according to figures released by John J. Rynne, Cambridge social security district manager.

"The increase over last year can be attributed to the changes in the law in recent years, as well as to the growth of our aged population," Mr. Rynne said. "This money stimulates local business; most of it is spent for food, clothing, and shelter. There is no longer any doubt that social security benefits are helping to stabilize the income and spending power of our whole economy."

Monthly benefits first became payable in January 1940 and they have continued without interruption for years accompanied by a steady growth in the number of beneficiaries. Mr. Rynne noted that as of January 1, 1965, some 1,900 residents of Winchester were collecting about $1,680,000 annually from social security.

More people, he said, could draw social security benefits if they knew more about the law, and for that reason they are urged to visit or call the local social security office whenever they have a question concerning their benefits or responsibilities.

The following table shows the number and amount of each type of monthly benefit paid in Winchester as of January 1, 1965:

Beneficiary Group	No. of Beneficiaries	Total of Paym.
Retired Worker	1,110	$91,900
Wife or Husband	219	10,200
Widow or Widower	257	18,300
Mothers and children	213	12,600
Disabled Workers and dependents	109	7,820

The year 1965 marks several milestones in the history of social security. The January 1965 benefit payment marked the 300th month of payment since monthly benefit first became payable in January 1940. The number of monthly benefits currently being paid will reach the 20 million mark in 1965. In addition, August is the 30th anniversary of the signing of the Social Security Act by President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Feminine Don'ts Recalled by ALA

When it comes to women drivers, men always seem willing to give advice, although some of it may not be printable in a family publication, notes the Automobile Legal Association (ALA).

Advice to women drivers from a woman is something else, however —perhaps more pertinent and less full of angry or sarcastic words.

And when such advice can stand the test of time, especially when some of it cries for a smile, the advice may be worthwhile repeating.

Below are some sage words for women motorists written more than a half-century ago when the sight of a woman behind the wheel of an auto still bordered a little on the unusual—"like her driving," a man might say.

The hints are extracted from an article, "A Few Feminine Dont's," by Elsie F. Burr in the March 21 1917, issue of The New England Motorist, official magazine of the ALA.

Miss Burr advised her fellow females:

—"Don't ask your own husband, father or brother to teach you how to drive the car. Some other husband, father or brother will prove a much better teacher.

—"Don't expect to be favored by the policeman at the crossing. Even a woman must wait for his signal.

—"Don't forget to include an eye cup and a bottle of boric acid solution in your accessories. It is often of great help in case of cinders and dirt.

—"Don't attempt to drive in an open car on a sunny day, unless your hat has a soft brim which can be adjusted to your needs.

—"Don't become so interested in the condition of the road and the general landscape that you forget to look at the speedometer once in a while.

—"Don't try to drive in pumps or high-heeled shoes. They look foolish and are decidedly unsafe."

MISS DEB

. . . answers questions about Junior Miss etiquette, grooming and interests.

Q. I've dated a new boy several times, and he's the greatest. My best friend told me she heard he wants to date me more, but that he's afraid he can't keep up with my crowd. The trouble is, most of the other kids have quite a bit more money than he does. How can I let him know that the difference in allowances doesn't matter.

A. Try circulating enthusiastic words about him over the same grapevine that got the message to you. But back it up by being especially enthusiastic about "non-money." Start organizing some informal and inexpensive "crowd" parties — maybe a picnic or a hot dog cookout. Before you begin your campaign to charm, make up your mind not to be disappointed if you have to skip a costly event once in awhile.

Q. I'm a low brow. Physically, that is. I've tried wearing my hair up, but that just seems to make my forehead look lower. And wispy bangs don't help much either. Can anything help?

A. You're on the right track, but you haven't gone quite far enough. You're correct that wispy bangs don't help a low forehead. Instead, choose short, thick bangs that extend just below your natural hair line. Be sure that the bang is thick enough so it conceals the hairline completely. You can even have a bang effect without cutting your hair. Simply comb the hair across your forehead and secure it on the other side. Why not treat yourself to a session with a good hairdresser and learn how to arrange all kinds of beguiling and concealing bangs.

Q. Every summer I turn red and stay red until cool weather comes back. I don't tan, and even when I'm not sunburned, I turn bright pink just from the heat. When the temperature is high, I look like an embarrassed lobster. Is there any way I can manage to look fresh and cool? Or do I just have to wait until winter?

A. Some complexions are extra-sensitive to heat, and, of course, you can't shed your skin. But you can learn how to minimize the reaction so you look rosy instead of ruddy. First, stay away from reds, pinks and oranges that accentuate your coloring. Make a big play for cool blues, greens, violets and crisp white. Next, be certain never, never to wear make-up with a rosy hue. You have too much of that already, so choose a biege or ivory tone instead. A smooth and sleek hairdo avoids damp little ringlets around your face that contribute to the too-warm look. When you start feeling overheated, pat cold water on the inside of your arms and the back of your neck. And think cool!

En Ka Notes Net Fair Gain And Reports on Gifts

The secluded garden of Mrs. Winthrop Knox provided an ideal setting for the 63rd annual meeting of En Ka Society on June 8th. Luncheon was served by Mrs. Austin Broadhurst and her committee preceding the business meeting at which Mrs. Bradford Bentley, president of En Ka, presided.

Always awaited by the membership with bated breath, the results of the recent Street Fair brought a resounding round of applause. "Sunflower '65" chairman, Mrs. Donald Birchall, reported a net profit of $14,679.66.

Donations, cotton candy and the baseball game were the biggest money-makers, in that order. The En Ka board and the Street Fair committee enjoyed a very warm happy feeling at the way the whole town of Winchester enthusiastically supported the Fair.

Mrs. Winthrop Knox, finance chairman, reported on gifts around town during the past year: To Red Cross, $300; Winchester Civic Committee, $140; Winchester Auxiliary Fire Department, $850; Visiting Nurse Association Comfort Fund, $60; Winchester Youth Hockey, $400; Winchester Wee Sachems (Pop Warner Football) $600; Homefronters for Christmas postage $169.93; Winchester Hospital $3,283.50; Babe Ruth Baseball League $800; Boy Scouts $400; Operation Cause (WHS) $224; and Winchester Scholarship Fund $2,000. In addition, $557.65 went to the Home for the Aged and $146.07 for Christmas and Easter projects.

Mrs. Alvan Smith, chairman of the nominating committee, announced the following slate of officers for 1965-66, which was approved with additional names voted on by the membership and appointed by the executive board:

Mrs. Birchall ended the meeting by giving her Street Fair directors a real thrill. She presented each with a clever lapel pin, "a tired sunflower."

Immaculate Conception To Hold Joint Dance

This Saturday night, June 19, at 8 o'clock, the Immaculate Conception and V.F.W. Post 3719 will hold a dance at the Immaculate Conception Hall.

The proceeds will go to the Immaculate Drum and Bugle Corps to purchase flags and equipment so badly needed and anyone from Winchester who witnessed the fine performance of this corps on Memorial Day can appreciate the efforts put forth by these boys and girls and of the adults who give their time willingly. This social affair will help purchase some of these needs. Everyone is welcome. Refreshments will be served during the evening.

Reservations may be obtained by calling Julia Bonesera PA 9-6584 or Nick Luongo, commander of V.F.W. PA 9-4150. This social could be everyone's way to say thanks to these young boys and girls for a job being well done. So let's see as many adults as possible Saturday night, June 19th, at Immaculate Conception Hall.

Richard J. Mingolelli of 462 Highland Avenue, has been promoted to the grade of airman second-class in the Air Force Reserve. Airman Mingolelli is assigned to the 902nd Combat Support Squadron, a unit of the 902nd Troop Carrier Group based at Grenier Field in Manchester, N. H., and equipped with C119 aircraft for the airlifting of paratroopers and support equipment into forward zones.

Penner

Action on the bill pending before the Massachusetts Legislature—awaiting study commission recommendations on or before July 7—could avert a court fight in this state over the constitutionality of the Commonwealth's birth control blue law.

The Planned Parenthood Federation of America, which brought the Connecticut test case before the Supreme Court, hailed the decision as "a tremendous step towards elimination of all restrictions on the right of parents to plan their families . . ."

Msgr. John C. Knott, director of the Family Life Bureau of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, supported the court decision by saying that while the Catholic Church opposes the use of contraceptive methods on moral ground, "the church does not seek to use the power of the state to compel compliance with its moral views."

And, "Aside from the fact you can't legislate morality, this (birth control blue law) was bad because it was unenforceable," he added.

The Rev. Dr. Penner said Tuesday that he had long favored essentially what is being proposed to alter the archaic and harmful Massachusetts law, but noted he could comment no further until the commission had finished its work and issued its public report.

Dr. Penner, chairman of the service division of the National Board of Missions of the United (Congregational) Church, is a member of the Winchester Congregational Church.

He has served as pastor in Congregational churches in Stockbridge, Northampton (where one of his parish members was the late President Calvin Coolidge; and Dr. Penner officiated at President Coolidge's funeral), Holyoke, and in New York City. He was also an exchange minister to the British Isles in 1957.

Born in Mountain Lake, Minnesota, Dr. Penner received his A.B. degree at Bethel College in Kansas, his B.D. degree from Hartford Seminary, and attended Marburg and Heidelberg Universities in Germany on Welles Study Fellowships in 1930 and 1932. He was awarded an honorary Doctor of Divinity degree by Defiance College in Ohio.

Dr. Penner hast resided in Winchester for the past eight years with his wife, Bernice, and four children, Richard, David, Allan and Lois.

Excise Tax Cuts, Reductions Seen Immediately Says Merchant Leader

A long-awaited $4.7 billion excise tax cut bill went into effect across the nation on Tuesday, and President Johnson remarked on signing the much-heralded consumer bill: "This excise tax bill will make its maximum contribution to our economic health only if businesses pass along to consumers the full amount of the reduction in tax . . . I urge every manufacturer and every retailer to do just that."

Here in Winchester some small price reductions were immediately evident; and some that can be reduced may not be, according to Edward Cullen, treasurer of the Winchester News Company and president of the Winchester Merchants Association.

"The customer will immediately see the excise reductions here and elsewhere where the retailer was responsible for collecting the tax," Mr. Cullen noted, "but the hidden reductions will be less noticeable by the consumers as the tax was included in the manufacturer's cost, and the savings will either take longer to come through or else will be absorbed in new producer price increases."

Mr. Cullen described by example how the new excise tax reduction would work to the benefit of the consumer in some cases, and would not be seen in some others:

"If the price tag on Item X, a piece of jewelry, for example, reads $10 plus 10% federal tax, Mr. Cullen suggests in almost every instance the consumer will receive the full benefits of the tax reductions, for he will no longer have to pay that tax.

If the price tag on Item Y, however, a camera for example, reads $10 federal tax included, Mr. Cullen suggests that in some cases the price would be marked down—but that in others the manufacturers, wholesalers and dealers will each feel that the consumer has been used to paying the higher price with tax, and raise their prices enough to offset any benefit otherwise intended to be passed along to the consumer.

"The place where excise tax reductions will be most noticeable here in Winchester," Mr. Cullen said, "will be on automobiles, appliances, and jewelry."

But there will be other price reductions, too, meaning lower tags on furs, handbags, face creams, watches, pens, musical instruments, movies, concerts and athletic events, among a long list of items reduced.

Harvard Honors Prof. Aiken For Computers Work

A former Winchester resident, Harvard professor and pioneer in the field of computer technology was awarded an honorary degree of science at Harvard's 314th commencement before some 5,000 alumni of the world-renowned Cambridge university last Thursday.

Howard H. Aiken, 65, professor of information technology at the University of Miami, formerly of 183 Highland Avenue and also formerly a professor of applied mathematics and director of the Computation Lab at Harvard, received an honorary doctor of science from Harvard.

The honorary degree citation read: "It shall be the enduring fame of this distinguished teacher and scientist to have made the first mark in a revolutionary new field of technology."

Professor Aiken was a pioneer in the field of computer and automation technology. While a graduate student at Harvard in 1937, he conceived of the idea for a large scale digital computer. With the help of some IBM engineers the machine, the now famous Mark I, was built in 1943 and used by the U.S. Navy during World War II for classified research. He later also helped build the Mark II, III, and IV, also used by the U.S. Government military departments for research.

The Mark I was later dismantled in 1959, and half of it used as a lobby display at the Harvard Computation Lab lobby where Prof. Aiken served as director from 1946 to 1961, and the other half taken to the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, D.C. for preservation as a historical instrument.

Prof. Aiken started his teaching and research career at Harvard in 1935 as an instructor in the mathematics department. He was made a full professor in applied mathematics in 1946, and remained until his retirement in 1961.

Professor Aiken continues his career in retirement as professor of information technology at the University of Miami, and also has a business in New York known as Aiken & Associates, consultants in the computer and automation field.

Rep. Chadwick Says DPW Not Hurrying For Route 3 Here; Warns It May Come

"So far as I can tell and from what I have learned the Department of Public Works is not planning a quick move out here," Rep. Harrison Chadwick told the Star recently when asked about developments relative to his warning to the town in May that the DPW is under increasing pressure to complete the Route 3 extension, and that the proposed Winchester alternative layout might be the most susceptible to drafting the plan selection.

Rep. Chadwick noted that if the state is to receive 90-10 federal interstate highway construction funds, everything must be under contract or under construction by 1972.

He explained that normally, the federal-state split of interstate highway building costs is half and half, but as an inducement to speed the program along the federal government upped its contributions to 90 per cent until 1972.

Massachusetts has significantly lagged in the completing of its plans and letting out of contracts due to Legislative built-in city and town veto powers—literally grinding the interstate highway program here to a standstill. (The Route 3 extension controversy has continued for over ten years.)

In a recent letter to Winchester's representative on Beacon Hill in answer to queries on the subject, Department of Public Works Commissioner Francis W. Sargent wrote:

"...Regarding the extension of Route 3 south of Route 128 into Boston, the Department has not worked on this project, nor is it included in our present program. I wish to point out that before a final line is adopted, the Department will confer with local officials of the cities and towns involved, as well as hold public hearings on the various routes considered feasible. However, these steps are not planned for the immediate future."

"This I consider is reassurance that nothing has been done yet," Rep. Chadwick said in recounting the letter's contents to the Star. "I don't know how long the immediate future will last, but we must be alert," he added with continuing evident concern.

The Star learned this week from one traveler northward that it looks as though the state is taking care of the one bypass hitch in Route 3 coming southward from New Hampshire through Tyngsboro now. A swampy area there was bypassed, but now will be cut through. It appears reasonable to assume once the state has completed this task, it will direct its thinking on Route 3 to completing the extension into Boston. This could mean attention to the extension could come this year.

One of the proposed extension routes cuts right through Winchester, from Lexington running parallel to Hutchinson Road and through the Winchester Country Club golf course, crossing Mystic Street and sweeping toward the Medford Boat Club. It might then cross the lake by the dam near the boat club and go along the other side of the river to join with Route 93 in Medford.

Rep. Chadwick is Winchester's representative on the Metropolitan Area Planning Council, and is chairman of its Transportation Coordinating Committee which includes transportation issues for all area cities and towns north of Boston. He noted that the committee was assured, along with the representative from the U.S. Bureau of Roads, that the cities and towns would be consulted before any major routes were run through their environs.

There are ten transportation coordinating committees for the Greater Boston area which are involved with coordinating highway and rapid transit development for the core and metropolitan area city.

Busy Building Winchester

Winchester is a busy, building place this summer; and for a town with supposedly very little left to build upon or develop there is a lot of building and developing going on here. A quick cook's tour of the town would turn up the six projects shown below: three on the west side, two on the east side, and one in the center, along with at least one or more other projects in each photo category shown —all adding up to over an estimated $7 million worth of construction going on here in this six square mile territory this summer.

Former Winchesterite Is Elected President Of Bowdoin's Alumni

George T Davidson, son of the late Park Commissioner and Mrs. George T. Davidson, and a graduate of Winchester High School in the class of 1934, was elected to the presidency of the Bowdoin College Alumni Association at the annual meeting of the Association, held in conjunction with the 1965 commencement day activities at Bowdoin College in Brunswick, Maine.

George, who played baseball for Winchester High, and later went on to captain the 1938 State Championship Baseball Team at Bowdoin, is a former high school principal, who is currently serving Kennett High School in Conway, New Hampshire as director of guidance. He has been a visiting lecturer in education at the University of New Hampshire for the past three years, is a past president of the New Hampshire Principals Association and a past president of the New Hampshire Guidance Council. Last fall, he was the co-chairman of the New England Personnel and Guidance Conference held at the Mt. Washington Hotel in Bretton Woods, N.H.

During the summer, he is owner-director of Camp Wakuta for Boys in Freedom, New Hampshire. Among the boys who will be attending Wakuta this summer from Win-

New Winchester Swim Club On West Side Approved By Board Of Appeals

The Winchester Board of Appeal has approved a petition by Winchester Swim Club, Inc., to construct a private recreational swimming facility, with accompanying bathhouse and off-street parking, on a five acre tract of undeveloped land in the western part of town, situated near the intersection of Johnson Road and Ridge Street.

This decision by the Board of Appeal means that there may soon be a third private recreational facility in this town, and the first new one to be organized here in this century, or for a period of 65 years. The Winchester Country Club was organized in 1897, and the Winchester Boat Club was started in 1900.

The Board of Appeal decision, filed with the Town Clerk on Wednesday, June 16, followed a well attended public hearing on the matter on Tuesday, May 11, at the Town Hall, in which about 50 persons appeared to register their arguments either favoring or disapproving the project.

The petition came under Section 2(C), subparagraphs 3, 8 and 10 of the Winchester Zoning By-laws for a special exception to use land in Single Residence District A for the construction and operation of a swimming pool and accessory facilities.

Austin Broadhurst of 18 Glen Road represented the petitioning Swim Club, a non-profit membership corporation organized "to encourage social, athletic and recreational exercises among and for the benefit of its members...," and which has about 110 family memberships, most of whom reside in the Winchester Estates area about a quarter mile north from the proposed swimming pool site. About 36 persons spoke in favor of the swimming pool facility at the hearing.

Leo Garvey, representing various developers and residents, spoke in opposition and presented a petition of 54 signatures of families near the area, mostly from Cox Road, Ridge Street and Thornberry Road, who were recorded as against the project. About 18 persons spoke in opposition at the hearing.

Volpe Names Two To State Civil Defense Advisory Committee

Governor John A. Volpe recently announced the appointment of two Winchester residents to his Civil Defense Advisory Committee. Mrs. John J. Mahoney of 8 Everett Avenue and Robert Cagglano of 12 Wedgemere Avenue were among thirty committee members named.

The committee convened for its first meeting at the Governor's Second Resource Management Conference at Boston University and heard Governor Volpe address a group of 300 business executives, now developing emergency plans for industrial survival in the event of nuclear disaster.

The Governor said in part: "Because of my years in the construction industry, I bank on talent, know-how and drive of American business and labor, in cooperation with government to cope with any severe emergency—including hurricane, flood, fire or enemy action.

"There is no greater business function today than to save Massachusetts from nuclear doom. There is no finer business service than to strengthen peace by increasing economic might.

"I warn you: the most deadly gesture of our atom-haunted times is not the shudder of fear but the shrug of indifference. We must not be caught napping. We must prepare for all contingencies."

Firefighters Organize To Join International 'Association'---Union

Twenty-eight Winchester firefighters met with representatives from the International Association of Firefighters, AFL-CIO, at the V.F.W. Home at 15 White Street on Tuesday evening, June 15, and voted to organize a local unit and join the firemen's union.

Although the firemen's union has attempted to get men of the local fire department to start a local and join the association on several occasions—about fourteen and again four years ago, Winchester firefighters have consistently turned the union down. This time, however, they are already well on the road to full local organization (with temporary local officers already elected), and full union membership (with more than the 51% vote for charter application already committed).

Events are still in a state of flux on the matter. The temporary officers of the proposed firefighters union here have not yet filed application for a local charter, although they say they are planning to after the 12 firefighters who were working at the station the night of union organization have had a chance to vote on it, and after permanent officers have been elected.

The Town's Selectmen have not yet been officially notified of the new firefighters union group, "Although we are aware there was a meeting held last week for this purpose, and heard that the majority of those present voted to join the association," Edward Hicks, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, told the Star this week.

"We're not really sure what has prompted this, or what the firefighters think they will be able to gain in an association such as this beyond what the town provides for them," Mr. Hicks added.

The Board of Selectmen, as the town's governing body, is expected to meet with the firefighters soon to learn from them the purpose of their action.

Fire Chief Frank Amico said he did not see anything to be gained by the firefighters joining the union association because Winchester already provides most of the fringe benefits and pay scales that the union tries to get for member departments in other towns. He said he could only see it as being more of a social thing where the men could get representation in and through a large organization devoted to firefighters interests.

A spokesman for the men of the Winchester Fire Department said they expected to have an election to elect permanent officers sometime in the next two weeks, after the 12 firefighters who were working the night of the organization have had an opportunity to vote on joining.

Of the 28 men voting last week, 27 voted to organize a union local, more than the 51% of the 42 men

Moving Evening Tribute Given To The Mallerys

Hundreds of First Congregational Church members, Forumites, and friends from neighboring churches in the town gathered in Chidley Hall Wednesday evening, June 16, in "An Evening of Tribute" to Rev. and Mrs. Wesley A. Mallery.

It was an evening gay with beautiful flowers and music and friendliness—short, witty speeches and inspiring presentations—yet with an undertone of sadness, for after ten years of service in the First Congregational Church, the Mallerys are leaving to accept a call to the Stanley Congregational Church in Chatham, New Jersey.

The program was notable for the appreciation and respect in which Wesley and Helen Mallery are held by all Winchester. It was noted how many young people turned out for this reception, those who have been in Forum with Mr. Mallery, those who are present members, and younger people who look forward to their years in Forum.

When a stage filled with "Forum graduates" sang heartily "Thank Heavens for Mr. Mal (an original composition, with no apology to Gigi)," there was no one more delighted than Mr. Mal himself:

"That heavens for Mr. Mal, Without him what will
Forum ever do
Thank heavens for Mr. Mal."
For all the trips,
the conferences, too.
Beret on head and camera always flashing
The firecrackers sent him crashing through the ceiling.
We thank you for all your years,
We thank you for them all,
And now that they are through,
Best luck in what the future holds for you.
Thank heavens, thank heavens,
"Thank heavens for Mr. Mal,

Tom Niblock, president of Forum, assisted by Ellen Moody, gave a brief and heartwarming message thanking Mr. Mallery for "his patient ear to any and all suggestions . . . over the past ten years . . . attending limitless fall outings, fall dances, winter plays, international week ends, spring trips, etc." He added that "It is not for his organizational abilities that Forumites will remember Mr. Mallery, nor for the hours he spent working on Forum's future, but because he has been an inspiration to all Forumites." The group presented him with a gift.

$28,040 In Payments To Winchester Vets

A $28,040 bonanza was dropped into the laps of Winchester veterans earlier this year, thanks to instructions issued by President Johnson to the Veterans Administration.

He ordered that all dividends that were to become payable this year to holders of GI insurance be paid at the beginning of the year rather than held until the anniversary dates of the policies, when they would normally be paid.

Sharing in the distribution, which amounts to about $224,500,000, are 4,400,000 veterans of World War II who hold National Service Life Insurance policies and 210,000 World War I veterans who are covered by U.S. Government Life Insurance policies.

Only a fraction of the GI's in the nation, slightly more than 20 percent of them, have such insurance.

As for the 351 local residents who are veterans of the Korean conflict, they will not share in the distribution. The policies they hold do not provide for annual dividend payments.

Last Day Of School For 11 WHS Teachers

The last-day-of-school luncheon for WHS teachers was held in the cafeteria on Friday, June 18, but there was a new format.

In the past, members of the Parent-Faculty Association prepared and served the luncheon for the teachers. This year the faculty with their husbands and wives had an "intra-school" buffet, with the parent-faculty group acting as sponsor.

Approximately 100 staff members and guests enjoyed this last teachers' meeting. One of the highlights of the luncheon was the presentation of gifts to 11 faculty members leaving the school system at the close of this school year.

James H. Case, III, of the English department, going to Harvard for his doctorate in literature.

Miss Naomi D. Fleishman of the social studies department, who will do special research in social studies for Educational Services, Inc., of Cambridge.

The Winchester Star

Established 1880 By Theodore P. Wilson, Sr.

Editorials:

The Right To Assemble

We note this week with some surprise the organizing here to form a union in the Fire Department. Consistently in the past town employees have declined to join unions covering municipal departments as not being in the best interests of the town or even for their own best interests. An now we have one all but established—merely waiting to go through the formalities before applying and for receiving a charter.

In a town such as Winchester opinions are bound to be split. Many businessmen will tend to look with disfavor upon the idea of having a union in one of the town's departments. Others, non-business-oriented types, may tend to look upon the unionization of the Fire Department as possibly a healthy social development that should not prove detrimental to the town and may prove beneficial to the firemen.

The significant difference in the approach of the above outlined views lies most importantly between whether the change we see happening here is one of evolution or one of revolution.

If the formation of a union local here is impelled by a sense of revolution in the Fire Department, then the town may be observing the first development in what could turn out to be a complex problem for the town for many years.

However, if the formation of the union local is more a matter of evolution to acquire social organization for the principles of united representation and the allied protection of unity, then the town may simply have to accept it as something the men may feel happier having—like allowing them the right to have another kind of insurance policy.

It is a little early yet to see which way the wind blows in the Fire Department on this. It does not appear to be entirely revolutional—although there are evidences of elements of this as a motivating factor. It also shows signs of being evolutionary in character, which is very important in determining what the end local product might be like.

Generally, we don't like to see a town department become unionized. The reason for that is not that we are anti-union in any way toward a group or organization to promote the interests of its members. It is to the credit of unions when they can further the social, economic and other aspects of the well-being of their memberships. What is objectionable about some, if not many unions, is that they have a tendency to create in their memberships a false sense of security and welfare relative to their jobs. Often they tend to instill in men the attitude that they cannot be fired even if they don't work or perform poorly in the carrying out of their job. This, in turn, tends to stultify any progress in new developments in job technology or willingness of other workers to assume anything more than the barest minimum in work responsibilities.

While unions generally in town departments could be a bad thing, it would be difficult to say this necessarily would be the case in this instance with this department at this time. More time is needed to observe what course of responsible action the developing firefighters' local will take. We can only hope they choose wise counsel, and think in terms of the town's best interests as well as their own.

It's Your Property
Keep It Clean And Beautiful

Palmer Beach at Wedge Pond has been attractively done over by the town's Park Department and there is now effective control at the gateway to insure that the limited-capacity beach is being used exclusively by Winchester residents. However, some of the users of the public beach property insist on littering it up as though it were their own exclusive pig-pen, and the morning and afternoon Park Department pick-up crews cannot keep up with the litterers!

Heretofore, Winchester residents could point to litter and say, "Outsiders coming here probably did that." But not in this case, and not any more. The litterers of our public property, and we extend the case in point to other public properties about town, are not always someone else from somewhere else: they live right here and are your neighbors and mine—and sometimes we wonder about you, dear reader.

Ah, yes. If it were not for our tax-paid town employees, namely the Park and Highway Department men especially, who go around daily and clean up the refuse left by pigeons and people—and the greater part by the latter, this town would surely be inundated by waste in a short time.

A little more consideration and respect for the value of public property—for the proper and good utilization of public beaches, playgrounds, commons and other areas—and the town would benefit greatly by a neater and more justifiably proud appearance.

A Matter Of Irony

A short item in one of the Boston newspapers yesterday certainly looked ironic in light of this town's recent Recreational Committee hearing to try and get a good recreational facility here. The item was a wire service report that people in one Georgia town were having a tough time integrating their two large recreational facilities and two swimming pool areas—both heretofore divided, one for the white children, the other for the Negro youths. And here Winchester, a small wealthy suburban New England town, is still looking for a basic recreational facility for its youth.

Meanwhile, the Board of Appeal has granted permission for the private Winchester Swim Club to build a swimming pool on the West Side; the chairman of that board commenting on the recreational condition in Winchester:

"In recent years many persons in our town have stated, we agree and so find, that there is a very real need for expanding and diversifying the recreational facilities which the town makes available to its residents, particularly its younger residents."

Liberty Bell

Architectural plans, prepared by the firm of Goutanis & Kennedy of Boston, included a 50-foot long entrance road from Johnson Road to the parking area. The parking area would be screened by shrubbery and lighted at nighttime.

Beyond the parking area, parallel to and approximately 190 feet from Johnson Road, the plans call for a low, one-story structure housing men's and women's dressing rooms and toilets, an office, a storage room and a room for snacks, sandwiches and the like. Passing through a breezeway opening in the middle of this structure, one would then reach a wading pool and a 42 by 82 foot swimming pool. The petitioner's architects plan to fence the pool area for safety (with a smaller, separate fence for the wading pool), and to provide a suitable amount of shrubbery for screening the various facilities.

THE APPEAL DECISION

The principal issues for determination by the Board of Appeal was whether the proposed use, (1) would adversely affect the health or safety of persons living in the neighborhood, (2) would be detrimental to the public welfare, or (3) would be injurious to said neighborhood.

HEALTH & SAFETY

"There is no reason to believe that the petitioner's pool and related activities will adversely affect the health or safety of persons living in the neighborhood," the Appeal Board ruled.

The board noted that the petitioner's organizers had taken reasonable steps toward implementing not only fundamental health and sanitation rules but also rules relating to water safety.

Some objectors claimed the pool would draw more traffic and adversely affect the safety of persons living in the area, but the board denied that that argument had any validity on the basis that Johnson Road, constructed with Chapter 90 funds, approaches the status of being a highway and was constructed to handle a higher degree of traffic than normal residential streets. The board noted the logic that heavy Johnson Road traffic is early morning and late afternoon commuters and that these periods would not conflict with probable peak pool activity on weekends, holidays and early evenings. The board further noted that it felt the off-street parking provided was sufficient to handle most of the contemplated parking for pool users.

PUBLIC WELFARE

"We are of the opinion that a swimming pool of the type contemplated by the petitioner, open to all residents on a first-come, first-served basis, would be a distinct advantage, and not a detriment, to the public welfare," the Board of Appeal said.

The board corroborated its opinion with the following combined statements for analysis: "There is a real need for expanding and diversifying the recreational facilities which the town makes available to its residents, particularly its younger residents...The population of Winchester has risen sharply in recent years. The open spaces in town, the fields and wooded areas which can possibly serve as parks and pools and athletic grounds that the town will need, are rapidly disappearing . . . the situation with respect to swimming, and particularly swimming pools, presently leaves much to be desired ...If, therefore, a group of Winchester residents is willing to privately finance a top quality swimming pool, we believe this is an opportunity which should not be lost...We can only say that is is difficult to think of a better prospective site anywhere in town."

INJURY TO NEIGHBORHOOD

The principal contention of the opponents of the swimming pool club was the issue of injury to the neighborhood—that the pool and activities associated with it would depreciate property values in that part of town due to (1) noise and unsightliness, (2) traffic and parking difficulties, and (3) the possible consumption of liquor on the premises. Another element of consideration was that the Planning Board had contemplated on putting a road through the area linking Johnson Road with Squire Road and the Winchester Estates.

The board pointed out that it was not incompatible to put a recreational use such as swimming pool in a single residence district or else there wouldn't have been any point or purpose of including the provisions for them in the town's by-laws.

A number of factors combine to make it unlikely that this pool would have any injurious visual or audible impact upon the neighborhood, the board added. The architects have taken pains to set the pool back a substantial distance from Johnson Road. The pool building is a low, one-story affair situated on a recessed level. The natural screening afforded by the hill on the east and the wooded ridge on the west will be supplemented by screens of shrubbery and trees and other landscaping. The evidence supports the conclusion that the finished result will be an attractive one.

The board noted that the Winchester Boat Club is precedent in our town for believing the opponent's fears of property devaluation are unfounded.

Although it is perhaps natural and understandable that residents of that section of town in which the locus is situated might be concerned about the possible detrimental consequences to their property values, it is significant that a number of residents in this part of town spoke up in favor of the petition and did not feel that property values in their neighborhood would depreciate, the board's decision noted.

Set back suggestions made by the Planning Board, in view of the possible contingency of the town voting to put a street through the area over a town easement, are adequately met by the petitioner's proposal, the board said.

The board noted that the town's by-laws would not permit the sale or consumption of alcoholic beverages on the site.

APPROVAL

The Board of Appeal unanimously granted the permission applied for subject to certain conditions and limitations prescribed, with the exception of that part of the petition relating to the possible construction of tennis courts. However, the Appeal Board left the door open for the Winchester Swim Club to return via another petition at a later date if it wished to present specific proposals for building tennis courts.

Tribute

Not to be outdone in gaiety and talent, the choir, led by Robert White and Aram Mouradian, arranged an original poem based on the Gilbert and Sullivan tune "Poor Wandering One," commenting "When a parson's not engaged in his employment." Needless to add, the hilarity from this music and the bass tones of Mr. Mouradian rocked the hall with applause.

Ralph C. Thompson gave the brief welcome, Dr. Dwight L. Cart paid moving tribute to Wesley and Helen Mallery. Edgar D. Hinton made the presentation of a gift certificate for a silver coffee pot to match her tea set to Mr. Mallery, and to Mr. Mallery, "Cathedral" in sculpture by Rodin, the beautiful two right hands touching at the finger tips significant of the right hand of God and the right hand of Man. A purse from all their many friends was also given. Mrs. James Hollinshead from the Parish Players presented Mr. Mallery with a gift of a pewter vase, thanking him for his activities on stage with the Players, and as a board member.

The leisurely evening was highlighted with a huge refreshment table laden with coffee and punch and huge platters of delicacies made and donated by the best cooks in the church, and served and arranged by the ladies. In all, it was a wonderful "evening of tribute" to two people who have made a marked contribution to their town while they were here, and who carry with them the good wishes of all in their new post.

As the program committee worded it in their written tribute,

"Who else among us could keep a measure of dignity, a sense of humor, and a cool head while making a travel schedule and reservations for 125 high school boys and girls . . . interrupted briefly to deliver a 6 o'clock Easter Sunrise sermon, an 8 o'clock sermon, to participate in both the 9 and 11 o'clock Easter services and then at 5:30 the following morning, to take off for three hectic days and three sleepless nights touring Quebec City, only to arrive back in town and say, 'It was great.'

"It is then with deep regret that we face this farewell, and offer this moment of tribute. We hope that these years with us, which have so enriched our lives, have in some small measure served to enrich yours, too. May you find much joy and enduring satisfaction in the continuation of your Christian service to your new church, your new community, and your new home. God bless you both."

Excise Tax

Also, for telephone customers the benefits will be automatic. The excise tax charges here were never included in telephone charge rates, the company merely served as tax collector for the federal government. Starting in January the telephone excise will drop from 10 to 3 per cent, and then to 2, 1 and none in following years.

According to Emile Coulon, manager of the local telephone company office, Winchester residents and businessmen were paying an estimated $168,000 in excise telephone taxes last year on a total volume of $1,680,000 telephone business here.

Defense

Chairing the afternoon portion of the conference was Mrs. Philip J. Woodward of 13 Sheffield Road, who is executive assistant for Resources of the Massachusetts Civil Defense Agency.

Mrs. Mahoney was formerly chairman of the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination. Mr. Caggiano, a lawyer, ran for the Republican nomination for Senator for the Sixth Middlesex District last year.

Firefighters

in the department needed to decide upon the issue. At that meeting, a New England representative of the International Association of Firefighters, AFL-CIO, Howard McLernon, the president of the Boston Firefighters Association, Martin Pierce, and the presidents of the Medford, Arlington and Lexington locals, met with the local firefighters to explain the advantages of forming a union local in Winchester.

The present temporary officers of the local as yet unchartered are: Robert Powers, president; Lt. Francis Welch, vice president; Joseph Riga, secretary-treasurer; and Capt. Ernest Howard, Joseph McDonough and Wayne Robinson, serving on the board of directors.

The spokesman for the local organizers said membership in the union was open to the chief of the department and any or all officers as well as the firefighters themselves, unlike industrial type unions that limit membership to labor and disallow the management side for participation.

Dues for the local, once formed, would be $1 a month for each man, with 50 cents going to the international organization, 30 cents going to the state headquarters in Boston, and 20 cents kept at the local unit level.

"The men of the department feel they would be better organized and have more protection and more representation—both at the local and state levels," a spokesman for the developing union local here said yesterday.

When asked if the union was being formed here mainly to serve as a pressure group to exert a more united force upon town government, the spokesman said no. "The move to form a union here definitely isn't made just to apply pressure for more benefits and pay from the town," he said, "as most of the men feel the town is treating them fairly—we just feel at this time that there is need for organization."

Firefighters and policemen are not allowed by state law to strike in any city or town. The international union does, however, act as a lobbying agent in state legislatures on bills relative to firefighters, and serves as a bargaining agent for the local—which must do its own bargaining for wages and benfits—by supplying data relating pay and benefits around the country.

The spokesman for the Winchester firefighters noted several of the successes of the IAF on Beacon Hill in having legislation passed to reduce the length of work weeks from 56 to 48, and in some permissive accepting cases, down to 42 and 40-hour weeks, the state heart and lung laws relative to firemen, and a state vacation act for firefighters.

"In short," the spokesman said, "it gives you organization."

Vets

The $28,040 going to veterans in Winchester is being divided by 580 men and women who saw service in either of the two World Wars.

The checks to World War I vets will average $69 each. Those going to the others will be smaller, averaging $48 apiece. In individual cases, the payments will be above or below these figures, varying with the amount of insurance held.

The Veterans Administration explains that the dividends are primarily a return to the insured veterans of part of their premium payments. The money became available because the mortality rate among the GI's has been lower than anticipated.

For those who are eligible to receive these dividends, it adds, "the preparing and mailing of payments are automatic and require no correspondence from veterans or their families."

Many ex-servicemen will gain in other directions, beginning this month. One new law liberalizes the amounts going to pensioners and provides basic cost-of-living increases for most of them.

Another bill grants increased pensions for those with non-service-connected disabilities. This will affect 1,300,000 veterans and their families.

Degrees

Myopia Hill, John J. Fenoglio, Jr., of 10 Chesterford Road East, Richard T. LeGates of 106 Church Street, Steven M. Rudy of 31 Myopia Road and Arthur P. Schmidt, Jr. of 36 High Street.

The seven recipients of Harvard graduate degrees were John P. Burke of 4 Verplast Avenue, Philip J. Fox of 7 Brantwood Road and Edwin F. Nicholson of 9 Dunham Street, master of business administration degrees; Scott M. Cunningham of 21 Winthrop Street, doctor of business administration; Evander French, Jr. of 24 Everett Avenue and Dorothy B. March of 20 Standish Lane, master of arts in teaching; James J. Gallagher of 10 Bradford Road, doctor of education and William F. Sibley of 15 Cambridge Street, master of arts.

BOOK REVIEW

by Leila-Jane Roberts
Winchester Public Library

THE VALLEY OF THE GOD-ALMIGHTY JONESES

by Maginel Wright Barney

Now we begin to look forward to that pleasant pastime—summer reading. Farewell to the problems of the world and the future and politics and racial imbalance. Just a nice book, easy to hold on the beach or the patio. Pleasant, please!

Here is one answer. Perhaps peace can be found best by looking back. Life was difficult in the 1800's, but recollection remembers the joys more vividly than the sorrows. Victorian families were broken, but when nosy neighbors questioned, "'Where'd you say your father was, dear? What'd you say he was doing?'" Mother had the answer. "'Say he's dead,' she told me without hesitating. 'He is dead to us.'" Daughter never did know the circumstances or the soul-searching that were involved in her parents' parting.

Publicity and the dust jacket mention that the author is writing of her brother, Frank Lloyd Wright, and so she does. But the quality of the book is not biographical nearly so much as reminiscent. Would that more people in later years try to set down in as interesting a way as possible, what they remember and can research of family history, legend and recollection. Too often we bog down in pushing ahead today, and lose sight of our own unique heritage and what the stability of its longevity can mean for future generations.

In 1844 the author's grandfather pulled up his family's roots in Wales and headed for America and the yet-to-be-developed West. Three times he transplanted his family—each time a little farther west—and his final homestead was built on a hillside in Iowa County, Wisconsin. Most of his children married other Welsh emigrants or the children of such, but his daughter Anna married a New England minister who was most interested in music and completely impractical.

The most important possession Anna acquired from this marriage was her son, Frank Lloyd Wright, and the furthering of his genius became her reason for being. One does not feel that the daughter-author felt neglected or unloved, however. Mother, with her intense will power, bound her own family into the fabric of their Lloyd-Jones relatives' lives and the Valley in Iowa County. Eventually this was where Frank built his home Taliesen, which later became a school for architects.

Occasionally there is a ponderable sentence: "Nothing is as still as death; a stone is not so still, because it has never moved." Sometimes there are indications that the author is an artist—her memory for sights and the holding of emotional context through the years. The personality of her beloved brother shines through always in rosy lights which the reader can understand in reverse as typifying a difficult person. "I sat by the fire, watching him. I'd heard it all a hundred times. But he was always commanding, even electrifying, when he expounded his own original beliefs. One is so rarely a witness to true integrity." Here is an individual expounding the values of individualism with courage and humor.

letters to the editor

Only signed letters to the editor of the Star will be considered for publication in these columns. Letters should be brief.

From Seamy To Steamy WHS Next?

Editor of the Star:

If the Town wants its new High School in the center of town, and does not care to resort to "patching up" or extending the present buildings, we have got to give up some taxable property.

The central property most desirable would be that occupied by the steam laundry at the border of our Mill Pond. Why this commercial establishment should ever have been built on this beautiful site I cannot understand. The location is not very far from the new (and costly) Shore Road Playground, and this could be made accessible by the path between the river and the K. of C. building. There is also a vacant lot next to the laundry on Mt. Vernon Street (Converse Place).

Another very desirable piece of land owned by the town on Washington Street, corner of Myrtle Street (occupied for many years by an elementary school) which again could be the site of an elementary school. And, to me not the least benefit would be to have the laundry moved to an outlying location in the commercial district.

Sincerely,
Percy C. Ryerson

Uncovered Trucks, Relief Coming!

Editor of the Star:

I think the townspeople will be interested to learn that relief from the uncovered truck menace both in towns and on the highways is coming soon. My recent letter to the Star pointing out this nuisance, a copy of which was also sent to the Board of Selectmen, has resulted in a fine communication from Chief Joseph J. Derro of the Winchester Police Department.

In his letter he states that orders have been given to officers of his department to be on the lookout for violators of town traffic regulation article 6, section 15.

He further states that he has reason to believe that this problem (of uncovered trucks and vehicles spewing refuse, sand, gravel, etc., on the streets) will be eliminated with the passing of section 36, chapter 85, of the acts of 1965, which statute was signed by Governor John A. Volpe on June 1, 1965, and will go into effect ninety days thereafter.

Chief Derro further adds that it is impossible to detail officers on every street in town, which of course is true (I was mainly interested in Washington Street.), but he suggests furnishing him personally the registration numbers or names on trucks which are in violation of this law.

The new statute is as follows: "An Act requiring the placing of a suitable cover over sand and gravel carried in any truck on the public way.

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court assembled and by the authority of the same as follows:

"Section 36 of chapter 85 of the General Laws, as most recently amended by chapter 160 of the acts of 1962 is hereby further amended by striking out the first sentence and inserting in place thereof the following two sentences: No person shall drive or move a vehicle on any way as defined in section 1 of chapter 90, nor shall the owner or bailee of any vehicle require or permit the same to be driven or moved in any such way, unless such vehicle is constructed or loaded so as to prevent any of its load from dropping, sifting, leaking or otherwise escaping therefrom, and if it is loaded with sand or gravel, unless its load is fully and adequately covered. This section shall not prohibit the dropping of sand for the purpose of securing traction or the sprinkling of water or other substance on such a way in cleaning or maintaining the same."

In summary I should like to commend both the Board of Selectmen and Chief Derro for their cooperation in endeavoring to keep Winchester the clean town it should always be and to further commend Chief Derro for being willing to absorb the extra burden he and his officers will have, added on to their current work, all in an effort to keep Winchester clean.

Sincerely,
Vincent F. Erhard

Piano Recital By Pupils Of Eunice M. Kiley

A large and appreciative audience attended the annual recital of pianoforte music by pupils from the studio of Eunice M. Kiley, 433 Main Street on Tuesday evening, in the Fellowship Hall, Congregational Church, West Medford.

The entrance march was capably played by two sisters, Kathleen and Martha Barry of West Medford. More than half of the solos were accompanied by their teacher, Miss Kiley on a second piano which added variety and zest to the program.

A contest called, "Bird in a Guilded Cage," a scales and cadence contest, ended with this program. The cages were pinned on the drapes on the stage and the prizes for the winners were tiny realistic birds of all colors, fixed on little trellises. Three birds for the most scales covered, two for the other first winners in their prospective groups, one for second prize winners.

Martha Soule and Barbara Hanson of Melrose and Wakefield, tied for this first award. They had covered the 24 scales and written and played the complete cadence for all keys.

Other first prize winners were: Wendy Ellison, Vicki Fazio, Susan Fichera, Debby Busfield, Wendy Forte and Joan Kolligian.

Those receiving second prizes were Cindy White, Christopher Callahan, Jennifer Amerault, Lisa Cafarrella, Claudette Chevie and Kathy Barry.

Selected pieces for the winners in the memory contest for the season were then given out by Miss Kiley to the following pupils: Jennifer Amerault, Andrew Samoiloff, Susan Fichera, Claudette Chevie, Wendy Forte and Martha Barry.

It is customary for the teacher to exchange photographs with the Scholarship Winner and Miss Kiley presented hers to Cynthia Ware, the fifth winner of the One Hundred Dollar Scholarship, and to the little sister of Joyce Clark the fourth winner of the Scholarship, as Joyce was unable to be present.

Other pupils contributing their share of enjoyment to the fine program were as follows: David White, Claire Ryder, Margaret Brenton, Kathy Simmons, Elaine Fichera, John and Andrew Fichera, Laurel Samoiloff, Laurie and Susan Greaves, Susan Soule, Glenn Stewart, Susan and Marsha White.

Works from Chopin, MacDowell, Sinding, Mendelssohn, Haydn, Mozart, Schumann, Tschaikowsky, Rachmaninoff and many smaller works, were ably performed by these pupils, many of whom have outstanding talent.

The motif for seven recitals this past year is what the teacher says, "an obligation to share our conception of beauty with the greatest number of people, and to live up to the best that is in us."

Library Addition Building Notes

Due to construction on the Library addition it has become necessary to move the Children's Room out of its present location and into the downstairs Rich Room.

The Trustees regret that it will be necessary to close the Children's Room to the public while this transfer is being made. Consequently the Children's Room will be closed all day Thursday, June 24, and will reopen in its new location Friday morning.

Access to the temporary Children's Room can be had either from the outside or by coming downstairs through the building as before. The Trustees sincerely regret this inconvenience.

Barones Sponsor Meetings For Forum Alumni

Approximately sixty college-age young people gathered last Wednesday evening at the School Street home of Dr. and Mrs. William D. Barone.

The occasion was the first get-together of the Forum Alumni, a group recently organized by the Barones for the post-high school young people of the First Congregational Church.

The First Congregational has had for the past quarter of a century a very active, well-known high school group, the Senior Forum. The organization is, actually, a "youth church," for the young people hold their own weekly church service in Ripley Chapel with their own members selecting the speakers and acting as choir, choir leader, ushers, chaplains, deacons, etc.

It is a large group, sometimes numbering 200 and graduating each year as many as seventy seniors. Many families have worked along with Forum for a number of years and have been concerned because of the absence of any special church group with which these young people might become identified after graduation from high school and the Senior Forum. Interested in this problem, too, Dr. and Mrs. Barone have formulated the Forum Alumni and have offered to sponsor it for the first few years. Its primary purpose is to maintain a specific group for the unmarried young people of the church (ages 19 to 25) through which they may renew acquaintances and make new friendships within the church.

A series of informal get-togethers will be planned for the college vacation periods, and all Congregational Church young people, whether graduates of Forum or not, will be most welcome to attend any meeting of the Forum Alumni.

The first gathering on Wednesday covered an age range from 18 to 24 and included those from the high school graduating classes of 1959, '61, '63, '64 and '65. Four former presidents of Forum were present: Frank Curtis, Reed Lowry, Jon Moody and Scott Cunningham. Other Forum officers present included Dorothy Williams, Bill Gaffney, Sue Keppler, Chris Cooper, Debby Barone, Lee Dresser, Beth Gilpatric, and Steve Butterfield.

Among those present were students enrolled at the following colleges and junior colleges: Brown, Dartmouth, Massachusetts College of Art, Harvard, Yale, Green Mountain, Mitchell, Nasson, Marietta, Hood, Smith, Cornell, Hamilton, Annapolis, Indiana, Barnard, Middlebury and Bridgeton. Although the activities of the Forum Alumni were originally aimed at the college winter vacations, enthusiastic persons at Wednesday's meeting suggested that summer get-togethers be planned for those who might be in the Winchester area during July and August. The next affair, therefore, is planned, tentatively, for a Friday evening in early July.

Another Honor To Col. Conlon

In admiration of their former commanding officer, officers and enlisted men of Marine Air Reserve Squadron VMA-322 Wing A presented Lt. Col. Thomas W. Conlon with a plaque depicting the Marine Corps Emblem and the squadron's insignia.

Mounted on the handsome hardwood plaque is the famed eagle, anchor, and globe balanced with the casted fighting cock, trademark of the Marine Reserve squadron stationed at U.S. Naval Air Station, So. Weymouth.

Col. Conlon, Water Commissioner here was commanding officer of the Fighting Cocks from May, 1963 to October, 1964 and is presently executive officer of Marine Air Reserve Group 4 also of Weymouth.

The inscription on the plaque is brief, but meaningful—"To Lt. Col. Conlon, With Love, The Fighting Cocks."

Switzerland And Morocco Trips To Two Students Here

Under the aegis of the Experiment in International Living two students here will make summer trips and visits in Switzerland and in Morocco.

Miss Karen Smith, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert M. Smith of 92 Lawson Road and a student at Green Mountain Junior College leaves today aboard Capital Airways for Switzerland, embarking for a summer of education and travel from New York.

Next Tuesday Miss Maida Uhlig of Wheaton College, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert H. Uhlig of 14 Mason Street also leaves from Kennedy International for a summer in Morocco.

The Experiment in International Living has been engaged in international educational exchange since its founder first introduced a group of American youths to their French and German-speaking counterparts in Switzerland in 1932. It has since developed into a world-wide operation with representatives in 59 countries, involved annually in the exchange of some 4,500 young men and women between the United States and the four corners of the world.

An outbound Experiment group typically comprises ten men and women between the ages of 16 and 30, under the guidance of a specially-trained leader, who live for a month as a "son" or "daughter" of a family abroad. This firsthand opportunity to develop friendships, learn the customs and traditions and participate in the activities of the host country from the vantage point of a family environment is the heart of an Experiment experience. The second month is spent traveling about the country with host and family members as their guests or on a work or study project. More than 2,000 American Experimenters will visit 44 different countries on this program in 1965.

Starting time for all activites will be 6:30 p.m.

As witnessed by last year's attendance the summer program continues to be a popular twilight activity for both young and old. In the '64 competition amongst the older boys, the Oldtimers proved to be just a little too much, consequently annexing the championship. Not to be forgotten were the Friday night fun-packed contests which were enthusiastically received by the younger set.

This year's program promises to provide the same excitement and enjoyment. It will be under the supervision of Mike Callahan with Roger Symmes being his assistant. Both boys were former Sachem hoopsters and usually manage to see a little action during the course of the season.

MICHAEL J. MINUTOLI of 17 James Street recently won a Wasco Flashing Top Ten Club award for sales performance in 1964 in the New England office of American Cyanamid Company's Building Products Division in Wakefield.

Smith Receives Patent on Molded Frame Article

George Warren Smith of 4 Inverness Road was the recipient on June 1 of U. S. patent No. 3,186,-118, entitled "Molded Article."

The frame in which a painting is mounted is an introduction to the painting and determines in some measure the attitude of the observer.

Deep solid-appearing frames with detailed three-dimensional sculpturing and of appropriate color and finish create an impression of depth and value.

Heretofore, the best of these frames have been carved of wood and have been costly.

Less expensive imitations of carved wooden frames have been molded of plaster and of resin and filler compositions. However, plaster is brittle. The filled resin compositions, because of manufacturing and cost problems, are usually made relatively thin in cross section and therefore lack the desired deep sculptured effect. Both of these types of frames are heavy and present hanging and shipping problems.

To overcome these limitations, Mr. Smith has devised a deeply sculptured three-dimensional frame or similar molded article which may be used for the mounting of paintings and is inexpensive, strong, light in weight and resistant to marring.

The improved article not only has many of the characteristics of carved wood, but it also has improved dimensional stability, surface smoothness and resistance to cranking. In addition, it is receptive to a variety of surface finishes which adhere firmly to it and provide a highly attractive effect.

In accordance with Mr. Smith's invention, an expandable resin composition is placed in a mold cavity of suitable shape and is expanded so that it accurately reproduces the contour of the mold cavity and forms a strong skin of cured resin at the surface of the molded article.

As described in detail in the specifications and drawings of the patent, parts made of wood, hard board, thin metal or comparable light strong material are placed in the mold cavity prior to the molding operation and become embedded in the resin composition.

These parts impart strength, rigidity and other valuable properties to the finished product which, after removal from the mold, may be coated with a desired finish and will serve effectively and satisfactorily as a frame for paintings, pictures, mirrors, etc.

The application for this patent was filed on January 25, 1962.

The New And The Old

★ PERHAPS nowhere in American Life has there been such a blending of the old with the new as in the area of funeral service. Here, there have been such tremendous strides in techniques and equipment, such changes in the atmosphere of the funeral home itself as to amaze those familiar only with the establishments of pre-World War II vintage. But in the service itself they would readily recognize the traditional sense of reverence and obligation which have characterized American Funeral Service since Colonial times.

Town League

On last Tuesday evening the defending champion S.O.I. took on the winless V.F.W. team.

It appeared to be an easy game for the Son's, even though the Vets jumped off to a four run lead in the first inning. Going into the fifth inning the Sons had a 10-4 lead and with fire-balling Allan Johnson hurling for them it looked like curtains for the V.F.W. Then the roof fell in.

With a combination of hits, errors, and walks the Vets managed to tie the ball game up. In the last of the sixth the Sons came up with a run to take a one run lead into the the last inning but Billy Rodgers, the Vets center fielder, belted a grand slam homerun to cap a five run seventh inning and give the V.F.W. their first win of the year, 15-11.

Starring for the Vets, along with Rodgers, were bonus baby, Dave Hession with a three run homer and Billy Bond, who did a good job on the mound. Starring for the Sons was Bob Fiore who did an excellent job coaching first base.

The once beaten Elks and Brown Screw Machine Co. (Sachems) tangled on the following night and played a fast interesting game. The Elks won the game 8-3 but needed a five run sixth inning and some clutch pitching from Joe Tomasi to do it. The Sachems loaded the bases and had no outs in the fifth but Tomasi bore down, getting the next three men to ground back to him. The Elks win was the fourth in five starts and increased their league lead to 1½ games.

To prove it wasn't luck the V.F.W. came up with two, come from behind wins again last week. On Thursday against the Anderson's Jewelers and again on Monday against Calidyne. In the Anderson's game the Vets came up with five runs in the last two innings to win 14-10. The Calidyne game saw the Vets down to their last out, nobody on, and down a run. Then the next batter walked and Jackie Kimball belted a home-run to win the game for the V.F.W. 12-11.

Basketball Award

Bentley Banquet Honors Watson

Bob Watson of 5 Bellevue Avenue, a sophomore at Bentley College, was awarded the Most Improved Player trophy for his outstanding performance as a varsity basketball player during the school's recent All-Sports Banquet.

The 6-6 center was also awarded his varsity letter and blazer.

A prime factor in Bentley's outstanding 18-5 finish this past season, Watson played in 22 games, scored 178 points for an eight-point-per-game average, and pulled down 190 rebounds for a nine-rebound-per-game average.

The 20-year-old pivotman received high praise from his coach, Al Shields, who said, "Bob left no doubt in anyone's mind that he would qualify for this trophy. He improved steadily in every game and proved a very valuable asset to our club as each game went by. We expect an outstanding performance from him in the next few seasons."

In two years of varsity basketball competition, Watson has scored 265 points and grabbed off 288 rebounds.

L. L. Game Of the Week

By Charlie Lucier

Red Sox 11 - Braves 6

Sharp hitting and some fine fielding plays featured the Red Sox win over the Braves by an 11 to 6 score. Up to the final inning it was anybody's game with the score knotted at 6-all going into the sixth and final chapter. But the big Red Sox barrage that netted five runs in the last inning made the difference and took home the marbles.

Little Al Sampson started the last frame downfall as he drew a walk to open the floodgates on the Braves. Mike Deshler smashed a hard single through the infield and two bad throws enabled Al to score while Steve pounded around the bases behind him and was able to cross the plate on the throw in.

Ed Williams then pushed a single into the outfield and advanced as Phil Sampson was being thrown out at first. Ben Dolan then singled to score Williams. With two out the big blow came when John Carr looped a long home run over the left field fence scoring Ben Dolan and chalking up the fifth and final Red Sox run of the game.

The sox drew first blood when Mike Deshler worked Clif Emery for a base on balls and was able to get around to score the run to push the winners onto the score board.

The Braves came bouncing back in their half of the first when Lance West singled and Bob Salvucci was hit by the pitcher. Paul Whitney reached on an error as did Clif Emery with the first two batters crossing the plate. Whitney followed them across the platter and the Braves had a three to one lead.

In the second, Andy Shannon drew a walk and proceeded to steal second, third and home to cut the lead down to one run. The Braves had no runs in the second but the Sox kept pecking away at the lead. Ed Williams singled in the third and stole second and third. From there, Ed came in on Ben Dolan's sacrifice and it was three-all.

Neither team was able to add any runs in the fourth. The fifth inning began with Ed Williams poking out another single followed by a Phil Sampson single and Bill McGrath's double which scored Ed and Phil. Then Andy Shannon singled and Bill came in to make it Red Sox 6 and Braves 3.

Those pesky Braves just wouldn't quit and in their half of the fifth they came up with the three runs needed to tie the game. Wayne West drew a walk and scored on Bob Salvucci's long single. Clifton Emery was intentionally passed and with two ducks on the pond, Wayne Johnson hit the fence with a long double that scored Salvucci and Emery.

After the big sixth for the Sox, the Braves just couldn't buy a hit as Curt Clark struck out six men in the game and was throwing hard throughout.

Clifton Emery, who started for the Braves had eight strikeouts when he had to take over the catching assignment after Bill Dobbins was hurt in the fourth. One of the shining lights for the Braves was the game turned in by Bob Salvucci at third base. This boy has fast hands and made some plays that were sensational at the hot corner.

It was a tough battle for the Sox but a good victory for Curt Clark. Those Braves were not about to give in until the final out and they went down slugging. Up to that final inning the game could have gone either way.

Yankees 4 - Twins 2

The Yankees and Twins played off a tie game before settling down to the regularly scheduled encounter and it was a doozy. Eight scoreless innings had been played before Dick Cantillon caught one of Larry Weller's fast ones and it sailed over the centerfield fence to give the win to the Yankees. Up to that time the Twins were tied with the Red Sox for the first half honors and it began to look like the Sox would take the bunting as they were meeting the Dodgers in a playoff game at Ginn Field.

But the Dodgers had other ideas and they stopped the Sox cold leaving the Twins and Sox still tied for the first half lead. These two teams will now have to meet for a deciding game before the All-Star manager can be chosen.

After a short rest, the Twins and Yanks got started on what was the main event of the evening. After a scoreless first inning, the Twins took the lead in the second with Steve McDavitt scoring on Davis Hall's single. The Yanks could not score in their half of the inning and the Twins were headed toward a victory.

In the third the Twins could not score and the Yanks began to bite. Steve Deshler, who had taken over the pitching duties after Dick Maggio was hurt, was the first man up and he promptly singled. Mike Stevenson took over then and belted a long triple that scored Steve with the tying run. A wild pitch by Anthony Pizzo allowed Mike to score and the Yankees were riding a 2 to 1 ball game.

With one out in the fourth, Larry Weller drew a base on balls and did some smart base running to get himself to third from which point he scored on a passed ball. Again the count was knotted but the Yanks came right back in their half of the fourth. Jim Grenier smashed a solid double to open the inning and scored on Steve Deshler's single to make it 3 to 2 for the Yankees.

Dick Cantillon came through again in the fifth with a towering homer that cleared the centerfield fence and put the game in the freezer for the Yanks. Like his first circuit clout of the evening, this was another well hit drive that was tagged as it left the bat.

Anthony Pizzo did a masterful job for the Twins as he struck out 11 of the Sox batters. He had fine control but his team could not come up with the necessary hits. Steve Deshler struck out eight and Dick Maggio had two hits in his one inning of pitching. The Yanks did it with six hits while the Twins could collect only four and that was the story of the ball game.

Those Yankees mean trouble for any team in the second half. It took them some time to get untracked but they seem to have hit their stride now.

Women's Tennis Team Undefeated

Winchester women tennis players completed an outstanding season last week as they swept to the championship of the Essex League with an undefeated record over their seven suburban team rivals.

Mrs. Marge Stockwell, team captain, marshalled her doubles combines in near-perfect fashion and the Winchester ladies rolled up a total of 18 points out of a possible 21 in league play, which opened in April. Playing three doubles matches in each team match, Winchester displayed good depth of talent, goose-egging the opposition 3-0 on four occasions and dropping only single points to three separate rivals to win the championship by a hefty margin. Teams from Arlington, Cambridge, Sudbury River Tennis Club, Weston, Wayland, Needham and Wellesley all were defeated by Winchester racket swingers.

Bellwethers of the team for Winchester at number 1 were Maxine Kajander-Ruth Rozelle, while Mrs. Stockwell-Jan Hughes and Der Price-Ginger Parsons came through consistently in their matches. Stella Gallant, Lucy White and Bunny Butler stepped in effectively when called upon and maintained the high level of teamwork evident throughout the schedule.

Mrs. Stockwell and members of her team were congratulated by Bill Bird, president of the Winchester Tennis Association for their fine play, which brought credit to themselves and to Winchester.

Cap League Finale Saturday

Ninety boys participated on Saturday and Sunday in interesting games which brought to a close another Cap League season.

The Dad's Club wishes to thank all the adults who worked to make this season a success.

The boys are reminded to watch the Star for a listing of the Park Department Recreation Commission schedule of games to be held at the playgrounds during this summer. Adult supervision is provided under the guidance of Frank Provinzano.

The final treat for the boys is the Red Sox game trip this Saturday. The boys are to be at Ginn Field by 12:45, wear their caps and assemble by teams for the bus trip to Fenway Park.

The team managers, assistants and umpires will also join the boys for the trip and provide proper supervision.

The Woburn City Club will play its home games at Manchester Field starting the first week in July. This is an excellent chance for local people to get a look at this team, which has added still another Winchester ball player. His name is Marty Hill, and he pitched a fine game last Friday night to bring the City Club its fourth win in a row. Right now it's the hottest team in the Carling League.

Dick Faieta and Phil Doherty continue to be the big guns for this team. Doherty is one of the leading hitters and Faieta the ace of the mound staff. Last week he blanked league-leading Wakefield on three hits 7-0. Jeff Peckham also won a game on the mound last week during that four-game win streak. Ron Scherban is still handling the catching duties. When the team moves to Winchester to play the rest of its home games it won't be an entire Woburn team.

The Woburn softball league has an entry called Milne Sales, and a good part of the team is made up of Sachems. Phil Doherty plays first, Dick Faieta left field, Whitey Allen handles the catching duties, George Murphy is at shortstop and Joe Tomassj is the pitcher. They have a 2-2 record in league play, having bounced back after losing their first two.

Getting away from the local scene, it's getting close to all-star time, and this week is a good one to try to pick the American League All-Stars. Not having had a chance to see the National League in action, we will have to pass them up and leave it to the experts. We can take a wild guess at the American League.

First base is tough this year, but we'll give the nod to Bill Skowron of the White Sox. His big bat has kept the Chi-Sox in the pennant race. At second base everybody's choice seems to be Bobby Richardson, but not ours. We have to give the nod to the "Cat," Felix Mantilla, whose power and .325 batting average is far better than Richardson's. He may not be a better fielder, but he makes it up with his bat. Dick McAuliffe has done a fine job all season long at short and gets the nod there. At third base M.V.P. Brooks Robinson is taking up where he left off last year. Even with that broken thumb of his he should open the game at third.

The play of little Vic Davalillo has inspired Cleveland to third place just 1½ games off the top. His .365 batting average is tops in the league and Vic sholud start the game at center. Rocky Colavito, Frank Howard, Carl Yastrzemski and Jim Hall are all in a dog fight for the right and left-field spots. Catching is tough to pick this year, with Elston Howard out most of the season it may cost him the job. Earl Battey of the league-leading Twins is as good a choice as any.

How about pitching? Pasqual for the Twins is a shoo-in, along with Hank Aguirre of the Tigers and Milt Pappas of the Orioles. Stu Miller and Ed Fisher will be the relievers Al Lopez will count on. Al will add five or six more to go with this staff, and knowing the way he handles the pitching staff the American League is in fine shape. While on the subject of the American League, did you notice the crowd last Sunday at Yankee Stadium, almost 75,000 people. That shows you what will happen when the Yanks are in seventh place. They like to see them lose.

Bay State Raceway in Foxboro opened Monday night. Woburnite Herb Britt had drives in the first six races. Herb says that he expects this to be a fine meeting for him. He has some new stock, and after a fine meeting at Green Mountain Park in Vermont he is looking forward to Foxboro. It certainly is nice to see the trotters and pacers back in action again.

Lincoln Students Look Ahead

PRESENTATION OF DICTIONARIES to sixth-grade students is an honored tradition at the Lincoln School. The college dictionaries are given for secondary school study by the Lincoln School Mothers' Association. This year Mrs. Philip Parsons, association president, presented them, assisted by Louis Gentile. Cathy Lombard is receiving her dictionary.

Lincoln School Grade Six Gives Final Assembly

The sixth grade boys and girls of Lincoln School, under the direction of Mrs. Barbara Nicholson presented their final assembly to parents and school-mates on Tuesday, June 15.

Richard Maggio was master of ceremonies for the occasion and cited the standard of service, leadership, responsibility and citizenship that this class endeavored to make to Lincoln School. Former Lincoln School children who were members of the sixth grade this year at Mystic School, returned for the occasion and participated in each part of the program.

Mrs. Philip Parsons, president of the Lincoln School Mothers' Association presented to each sixth grade youngster the traditional gift of the Parents' Association, a College Dictionary for both personal use and as a tool of learning for the secondary school days ahead. Louis Gentile served as aide to Mrs. Parsons. Mrs. Parsons cited the importance of communication, tracing it from childhood through life, and the usefulness of its tools and techniques in the fast-developing science of communication. Edmund Williams and Christopher Parsons read the class will. A chorus of sixth grade children directed by Miss Jeanne Loudon concluded the assembly which was followed by a social hour sponsored by the Lincoln School Mothers' Association for members of the sixth grade and their parents.

Another course which is again being offered after a lapse of several years is training as Water Safety Aides. Playground Notes

Last Friday the bell rang to end the school year, sending the boys and girls to the playground and beach areas of the town.

On Monday the gong was sounded to open the summer playground program. Attendance at West Side and Leonard Fields was encouraging despite the thermometer hitting in the nineties. The temperature dropped slightly on Tuesday, but despite the tremendous heat the instructors were able to interest the youngsters in participating in various forms of activity. Baseball seemed to go over best.

Arrangements have been made to have the play areas on a rotation basis, with Leonard and West Side Fields open one day with supervision and, with Ginn and Loring playgrounds supervised the next.

This column will appear in the Star each week to notify interested readers of the events which took place and what is planned for the following week.

This year the Park Department is again fortunate in having Frank Provinzano as supervisor of the summer program. Mr. Provinzano is a teacher in our school system and enjoys tremendously working with the youth of the town. Assisting Mr. Provinzano as instructors is an excellent staff. He feels that this summer should be a most promising one.

Helen Nash is returning to the staff and should be an asset to our program. Helen will be a junior next year at Salem State Teachers College. Helen will be at Leonard and Loring Fields.

Carol Gaudioso is new to our department but shows great potential as an instructor. She is also a junior at Salem State Teachers College. Carol will instruct at Ginn and West Side Fields.

Heading the arts and crafts department is Peggy Hoffman, who is with us for the first time. She is a recent graduate of our high school and is planning to enter Trinity College in Washington next September. Peggy will be at Leonard and Loring Fields in the morning when those fields are open, and at Ginn and West Side Fields in the afternoon when those fields are supervised.

John Peckham joins the ranks this year. He is no stranger to many of us. He is a former high school star athlete attending Yankton College in South Dakota.

Vandy French, basketball and baseball star while he attended Tufts, will supervise at Loring and West Side Fields, while Peckham will perform at Leonard and Ginn Fields.

The first week was used to organize teams of boys and girls in various activities. Peggy Hoffman had the smaller children happily engaged in making pot holders.

Next Week's Schedule

Monday—Ginn and Loring Fields open

Tuesday — Leonard and West Side Field open

Wednesday — Ginn and Loring Fields open

Thursday — Leonard and West Side Field open

Friday—Ginn and Loring Fields open

This section applies to all swimming pools constructed, enlarged, or altered subsequent to the effective date of enactment.

A swimming pool is classified as a structure which is subject to regulations by these laws. For purposes of lot line or setback requirements, a private or public pool is considered a Residence Building (Div. 19, Sec. 147), except that distance to side and rear lot lines and distances from other buildings may be one-half of those specified in Section 147. Minimum required reinforcing steel in concrete construction shall be 1/10 of 1 per cent of area cross section, with maximum spacing of 18". All concrete pools shall have a minimum thickness of two inches.

b. Every swimming pool shall be equipped with an approved filter unit, drain, and supply system. The use of plastic pipe is permitted.

c. Suitable provision, acceptable to the Building Commissioner, shall be made for the disposition of water resulting from drainage of a pool, especially when a catch basin or other public drainage facility is not available.

d. An electrical inspection for grounding or reinforcing wire, plumbing, and conduit is required prior to placement of the pool concrete or other material.

e. A fence or other protective enclosure at least 5 feet in height must be installed around all pools. The wall of a building may serve this purpose. Each opening shall have a self-closing door or gate with latching device. All latches shall be located no less than four feet above ground and shall be of the automatic or self-latching type.

f. If intended for use during the hours of darkness, suitable illumination shall be provided which shall be shielded from all adjacent streets and private or public properties.

Duplicate Bridge Club

On Wednesday, July 7, we will have our summer open house and "Fourth of July Party." It will feature a cool and refreshing punch, deligthful delicacies, and relaxed bridge. Members are urged to make plans now to bring down a "new couple" that evening. If enough members follow through on this, possibly we can have the guests all sit East-West in one section so that they will, in effect, be playing only against each other.

Master point night on the 16th brought Section A a full evening of 27 boards and a 108 average. The leading scorers, on an over-all point basis, were.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Cade	123½
Martha Walker and Lena Collins	122½
Ellen Schofield and Bill Duryea	121½
Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lorris	118
Paul Vatter and Lewis Ward	116
Peg Sullivan and Adeline Mingolelli	112½
Betty Slade and Robert Haskell	112½
Mr. and Mrs. George Kimball	111½
Ted Atkinson and Gerald Barrett	111

An unusual feature was that the top three scorers (and four of the top five) all sat East-West!

Section B, a nine-table movement scored on an average of 63, was topped by visiting pros Hatch and Cunningham and by local pros Smith (Lolly, of course) and McConnell.

North-South

George Hatch and William Cunningham	82
Carlene Lauten and John Nicholson	74½
Margaret Jackson and Barbara Shea	71½
Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fortin	64½

East-West

Lolly Smith and Kay McConnell	76½
Stephen Root and David Littleton	70½
Rose Hickey and Leonora Carty	69
Cal. and Mrs. James Ryan	66

This column has been very fortunate in receiving some excellent board-of-the-week analyses in the past. That tradition is brilliantly maintained this week, and we may have discovered a potential top-rate pontificator in the person of David Littleton:

DISHEARTENING

South
♠ A 8 2
♥ A Q 9 7
♦ 10 7
♣ A 8 7 6

The above hand is offered as an example of both accurate bidding and proper declarer play. It is my opinion that only two final contracts are logical—four hearts or three no trump, so grab your favorite partner and see which contract, you arrive at. I personally feel that four hearts is the superior contract, as it makes one more trick than no trump, and this is where I played (misplayed?) the hand. Our contract was arrived at by the following bidding sequence:

North	East	South	West
1 club	Pass	1 heart	1 spade
2 hearts	Pass	4 hearts	All Pass

Normal play resulted in my making five, as I scored three trump tricks, three clubs, one spade, two diamonds, and a ruff in each hand. As I opened the traveling score slip to enter my 650, I was taken aback a bit by the appearance of two 660's, indicating that five no trump could also be made. I was heard to make some unkind remarks about poor defending, but even that could not improve my below-average result.

That was when I realized I had played the hand badly. Of course five no trump can be made, but so can six hearts! Do you see it?

Declarer should hold up once on the spade opening, but must take the continuation. The diamond finess must work to make twelve tricks, so it should be taken immediately to avoid entry problems later. Declarer now cashes the heart King and Ace, ruffs his last spade with dummy's heart ten, and leads dummy's last heart to his nine, leaving the following ending.

North

East

♣ J 10 9 2

South

♣ A 8 7 6

Declarer now cashes the heart Queen, carefully pitching a diamond from dummy, and East is caught in a progressive squeeze. If he lets go a diamond, dummy's Ace clears the suit, and South throws his losing club on the good diamond five. If, on the other hand, East throws a club, declarer cashes dummy's Ace, club King and Queen, and returns to his hand with a club, clearing that suit and taking the twelfth trick with his club six!

Mind you, I am not recommending a contract of six hearts. I merely mean to point out that good declarer play, as well as accurate bidding, is needed to produce optimum results. See you next Wednesday—meanwhile, back to my book on "Play of the Hand!"

Special Outing For Troop 505

On June 5th, the junior Girl Scouts of Troop 505 were the guests of their fellow scout, Jayne Donahue and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Donahue of 261 Washington Street, at their summer camp on Lake Arlington in Salem, New Hampshire.

The scouts arrived early in the morning for a day of fun in the fresh air and sunshine. The girls tried their hands at various water sports including swimming, speed boat riding, row boating, fishing and polliwog catching! The scouts were accompanied by Mrs. Emmons Ellis, Mrs. Joseph Cavallo, and Mrs. Ralph Seferian.

Mr. and Mrs. Donahue provided the scouts with a hearty lunch at noon time and a delicious barbecue in the evening, complete with hamburgers, hot dogs, watermelon and marshmallows for toasting.

A good time was had by all. The scouts are most grateful to Mr. and Mrs. Donahue for a wonderful day.

Channel 2 On Childbirth

"Hospitals have become great routinized machines for the turning out of babies," Dr. John Seldon Miller charges on WGBH-FM, Friday, July 2 at 8 p.m.

Chief of Obstetrics and Gynecology at San Francisco's French Hospital and assistant clinical professor of Obstetrics and Gynecology at the University of California Medical School, Dr. Miller candidly expresses his major grievance against American hospitals.

"I do not believe you can preserve dignity in childbirth," he says, "if every woman is subjected to a twilight sleep the moment she enters the hospital, so that she's rendered a 'zombie' saying to her, if you will: 'There is no part of this that can be meaningful to you as a woman. We'll do it for you.'"

Appearing with Dr. Miller to discuss "Family Centered Maternity Care: The Changing Role of fathers in Pregnancy" is Mrs. John L. Swenson, president of the Boston Association for Childbirth Education.

Summer Sunday School And Church Services

Regular Sunday School classes and church services will continue throughout the summer at First Church of Christ, Scientist, Winchester.

The Sunday morning service and the Sunday school both begin at 11 o'clock. The Wednesday evening meeting, which includes testimonies of Christian Science healing, begins at 8.

Children from ages 2 to 19 may attend the Sunday school.

Even in the youngest classes, pupils learn how to apply the teachings of the Bible to their daily lives, according to Mrs. Helen W. Reeves, Sunday school superintendent. "We'll be happy to welcome any young people who wish to visit or to enroll in the Sunday school," she said.

She added that everyone is always welcome at the Sunday and Wednesday church services.

Williams Honors To James Hill

James Hill, a former resident of Oxford Street and 1961 graduate of WHS, was graduated from Williams College recently. He is at present a resident of Rochester, New York.

Mr. Hill was graduated with a bachelor of arts, cum laude, with highest honors in political economy (double honors major in political science and economics) and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. He also was awarded the "Graves Prize for Delivery of Essay," an award based on his "oral defense of thesis" before the faculty. That thesis, an unusual one in that it was prepared by a team of five, chairmanned by Mr. Hill, was 333 pages long, on the Balance of Payments Problem, and involved a week of interviews of Cabinet officers and others in Washington during spring vacation this year.

Mr. Hill now goes to Washington to work for the summer in the Treasury Department. Last summer he was a recipient of a Mead Fund Scholarship from Williams to spend the summer working as an intern in the office of Senator Paul Douglas of Illinois.

In September, after picking from several acceptances including Stanford, Michigan, and the Fletcher School of Diplomacy of Tufts/Harvard, he decided on the Woodrow Wilson Graduate School of Public and International Affairs at Princeton University, with a generous stipend/fellowship. This is a two-year program for a master's degree, with a summer abroad between, included in the program and support.

He has been active in Williams in Zeta Psi fraternity as well as the radio station, the band, as he was in WHS.

Methodist Church News

Rev. H. Newton Clay will preach Sunday morning at eleven o'clock on the subject, "Windows Open." This will mark the start of Rev. Mr. Clay's eighth year as pastor of the Crawford Memorial Church and his fortieth year as an ordained minister.

This will also be the last service before the start of the Union Summer Services, which this year will be at a new hour; 9:30 o'clock. The first four of the summer services will be at the First Congregational Church.

Two memorial gifts have been presented to the church to be used in the Church School. Mrs. Winford Barrows has given four toy trucks to be used in the pre-school department "In Memory of a very dear friend" and Mrs. Royal Morse has given a Christmas Creche for use in the same division in memory of her father, Mr. Charles Reese.

Some thirty members of the Youth Fellowship, with their adult counsellors, are on a Camping Trip in New Hampshire this week. They are at Wanakee Methodist Conference Center, near Meredith, where they are helping to prepare the camp for use by other Methodist children and youth groups this summer. The young people will return to Winchester on Saturday.

Nine teachers and twelve children of the Church School are attending the Inter-conference Laboratory and Demonstration School being held this week in Needham Heights.

"Leah's Day" At Hospital

Friday, June 11, was a special day at the Winchester Hospital. After 40 years of service Mrs. Leah Grimes was retiring, and in recognition of these years this special day was proclaimed, with all employees wearing a tag imprinted "Leah's Day."

Highlighting the occasion was a reception in her honor which was held in the hospital dining room, at which time Mr. and Mrs. Grimes received the congratulations and best wishes of their many friends.

Mrs. Grimes was presented with forty red roses, signifying her years of service, and a gift from her friends at the hospital.

Mrs. Grimes was employed by the hospital on July 4, 1925, and at that time performed much of the clerical work that was needed. She has had a varied career at the hospital and has seen it grow and expand from 44 beds to its present 173 beds.

She has served as the medical record librarian, patients' accounts manager and assistant treasurer, which title she held at the time of her retirement.

To many in Winchester Mrs. Grimes has indeed been "Mrs. Winchester Hospital"—always friendly and courteous to everyone. She will be missed at the hospital.

MRS. LEAH GRIMES

MSPCA Says To Leave Young Wild Animals Alone

"Leave wild baby animals alone and let the animal parents take care of them," said Mr. David S. Claflin, executive vice-president of the Mass. S.P.C.A. Remember when you go into the woods, you've left your own neighborhood of humans and entered the neighborhood of wildlife. Just because you happen to see a young animal or bird alone does not mean the young one is lost. Don't kidnap it from its mother, home and environment.

Most female animals have to work as both mother and father and must leave the young to search for food. Deer often leave their fawns in a search for food. Since deer range over a large area and do not have one specific home site, the mother deer may leave her fawns in any secluded spot to stay till she returns. The fawn is quiet and scentless and is in very little danger from any predator except man. Without human interruption, animal mothers will return to care for the young.

A practical reason for leaving wildlife alone in the woods is that the wild babies are difficult to feed and usually starve because they are too frightened to eat or are offered the wrong food. If they are successfully raised in a human atmosphere, very few of them can adjust quickly enough to survive if released as adults in their native environment. On the other hand, very few adult home-raised wild animals feel any real sense of gratitude toward their benefactor. Once mature, wild animals are of uncertain temperament and bite, claw or kick with little provocation. They are wild animals and know only the rule of tooth and claw; and the gentle deer, when mature, is no different.

Occasionally, motorists are startled to see a pheasant or duck leading a brood of a dozen or so chicks across the highway. Since the chicks know only one route—after mother—and can't fly, a few moments' delay on the part of the motorist will save the brood from disaster.

Suburban home owners who find young birds fluttering on the lawn can do the most good by putting the youngsters up on a tree limb or in a tall bush and leave it alone. It will then be out of the way of animals and the parents will continue to feed and care for it.

Troop 503 Eagle Scout Awards to Two

A special Court of Honor was held Monday, June 14 at the First Congregational Church honoring Scott Jeffery, and Jim Sauber of Troop 503 who received Eagle Scout badges.

Scoutmaster C. P. Allyn presented a Second Class Badge to Steve Washburn; and Star rank to Chris Allyn and Chris Barlow.

B. Anderson of the Minute Man Council presided at the award ceremony of Eagle Scout assisted by Gene Clark, of the troop's committee. Scoutmaster Allyn presented the Eagle awards to the fathers who in turn presented them to their sons. Scott Jeffery is a junior in Winchester High School and active in the band. Jim Sauber is in eighth grade at Lynch Junior High School and active in the orchestra and band.

After the ceremony, several announcements were made which included the resignation of George Whitten as chairman of the Troop Committee. He will be greatly missed. Awards were made to those Scouts who had the most points for attendance, advancement, etc. Mark Allyn received the first prize of a cook set. A second and third prize will be awarded later.

The Scouts and guests were shown a film of Sandy Island, Lake Winnipesaukee sponsored by the Boston YMCA. Scouts are invited there for the weekend of June 25--26-27.

The Proclamation of the Mosquito to Portage was then read by Scoutmaster Allyn accrediting those Scouts who survived the canoe trip on the Ossipee and Saco Rivers, June 4-5-6 and those adults who put their lives in jeopardy as counselors. The Scouts were: Chris Allyn, David Baird, Chris Barlow, John Benson, Tom Butterfield, Steve Detra, Henry Dieterich, Paul Donahue, David Gibson, Rick Hillger, Scott Jeffery, Bob Romney, J. Rondeau, Bob Shannon, Bruce Stebbins, Randy Smith, Ted von Rosenvinge, Noel Webb, Chape Whitman. Scoutmaster C. P. Allyn, Dr. Benson, and Messrs. Clark, Ernie Dieterich, George Dillon, Bill Jeffery, Frank Kelley, Bill Macneill and Bill Suaber.

All participants received an appropriate sash commemorating the event. These were designed and made by Mrs. Sauber. Special awards went to "First Canoers": Dr. Benson received a rock from the Saco River that he got stuck on, and Mr. Dieterich received a clothes pin in honor of the "bug dope" he had used.

Mr. Jeffrey had the unique distinction of not getting tipped out of a canoe. Mr. Kelley acquired the reputation of "official belly dancer." Dr. Benson was credited with spending more time "on the rocks" than anyone else. Mr. Clark had a motorized canoe and was accused of cheating, or not paddling his own canoe. Mr. Macneill gave a short dissertation on why he spent equally as much time in the water as out and drying his clothes, which was a hilarious version of his escapades.

The scouts and guests were then treated to a film and slides of the canoe trip and look forward eagerly to the fall meeting when all the films will be available.

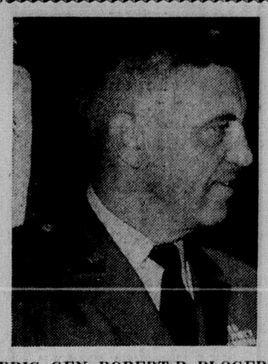
Perrault Gets 'Copter Honors; Heads for Vietnam



BRIG. GEN. ROBERT R. PLOGER recently promoted, commands the New England Division, Corps of Engineers, with headquarters at Waltham. He recently transferred here from the faculty of the Industrial College of the Armed Forces in Washington, D. C. The General will reside at 17 Ridgefield Road.

On June 4th, Marine Corps Pfc. John G. Perrault, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Titilah of 39 Shore Road was graduated from the Memphis Naval Air Station, Marine Helicopter School where he was awarded top scholastic honors.

PFC JOHN G. PERRAULT

A letter received by the Titilah's from the commanding officer stated, "It is men like your son who make and will keep our Navy and Marine Corps one of the greatest forces for peace in the world. John has been a credit to this school and it has been a pleasure to have had him on board."

John is a graduate of Winchester High School, class of 1964 and is presently stationed at New River, N.C., Marine Corps Air Base for further helicopter training and he has been ordered to Vietnam after a 30 day leave home in July.

"Operation Y" Begins Operation

Charles Knight, chairman of the "Operation Y" committee, last week turned over the first dollars earned to Charles W. Craven, cashier at the Winchester National Bank, to officially open the "Operation Y Fund."

Neal Benshimol grinned his approval, and both boys, along with the rest of the committee, said they hoped the fund would grow fast enough to have a program started by fall.

The ten boys on the committee are students at McCall Junior High and will be entering ninth grade. They are willing to take any job this summer, either as a group or separately, that will help them earn more money towards the recreational program fund.

Contributions may be made to "Operation Y Fund" and sent to Mr. Craven or William D. Sullivan, vice president of the Winchester National Bank.

Approximately $2000 to $3000 is needed for a one-year program. This will be on an extension basis with a trained YMCA director coming here several times a week, taking the programs to the people in their own area, and using facilities available, including homes, churches, schools and parks.

It is the first step towards filling the recreational needs of their own age group as well as those of the town.

The next step would be a full-time director and full-time program for a full year, which would cost approximately $15,000.

By gradually building a good recreational program, interest and support for a building such as that proposed by the Town Recreation Committee, would be increased, the Operation Y group believes.

The second step in organizing was taken on Wednesday, June 23. At that time a group representing local churches, clubs and interested individuals met to organize a board of directors.
